The tannery is almost ready for operation. The place is attracting a large number of visitors. An experiment was made with the bark mill Saturday. There is a fan connected with the bark mill. The fan has a speed of 1900 revolutions per minute which carries the ground bark from the ground to the top of the building, then takes it 20 feet over the roof. The current of air is so strong that a stone half an inch in diameter will be carried along.

A Great Opportunity. The burned district of Jacksonville, Fla., is to be rebuilt at once, offering an opportunity of employment to workmen, and excellent prospects to contractors and capitalists. Jacksonville is reached from all directions by the Seaboard Air Line Railway System, which offers unexcelled facilities in the way of schedules and through car service to that point.

Why Zinc and Grinding? White lead chalks off; zinc prevents it; ground together they wear twice as long as lead alone; and that is Devoe. Zinc and grinding are necessary.

Letter to A. J. Crosgrove. MIDDLEBURGH, PA. Dear Sir: Perhaps you would like to take the agency for the foremost paint in the world: Devoe lead and zinc. It is right to put before you the facts as to why it is the foremost. (1) Best materials; lead, zinc, dryer, color, and linseed oil, ONLY used in it. (2) It contains nothing else whatever; no water, no alkali, no benzine, no petroleum, no fish oil, no barytes, no whitening—no adulterant. (3) Your state chemist not only has analyzed the paint, and verifies (1) and (2); but he is going to buy it and analyze it occasionally, and thus watch over the interests of your customers. (4) It is proportioned for wear. (5) It is mixed intimately and ground fine. (6) It is full-measure (231 cubic in. a gallon). (7) It is sold at so low a price as to make it cheaper than lead and oil. (8) It wears twice as long, and therefore costs less than half as much by the year. (9) You can refund the money if any customer is dissatisfied. (10) We are responsible; have been in business 145 years without a break, and are the largest paint-manufacturers in the United States. Yours truly, F. W. DEVOE & Co.

Embarrassing Situation. A certain young woman's benevolent disposition received a severe shock on a recent Sunday evening. She was at church and sat directly behind a well-dressed stranger, with a raveling hanging to his collar. Being one of those generous-hearted, whole-souled girls who grow up to be motherly old ladies, a friend to everybody in town, she thought how glad she would be if some kind-hearted girl would be as kind to her father, were he to go to church with a raveling hanging down his back, when the audience rose for the first hymn she concluded to pick it off.

Carefully raising her hand, she gave a little twitch, but it was longer than she supposed, and a foot or more appeared. Setting her teeth she gave a pull and about a yard of that horrible thread hung down his back. This was getting embarrassing, but determined, she gave another yank and discovered that she was unraveling his undershirt. Her discomfiture was so painful that chloroform would not have alleviated her sufferings nor a pint of powder hidden her blushes when the gentleman turned with an inquiring look to see what was tickling his neck.

A Home in the South. Escape the rigors of another Northern Winter and enjoy the delights of the Southland.

Nowhere can be found a more delightful climate than in our own Southland. Its winters are mild and balmy and in the most cases Summer does not bring with it such extremes of heat as are to be found elsewhere. In fact, the South is a land where extremes of climate are avoided, and consequently, is a healthful and altogether desirable location.

The tide of emigration has turned Southward, for it is not alone climatic advantages that this favored land excels, but its resources, the fertility of its soil and its mineral wealth and abundant water power commend it to the thoughtful consideration of any one who seeks a home where Northern thrift and enterprise may carve out success.

A Choice Bit of Homely Wisdom. Here is a choice bit of homely wisdom from the writer of "Jottings by the Wayside," in the Millinburg "Telegraph":

"Nine-tenths of the unhappy marriages are the result of green human calves being allowed to run at large in the society pastures without any yoke on them. They marry and have children before they have mustaches; they are fathers of twins before they are the proprietors of pairs of pants, and the little girls they marry are old women before they are 20. Occasionally one of these gosling marriages turns out all right, but it is a clear case of luck. If there was a law against young gobots sparring and marrying before they have cut all their teeth, we suppose the cusses would evade it in some way, but there ought to be a sentiment against it.

It is time enough for these bantams to think of finding a pullet when they have raised money enough to buy a bundle of laths to build a hen house. But they see a girl who looks cunning and they are afraid there will not be enough girls to go around and then they begin to get in their work real spry; before they are aware of the sanctity of the marriage relation they are hitched for life and before they own a cook stove or bedstead they have to get up in the night and go after a doctor, so frightened that they run themselves out of breath and abuse the doctor because he doesn't run too, then when he gets there he can't find linen enough in the house to wrap up a doll baby.

A Good Investment. One thousand mile tickets of the Seaboard Air Line Railway, which are sold at $25.00, are good over the entire System, and are also honored between Richmond and Washington by the Richmond, Fredericksburg & Potomac and Pennsylvania Railroads, between Portsmouth and Baltimore by the Baltimore Steam Packet Company (Bay Line) and between Clinton and Columbia, S. C., by the Columbia, Newberry & Laurens Railroad. This ticket is proving to be a great convenience to the traveling public, and its favorable conditions commend it to all. Ticket is good for one year.

Nelson Freed Dead. For the second time in five weeks, Death invaded the home of the family of Edward Freed, at 5:30 o'clock Sunday evening, just as the shades of evening, of that beautiful Autumn day began to close around us, the pure spirit of Nelson Freed winged its way to the God who gave it. Sept. 17, his sister, Sallie, passed away with that dreaded disease, typhoid fever. Scarcely a week had passed until the cruel fangs of fever fastened themselves upon two brothers, Charles and Nelson, and for three weeks the deceased suffered, and seemed to be hanging in a balance until finally the last faint hope of loving friends had to yield to the will of Him who is too wise to err.

Nelson was truly a model young man; he was loved and respected by all who knew him, and nothing but praise for his noble, kind and Christian deeds is heard from his friends and neighbors. He was converted six years ago and united with the United Evangelical church, of which body he was a consistent member, he being superintendent of the Sunday school, at the time of his death. He died as he had lived, trusting in God. Shortly before he passed away, in a strong clear voice he sang two verses of that beautiful hymn "Leaning on the Everlasting Arms," after which he offered a beautiful prayer, then fell peacefully asleep. He is survived by his parents, two brothers and three sisters, who have the sympathy of the entire community. His age was 19 years, 11 months and 11 days. The funeral took place Tuesday, Rev. A. D. Gramly.

Nelson was elected teacher of the primary school, in which capacity he was permitted to act but one week before he took sick. A FRIEND.

My full line of notions will be reduced on opening days. L. DUNKELBERGER.

PROFITABLE ADVERTISEMENTS.

The business man who does not believe in advertising, in these days, is so far back that he does not belong to the class of business men. The thing that troubles the business world most is what manner of advertising is best suited to the needs of each particular case. I feel safe in saying that there is no business of whatever nature that can not be improved with newspaper advertising. The newspapers and the magazines form the backbone of all kinds of publicity. There are also the circulars, folders, booklets, catalogues, street cars and posters. Statistics show that there is expended by American business men $600,000,000 every year for advertising. This is divided among about a million houses.

Unfortunately a great deal of money is wasted in advertising or rather in attempting to advertise. Certain principles of advertising are immutable and as reliable and as steady as the fixed stars. The manner of applying these principles in every-day use, on the other hand, are as intricate and uncertain as a panic on Wall Street. Too many men rush headlong into a proposition to advertise extensively without knowing whether they are on the right track or not. The wrong mediums might be selected, the space purchased might not be used properly. It is always safe to go slow at first, select your mediums carefully; do not try to cover too much territory at the beginning and do not attempt to say all you know about what you have to sell, in the first ad.

Use plenty of space to say what you have to say as one way to waste money is to spend too little of it for advertising space. Every business man should spend considerable time for planning and writing his advertisements. If he can not do that, he should employ a specialist to look after that part of the business for him. Too few business men really understand the art of getting all the value out of advertising space. Advertising, and doing it right, is as much a part of business as buying and selling. Space in a newspaper or a magazine is a commodity the same as dry goods and it is a much easier matter for a business man to buy a space of that character than it is to determine how to use it. His success will depend upon the latter.

Statements made in ads. should be truthful. They should contain not only the truth, but all the truth that a buyer should know. Make your ads talk like you or your clerk talks to the customers over the counter. The same argument used in the store or office to convince one man of the merits of your goods, if effective, will, if used in your ads, touch the hundreds or thousands or hundreds of thousands who read your ad, in the papers or magazines. Be clear, concise and to the point. Study your ads carefully before you send them out. If possible, let some one else read them and criticize them for you. All sentences should be short and clear. The important words and lines should be neatly displayed. Prices and descriptions should be given so the buyer will have a fair idea of the article you have to sell. Try with your ad, to create a desire for your article. Make the ad sell the article. That is what you want.
