Like Diogenes of old, Mrs. Nancy B. Irving, a Chicago book publisher, is engaged in searching for an honest man. She has made the announcement that she will pay the sum of $1,000 to the first business or professional man who can prove conclusively that he has carried on his work for one month without lying, the proof to be presented to a committee of five for its decision. Mrs. Irving does not expect to lose the money, but she is quite sure that if she does lose the honesty of the person securing the $1,000 will have reduced him to such straits that he will need every penny of it. She is convinced that it is a practical impossibility for one to live a strictly honest business or professional life under the present conditions of society. It is hard to believe, commented the Troy (N. Y.) Times, that Mrs. Irving is entirely correct in her views, though it may be admitted that deceit is sometimes practiced in many forms of business and in most if not all professions. But, regardless of all hair-splitting, there are plenty of honest men. The fact is that business and professional success is based on integrity, and without it permanent prosperity would be impossible. There may be and doubtless are "tricks of trade" in very many occupations. Yet as a rule honesty and good faith are the qualities which lead to confidence and keep the world's affairs in healthful motion. Character and uprightness are still positively valuable possessions, and the honest man is by no means as scarce as the pessimists would like to have us believe.

Two-cent stamps (Buffalo exposition series) worth considerably more than their face value, may be the sequel to a blunder said to have been made by the bureau of printing and engraving at Washington. It is said that a sheet containing 100 stamps was reversed before being run off, thus causing the picture of the express train to be printed inverted within the red border. There are 100 of them in existence, and collectors are already looking for them. The sheet was not noticed by the authorities at Washington, the story goes, and it is further reported that it was sent in the ordinary course of business to Brooklyn, where it was placed on sale. A manufacturing firm bought ten of the stamps, and wrote to the department at Washington complaining of them, using one of the very stamps in transmitting its letter of protest. Thus the fact came out, and an enterprising philatelist at Washington at once set about trying to secure as many of them as possible. He secured four by paying a Brooklyn man $20 each for them. A stamp firm here is said to have secured two more of the stamps.

The extent and vigor of the saloon smashing crusade in Kansas may be judged from the following items of Smashers, a petition filed with the court in a suit brought by a keeper against the men and women who smashed his saloon: "Two barrels whisky, value $600; three half-barrels whisky, value $250; ten gallons apple jack, value $30; ten gallons peach brandy, value $30; ten gallons gin, value $30; 40 gallons wine, value $70; other wines and brandies, value $80; 12 cases, each containing 12 quarts rye whisky, value $144; six cases pint bottles rye whisky, value $72; five cases wine, value $30; 15 gallons blackberry brandy, value $20; two slot machines and fixtures, value $30, and damage to building, which plaintiff is unable to more definitely state, $125, and other damage to said plaintiff in the sum of $1,359."

By a new regulation consumptive immigrants are not allowed to land in this country. If they fail to pass the examination they are sent back at the cost of the steamship company. The marine hospital at New York has ruled that tuberculosis, even in an early stage, is "a dangerous contagious disease."

The American spirit is sure to show itself in time of disaster. The flames were scarcely extinguished in stricken Jacksonville when word came over the wires: "Order prevails, and the work of rebuilding has begun." And in the opposite direction went the question: "Do you need help?"

Some learned professor recently accused college girls of acting like lunatics at basket ball. "Now we learn that the crazy women on Ward's Island play basket ball like sane people. It's a topsy-turvy world."

A Toledo boy fed on penny dreadfuls killed his brother and sister and committed suicide. The taste for criminal lore grows with what it feeds on and its dietary is to be had now more freely than ever before.

Northern winter resorts are a new suggestion, the programme for visitors including toboggan slides, ice-boats, sleighing, skating, sun parlors and big log fires for evening entertainment.

A Kansas minister told his congregation last Sunday that those who were in debt need not place anything in the box. The collection was double the usual amount.
