THE NATION'S GRIEF.

IN the columns of this week's Post we are called upon to chronicle one of the three most sad and horrible events in the Nation's history, the shooting of President McKinley by Leon Czolgosz, an anarchist at Buffalo.

In 1865 Lincoln fell a victim to Booth and 1881 Garfield was assassinated by Giteau. Now in a period of peace, prosperity and American abundance the chief of this Nation is shot down in cold blood by a villain, fed, fostered and encouraged by anarchists of the most treasonable stripe.

The murder of Lincoln, at a time when the clouds of war were lifting and he was entering on a new era of constructive statesmanship in a spirit of charity and peace, was nevertheless the sequel of a period of bitter strife and passion, when the President appeared to many minds the embodiment of a hated power. The assassination of Garfield, however associated with partisan dispute, was the individual act of an imbecile.

As to the assassin who shot McKinley we can but class it with these other manifestations of the spirit of anarchy, the reckless hatred of organized authority, that have shocked the European world. It is a crime as inexplicable and as futile as the assassination of the President of the French Republic, and more appalling in as we have supposed ourselves removed from revolutionary violence.

It was only Thursday that the whole country was applauding President McKinley's happy speech at the Buffalo Exposition, its broad outlook, its calm and cheerful spirit, the sunny temperament it displayed. It seemed to mark the culmination of a fortunate career, that had carried him on to higher and higher usefulness, making him in some sense the representative of that wider life the nation has attained and of its broadening influence in the civilization of the world. It was a speech so full of hope and courage and good will that it stirred the national consciousness. But a few hours later came the distressing news of the cowardly assault, and congratulation gave place to sorrow and anxiety.

Mr. McKinley has happily outlived the narrow limitations of his earlier public life. The politician in him has grown into the statesman, and more and more he has broadened to the requirements of his high office. But even were it otherwise, there would be no thought-to-day but for his virtues, his high character as a man, his dignity as President. It is the President who has been wounded, and every loyal American recoils at the injury.

LITERARY NOTES.

PEPPER'S MAGAZINE.

"SHE'S My own Girl," by Andrew Sterling and M. J. Steinberg, two of the best song writers of to-day, is one of those catchy, melodious songs that every body likes. This song will be a success, we feel sure. It is published in the September number of the J. W. Pepper Piano Music Magazine, containing 21 complete pieces for the piano—10 songs, 11 instrumental—10 cents. For sale at all newsdealers, or by J. W. Pepper, 5th and Locust St. Phila., Pa.

COSMOPOLITAN.

FOURTEEN noted writers were sent by The Cosmopolitan Magazine to the Pan-American Exposition to study the most interesting features with a view to preparing the most beautiful souvenir of any Exposition ever made, from both a literary and an artistic standpoint. To "Mr. Dooley" was committed the case of the Midway. Judge Robert Grant went from Boston to give a bird's-eye view of the Exposition in his own most delightful style. Albert Shaw and Nicholas Murray Butler studied the value of the Exposition, and its educational influence. Charles Y. Turner, to whom was committed the color-scheme of the Pan-American, explains the methods by which he has produced such marvelous results. Arthur Brisbane, in his own incomparable way, takes the Incubator Baby and Niagara Falls for his subject. Director-General Buchanan contributes a very interesting paper on the organization of the Exposition. Professor Pupin, Col. David Porter Heap, Ella Wheeler Wilcox, Lavina Hart, Julian Hawthorne, and John Brisbane Walker are among others who consider the various phases of the Exposition.

EVERYWHERE.

WILL CARLETON's magazine Every Where, for September, is at hand, and its contents are up to its usual high standard of excellence. The wide range of topics covered by this magazine is astonishing. Every realm of human interest is represented by something that interests and refreshes the reader.

"The Belle of Manhattan", a romance of the old days when New York was a Dutch village, is in its seventh part. The story is told in verse by the gifted editor of the magazine, and it has all the charm of the writer's other work. An article on the "re-treering" of United States, chiefly from the viewpoint of the government work, describes a new phase of the subject. The sketch is illustrated by pictures taken by the government experts, on the preserves that are now being worked. An article on the return of the Jews to Palestine, brings out with a refreshing clearness, the fascinating idea of a Jewish state. Many Jews have already returned to Palestine, as colonists, but the idea that they will some time constitute an independent nation is not generally appreciated. Margaret E. Sangster has her usual quota of poems in this number, and Kate Upson Clark discusses with her usual brilliancy, the matter of the promiscuous use of firearms.

WHY is it that nothing is being done in the matter of getting the shoe factory started again? There are idle hands here and the money invested is worth interest. Nothing is gained by this delay. Those who have the matter in charge should either sell the plant or make arrangements to operate the plant. Other shoe factories are booming and prospering. This one will do the same thing if it is properly managed.

THE Selingsgrove water works plant is offered for sale by the sheriff. It was generally understood the plant was a good investment, but the bonds were evidently too heavy for the plant
