

NOW BUILD YOURSELF UP.

Your Blood is Poor and Thin, Your Nerves Weak, You Are Run Down in Health.

Take Dr. Greene's Nervura, Best of All Spring Medicines, Most Wonderful Restorative and Strengthening Known to Science—Makes Pure Blood, Strong Nerves, Vigorous Bodies.

Spring finds you with thin, poor, impoverished blood, weak, relaxed, and unstrung nerves. You are without your usual strength, energy, and vim; you feel that you are out of order, without being exactly sick. The cold wind seems to blow clear through you, a storm chills your marrow, and you perhaps have rheumatism, neuralgia, biliousness or kidney disease because of your disordered condition. You must take the best medicine to give you renewed strength and vitality, the best blood builder and purifier, the best nerve strengthener and invigorator. Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy is the best medicine in the world to do all this. It purifies and enriches the blood, feeds, strengthens, and invigorates the nerves—in fact, it makes the weak strong, the sick well, and will cure your stomach trouble, your biliousness, your kidney trouble, rheumatism, or neuralgia.

Dr. Orlando Kiser, 954 Reeco Ave., Lima, Ohio, writes:

"Many years ago I was unfortunate enough to lose my health, and, while endeavoring to regain the same, gradually grew worse, until I became a complete wreck in every respect. My nervous system was entirely shattered, the nerves controlling the heart became weak and the heart's action irregular, which was a source of great alarm to me. I was unable to sleep, digestion was interfered with, and, generally speaking, I considered my time short for this earth. I became discouraged and gave up the thought of ever being a well man again. To-day I am a well man in every sense of the word, and all through the use of Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, of which I am proud to speak and stand ready to give a helping word to suffering humanity. My health is my greatest blessing, and words fail to express the gratitude I feel for Dr. Greene and his wonderful remedy."

Take Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy now for your spring medicine. This grand remedy has the confidence of the people as no other remedy has because it is the prescription of a regular physician, Dr. Greene, 101 Fifth Avenue, New York City, who has the largest practice and makes the most cures of any physician in the world, and who can be consulted without charge, by anybody, personally, or by writing about your case.

A KENTUCKY HERMIT

Has Not Set Foot on the Ground for Over Thirty Years.

Made a Peculiar Vow and Lives the Life of a Recluse, Although Possessed of Considerable Property and Good Health.

Living in solitude in the eastern portion of Nelson county, ten miles from Bardstown, is one of the most singular characters in Kentucky.

Now in his seventy-fifth year, he has not touched foot to the earth for over 30 years.

Basil Hayden, says the Philadelphia Press, is one of the wealthiest farmers in a district composed of 12 counties, and is descended from a family well known in the pioneer annals of the state.

Many of them have also been distinguished in the different lines of life.

One of his brothers, Raymond H. Hayden, for years held a controlling interest in one of the most famous distilleries in the United States. He, too, had peculiar ideas and lived a bachelor all his life, and at last died at an advanced age under singular circumstances.

He was found dead in his orchard a number of years ago, a bottle that had contained poison lying by his side. It was generally thought that he had committed suicide, but there were some who held the opinion that he had met with foul play and the poison bottle was placed near him for a blind.

Basil Hayden, "The Hermit," as he is known throughout the section in which he lives, in his youth was a social leader and very popular with a large circle of friends.

When the war broke out he entered the confederate army and made a good soldier to the end.

When he returned home he found his slaves free and his property greatly damaged. The emancipation of his negroes affected him seriously, and he brooded over it constantly.

He became sullen and morose, declining all overtures at friendliness on the part of his neighbors. He declared that the Lord had dealt harshly and unjustly with him in depriving him of his slaves, and out of revenge he registered a terrible oath that he would never again put his foot to the Lord's ground, and so far he has kept his vow.

Never since the registration of his vow has he appeared without his door, nor will he have converse with anyone save one or two, who are immediately connected with him, and then his words are of the briefest possible character.

His landed interests are extensive, and under the management of a competent overseer yield him a handsome income.

The overseer makes his reports to the queer old man in his darkened indoor retreat, who gives his orders and directions as tersely as possible.

He has never spoken to a woman since his self-imposed exile, nor will he allow one to be employed upon his place.

How he spends his time within his darkened room no one knows, but it is said that one employment is the counting of money, of which he is said to have a vast amount in gold and silver.

Be it as it may, a Bardstown banker twice a year visits Mr. Hayden, and through him the recluse settles his financial matters with the outside world.

Mr. Hayden is described as a fine-looking man, with a full beard and flowing hair. His confinement has bleached him until he is as white as an infant and his hands are as soft as raw cotton.

He had a sale of mules at his farm recently, and a number of animals were sold at fancy prices.

A large number of people were present at the sale, but never a glance was caught of Mr. Hayden. His instructions to the auctioneer were sent out by the overseer, written in a crabbed hand, and were very direct.

RAVAGES OF RABBITS.

In Some Sections of the Country the Loss Caused by the Little Rosters is Quite Serious.

In many of the less closely settled regions of our country, when snows are deep and food scarce, rabbits develop into a serious pest by gnawing the bark of fruit trees. Some items about this trouble from a recent bulleting by H. Garman, of the Kentucky station, may, therefore, not come amiss.

When the nursery is small it is possible to inclose it with a close slat fence that will "turn" rabbits and serve all the purposes of the ordinary fences required to keep out stock. In timbered countries, where rabbits are most troublesome, fences of this character may be cheaply built. Two types of fence suitable for the purpose are to be seen in the state. The most common is made of rough slats, four to six feet long and about three inches in width. The slats are securely fastened together from one to two inches apart with No. 11 wire, stout posts being set at intervals of 10 to 16 feet to insure stability and keep the panels upright. Since the slats can be adjusted to any unevenness of the ground, it is possible to exclude anything that a fence can reasonably be expected to turn.

The second type is made of shorter slats, three or four inches long, and these may be supplemented above by one or more wires stretched from post to post. J. Q. A. Rahm has built such a fence about his nursery. He uses slats three feet long, none less than half an inch thick, and sets his posts in spring, waiting until hot weather in August and September before putting up the slats in order to have the wire fully expanded at the start. The wires are simply crossed between the slats and are kept taut, while building, by a barrow loaded with about 1,000 pounds of stone and placed 100 to 200 yards ahead of the workmen. Near the barrow the wires are secured to a single tree made of a piece of stout timber, a log chain being passed around this and secured to a weighted barrow.

Rabbits are very easily caught, notwithstanding their well known cunning. One of the simplest and best traps used for the purpose is made of rough fence boards six inches wide and about two feet long. These pieces are nailed together so as to make an oblong box, one end of which is closed with a short piece of board, while the other is provided with a board consisting of another piece of board which slides down from above in grooves cut

RABBIT PROOF FENCE.

In the projecting sides or between slats nailed to the end, as shown in the cut.

The bottom piece may also be allowed to project so as to make the door more secure when closed. A small hole is bored through the top at about the middle of the box, and midway between this and the door a stick is secured in an upright position. Across the top of this latter a second stick is secured by a nail in a notch made in the upright one so that it will see-saw up and down. A third stick of small size is notched near one end and secured at the opposite end by means of a piece of twine to the end of the larger movable piece. This movable piece is now connected by twine at its forward end to the top of the door, when the trap is ready to set.

The door is elevated, the little stick passed through the hole in the top and secured by the notch to the front edge of the hole. When the rabbit enters, it pushes the projecting end of the stick before it, setting it free, allowing the suspended door to descend and thus cutting off its own escape. The traps may be baited with a piece of apple or cabbage placed in the end farthest from the door.—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

Vegetables in the Cellar. All vegetables keep better at a low temperature and, excepting in the severest weather, the cellar window may be kept open during the day, at least, if it is on the south side. It also helps to keep the cellar sweet and fresh. We know there is no need of an ill-smelling cellar. Vegetables properly buried and an open window in all suitable weather will prevent unsavory odors. Have a regular time for closing the window, as you do for any other "chore," and all will be well.

How Peace Was Restored.

"Theo," and her eyes, at the last members of the dying fire, you are not kind as a husband should be. You never give me any jewels."

"Jewels!" and his basso voice seemed to come from his heart. "You ask for jewels? Why, the rarest jewels gold could buy would only be superfluous." Then, for the first time for days, she kissed him.—Tit-Bits.

Wanted a Pointer.

Mr. Gadd (at the police station)—May I see the burglar who was arrested for breaking into my house last night?

Inspector (hesitatingly)—Well, I don't know. What do you want to see him about?

"Oh, there's nothing secret about it. I just wanted to find out how he managed to get into the house without waking my wife."—Pearson's Weekly.

Household Peace Preservative.

We are enabled, thanks to the courtesy of the publishers, to quote from Mr. Austin Borax's exhaustive work, "Domestic Peace" (now in press). The quotation is from chapter XVII, "Husband and Maid Servant."

"Never address a maid servant as you would your wife. Speak gently."—Boston Journal.

"He is very rich, but insufferably vulgar," she said.

"And yet you are going to marry him?" returned her dearest friend.

"Yes. You see, I've figured it out that I can look after his money and leave the vulgarity to him. He can care for it at the club, and he ought to be thankful, don't you think?"—Chicago Post.

Bassett—You cannot always judge a man's intentions aright.

Blair—No, I suppose not; but what are you driving at?

Bassett—When I called on Bowman last night he was playing on the violin. He said he was playing for his own amusement. If he hadn't told me I should have supposed he was playing out of enmity to the human race. Come to think of it, perhaps that's what he meant; there's a sort of amusement in wreaking vengeance, I suppose.—Boston Transcript.
