Will Answer All Ordinary Farm Purposes

At very little expense an ice house can be constructed that will hold and keep well all the ice needed for any farmer's family. We are using a small cheap building that keeps the ice as well as one we built 20 years ago, that cost four times as much Some farmers have an idea that they must forego this luxury, when almost any kind of a shed will preserve the ice very well, provided it is properly packed. Our present ice house is built as cheaply as possible, and took less than a day's work in construction. The cut shows the plan of the framework. We used white oak poles set into the ground about two feet Some cheap hardwood bill stuff of 2x4 and 2x6 pieces were used for A fair grade of pine stock boards, 12 inches wide, were used for siding. The siding was nailed on the inside of the poles, horizontally, better to resist lateral pressure from the packed fee and sawdust. A better grade of stock boards, one foot wide, furnished a good roof. Such a board roof should be made quite steep, to shed water, and, with kerfs cut on each edge, makes almost a perfect roof.

The cut shows how the kerfs are cut, one-half inch wide and three-eighths of an inch deep. The roof boards should be dressed on their upper surface, and the kerfs should be cut at least three-fourths of an inch from each edge. The mill operator

Nail the root boards on each edge, outside the kerfs, and drive one nail in the center of the board, as shown in cut. Our ice house cost us less than $15, and will last as long, and keep ice just as well, as one costing $100 or more. -J. H. Brown, in Rural New Yorker.

SWEET CORN PATCH.

One Trial Will Convince Any Intelligent Farmer That He Cannot De Without It,

No farmer knows the advantages derived from a good patch of sweet corn until he has tried it. When he has once use, but most excellent for helping out the pastures and keeping up the flow of milk. It is also good for hogs. They will devour it, stalks and all, unless fed too much at a time. They will chew up the stalks, taking all the juice out and leaving nothing but the fiber. It is one of the cheapest ways of making pork. But if you feed too much hogs will eat the ears first, and leave too much of the stalks.

Sweet corn can be planted from the 1st of May to the 4th of July with safety. The late planting should be some of the earlier sorts, such as Early Minnesota. But the early planting. up to the middle of June, may be Stowell's Evergreen. The latter variety makes a very large crop of fodder, with long, broad leaves, and large cars with deep grains. This variety cannot be cut and put in very large shocks, unless it is quite ripe, as it will mold. I have found no sweet corn, let it be ever so dry, that will stand stacking or putting in mows in large quantities. It must be left out in the shock, and drawn in only as fast as fed.

It is best suited for cutting and feeding in the green state, and for convenience should be planted near where it is to be fed. We use a wheelbarrow for hauling it, leaving it out in the field where it will be handy. The feeding is quickly done, and is cheaper than pasture. It is a good plan to have some temporary racks to feed in, or the cowe will sometimes muss it over and not eat it up clean. We sometimes use a large box, not so high but that the cows can eat from it, but high enough to keep them from stepping into it-I. N. Cowdrey, in Agricultural Epitomist

Mig Money In Small Farms. The small sized farm is the sort of farm I have always had faith in, belleving that a good living and pleasant home can be had thereon with less worry and contention than on the large farm ,and the tendency seems to be to decrease the size of the farms from what they have been nearly all over the land. As time goes on and the population of our country becomes more dense this will probably be the case in a larger degree than it is at present. I believe in a more thorough working of the soil-intensive farming, if you please. That is the kind that is the most profitable without doubt. -National Stockman.

Keeping Boys on the Farm. The boys on the farms crowd to the cities as soon as they are old enough to do so, but this condition of affairs is due to the fact that the boy is not taught to take an interest in farming. He must work before he goes to school, and also on his return home. Give him a pony and some little bantam chickens, as well as a small patch of ground for his use, to be grown to anything he prefers. If allowed to raise a pig and have the proceeds therefrom he will apprethe proceeds therefrom he will appreciate it. The men now in the cities who enjoyed the farms when boys will always go back to farm life if they have ways go back to farm life if they have no he opportunity.

What is more pitiable than to see a puny, delicate little child absolutely dying from neglect.
