THE FARMER'S WIFE.

Wisconsin Legislator Proposes a Plan Having a Tendency to Emancipate Her.

Modern invention and scientific research have done much to lighten the burdens of the farmer. Inventive skill has not only facilitated the operations of husbandry by supplying labor-saving machinery, but it has adapted many of the conveniences and comforts of the city to farm life. But inventive genius has done very little for the farmer's wife. It has relieved her of buttermaking through the multiplication of the modern creamery, but in doing so it has also diverted the profits of this industry to the farmer's pocket, whereas the proceeds of buttermaking formerly were conceded by custom and precedent to the farmer's wife.

The farmer has the telephone and free mail delivery, and he rides all day long on a sulky plow or on a reaper that cuts the grain and binds it into sheaves. It is doubtless only a question of time when machines will husk his corn and dig his potatoes. But the drudgery of the week's washing and ironing is still with the farmer's wife. While the lord of the fields rides in indolent comfort in a sulky plow the wife bends over a washtub or wrestles with the hot irons two days out of every week.

A promise of belated relief for the farmer's wife is seen in the proposition of Representative Frost, of Wisconsin, to establish a steam laundry at every crossroads in the state, to which the farmer's washing and ironing may be brought every week. As the state is dotted all over with creameries and cheese factories, it would be an easy matter to operate steam laundries in connection with them.

There is nothing impossible or visionary about Mr. Frost's plan. It embodies the principle of cooperation which has already been successfully applied to nearly every form of agricultural activity, from the old grist and sawmills to the modern creamery. Divest the farmer's household of this form of drudgery and then introduce in the kitchen some of the modern labor-saving devices that are used in hotels and the life of the farmer's wife will begin to approach that standard of ease and comfort long since attained by the farmer himself.—Chicago Record-Herald.

HELP IN THE HAYING.

Bucking Pole. Very Popular in Some Parts of the West. Saves Lots of Labor and Time.

Many western farmers use a bucking pole, made by taking a six by six-inch 12-foot pole and fastening several two by four-inch four-foot pieces with sharpened ends about 12 or 15 inches apart, so that when dragged along it will catch up the hay. Then bolt a few pieces of two by four on the six by six upright, to prevent hay from sliding back. A rope 12 feet long is attached to each end of the six by six pole, to which one horse or a team is hitched. The pole is started at the end of a windrow and when a load has been secured it is drawn to the stack. Hay can be stacked in this way in surprisingly quick time. But unless hay is stacked out well loss is liable to occur from rains.—W. J. Casson, in Farm and Home.

WATERPROOF WASH.

Walls That Have Been Covered with It Have Proved Quite Impervious to Water.

Use two washes for covering the surface, one of castile soap and one of alum and water. The proportions are three-quarters of a pound of soap to one gallon of water, and half a pound of alum to four gallons of water, both substances to be perfectly dissolved in water before being used. The walls should be perfectly clean and dry, and the temperature of the air not above 50 degrees Fahrenheit when the compositions are applied. The first, or soap wash, should be laid on when boiling hot, with a flat brush, taking care to form a froth on the brick work. This wash should remain 24 hours, so as to become dry and hard before the second, or alum wash is applied, which should be done in the same manner as the first. The temperature of this wash, when applied, should be 60 or 70 degrees Fahrenheit, and this also should remain 24 hours before a second coat of the soap wash is put on. These coats are to be applied alternately until the walls are made impervious to water. The alum and soap thus combined form an insoluble compound, filling the pores of the masonry and entirely preventing the water from entering the walls.

The foregoing method, recommended by the Architect of London, has been given a trial near Philadelphia with satisfactory results.

Bee Stings and Poison.

Bee poison is acid in reaction, but its effect is not due to formic acid, says Prof. A. Langer. The poison is free from bacteria and has the effect of checking slightly the growth of bacteria. Experiments showed 11 persons not sensitive to the bee poison, against 153 who were sensitive, when they began to keep bees. They who are sensitive to the poison should keep chemical antidotes and a syringe at hand. The hypodermic syringe may be used to apply the antidote at the point of the sting.
