It so happened that at the time the mouth of the volcano was bridged by irregular masses of scoriae that had fallen upon each the great mass so often seen in picother, forming a broken cap through tures. Torches, appearing smoky by which the sulphurous smoke rose in day and fiery by night, have often stifling clouds. No sooner said than done. Wrapping heavy shawls about our faces, so as to exclude the suffocating gases, we were soon toiling amid the ragged rocks that almost blistered our feet, keeping within touch of each other meanwhile in order to render any needed aid. But when once we had reached the farther side of the crater in safety, and climbed out of that "mouth of hell." no one was found to suggest a return by the same route.

It is not to be wondered at that on the descent an unusual seriousness prevailed. We had best realized our danger when it was too late to retreat; but the thought of it stayed with us all the long spring day. GOLDEN TEXT.—For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Saviour.—Luke 2:11.

Lesson Text .- Isaiah 9:1-7. At the was threatened with attack by the combined forces of Pekah, king of Israel, and Rezin, king of Damascus. Isaiah tries to strengthen the timid Ahaz, king of Judah, by pointing him to God as a sufficient helper. It is in this endeavor that we have this portrait of the Messianic King.

The king of Judah, Ahaz, was weak, timid and wicked. When Rezin, king of Damascus; and Pekah, king of Israel, combined against him, he was at a complete loss how to meet their attack. He tried every scheme he could think of except a hearty repentance and return to the service of God. The people as a whole took the same attitude, and the passage before us opens in 8:19 with a rebuke of those who sought guidance and deliverance from the spirits of the dead instead of from God, who had given the law and provided the testimony of His prophets for that purpose. Because of the people's refusal to turn to God they must pass

The Pursuit -Apparently Moses started first for the Isthmus of Suez, and then turned back to the shallowest part of the Red sea. People who suffer from habitual constipation with all its attendant ills, clogged stomach and bowels, sluggish liver, heartburn, indigestion, and thin and impure blood, are too apt to believe that the only remedy is violent purgatives. The contrary is the case. Such catharties, even if they do move the bowels, are irritating and griping, leave the stomach inflamed and enfeebled and the constipated condition recurs with greater difficulty of cure and the sufferer constantly growing worse. There is a laxative that moves the bowels without pain or griping, cleanses the stomach, sharpens the appetite, stimulates the liver, strengthens the nerves, and purifies the blood, while its marvellous tonic properties tone up the entire system and keep it healthy.
