R. FENNER'S ERVE TONIC.

One of the buyers for a big Milwaukee dry goods firm had an astonish-Borve Food Not ing experience while returning from New York . few days ago, reports an exchange of the beer city. With characteristic foresight he had reserved his sleeper bunk several days in advance, and took his train for home, proudly comscious that he had a ticket for "lewes six" nicely stowed away with his mile age. A few miles out a big party of theatrical people boarded the train and several tried for places in the sleeper. It was the luck of the Milwaukeean to draw two airy and loquacious women for the upper section of his berth, and they kept him awake over half the night with their loud talk and laughter, but the early moraing brought with it an occurrence which astonished all who heard # The man in question is an early riser, and just as the sun was "peepin' o'er the hills," he got up, partially dressed and went to the washroom to "fix up." No sooner had he left than one of the women coolly slipped down into the lower berth and calmly and contentedly proceeded to go to sleep. The porter had to rescue the balance of the Milwaukeean's wardrobe, and the woman slept soundly until 11 o'clock For an exhibition of cool nerve this incident is entitled to honorable men-

He finally proposed and was accepted, but the next time he called it was with a different horse. Thereupon the girl wanted to know what had become of the high stepper she knew so well. "Sold him for $125 this morning," was the reply. "Well, you'll have to get him back again or get someone else to go driving with you," said his adored one. The man vainly urged the difficulty and absurdity of doing as she demanded. The young woman would not listen. Thereupon he went to the purchaser and offered him $50 bonus, but was refused. Then he was foolish enough to others, on my desk: "The discour- obedience." tell the whole story, which is why his neighbors are unable to agree as to whether he is a man or a mouse.

Few of us, it seems, are able to distinguish any large number of odors. A writer in nature, discussing the rise of the new chemical industry of prothat the sense of smell is as yet wholly uncultured. "In walking through the country," he says, "we can rarely identify a particular odor emanates." He suggests that the neglected sense of smell may be capable which color perception has attained.

There are signs already that shirt waists for men are to be tolerated, if not encouraged, at informal functions in and near New York in the coming summer. Members of yacht clubs and other out-of-door amusement associations which give evening entertainments at their clubhouses welcome the shirt waist as a happy solution for those occasions, and the shirt waist is therefore sure of meeting at least some measure of popularity.

woman 36 years old who walked 28 miles from her home to Newville, that state, one day lately, for the purpose of taking a ride on the cars to Carlisle, she never having seen a railroad train before, but when the engine came noisily and smokily into the station she was so frightened by its terrible aspect home again.

The recent panio in Wall street was a New York paper. A countryman, who heard of the excitement and had evidently read of the scenes, wanted to see the stock exchange. Some one directed him to the old building, which is in process of demolition. "Plumb wrecked! Clean destroyed! Well, well, that beats me!" was his comment.

A woman minister who married a couple in Pennsylvania a few days ago (and it is said to be the first marriage ceremony ever solemnized by a woman in that state) at once turned the marriage fee over to her husband. Ministers' wives have so long been accustomed to receive the wedding fees that and burned the place to the ground. the act seems to be quite just to the sterner sex.

What had almost become a happy tradition under the new business conditions by which women have been so generally admitted to equal competition with men in many of the vocations of life has had rude disturbance. A news item from Philadelphia relates the fact that a young woman, for five years confidential bookkeeper for a prominent firm, has been found short in her accounts $10,000, and has disappeared. So far as can be recalled, this is the most serious act of dishonesty yet charged to the account of the business woman. So successfully has she stood out against the temptation to emulate the conduct of her male associates in this direction that the world had come to regard her as safe against the embezzlement habit. The Philadelphia incident will, it is to be feared, tend to shatter this fond belief. Consolation may be found, however, in the reflection that the Philadelphia "embezzleress" stands conspicuously alone among the thousands of honest women who are faithful to the trust reposed in them amid a deluge of bad examples set by the stronger

With a business suit and a dgess suit, she says, he is "prepared for any occasion," and to choose such conventional clothing costs him hardly a moment's thought; whereas with every changing season she must completely rearrange her wardrobe, not the gowns alone, but the "gewgaws to match." ray herself in the manner that the general judgment of her sex approves, and to do this demands time, money and anxious meditation. She admits that she likes to feel well dressed. Yet what a relief it would be, she adds, if, like the sisters belonging to religious orders, women would put on uniforms and make no change except, say, from thick garments to thinner! At first thought this seems a reasonable proposition. It would be so if applied to the other sex; for man already pays an eatherie penalty for his efforts to save himself trouble in choosing his clothing. Members of secret societies evade the penalty for an hour or two when they decorate themselves with sashes and swords and feathers; but every other assemblage of men is necessarily a somber and cheerless spectacle. The members of any such gathering are clad so uniformly that one might logically demand they put on uniforms. Happily woman's instinct permits her to be more original. Probably the only reason why one particular woman suggests a uniform is that some penurious man has charged that she and her sisters sinfully waste their time and money on dress. But that is not true of many American women. For one family broken up by the wife's extravagance, a hundred are ruined by the husband's folly. Moreover, the woman who takes pains to show herself at her best does a good deed, since she adds just so much

Long-range weather prediction has vet to show that it is of the slightest value. Probably the June just ended has been in the Mississippi valley the hottest on record. Yet it followed an unusually late spring. The heated spell dropped down without an intimation of any kind. On Sunday, June 16, the maximum temperature suddenly soared up to 98.5, and there have been but three days since with a maximum of less than 96. The average maximum since the middle of the month has been 95.57. Last year, for the same half month, the average maximum was 83. Perhaps this indicates a hot summer, and perhaps it doesn't.
