

DOES WANT ME?

The state fellow has been with all the strength and the energy still left in the hands of the doctor. According to the words of the child's mother, she does not want him. But another would tell a different story. She has noticed the weakness of the lungs, and if she saw him now, she would be glad to offer the strength which followed it, and to feel how much she wanted him, and wanted those "weak" lungs made strong, that she might not lose him.

For "weak" lungs, obstructed chest, cough, hemorrhage, weakness and emaciation.

No medicine so healing and so cheering as Dr. Pierce's Golden Discovery. It is especially good for children, building up weak with sound, healthy flesh. It is free from alcohol and narcotics.

Before this, my oldest boy (who is five years old), had a terrible cough, the whole winter and all summer. M. F. S. of Canton, Grovesville, Pa. says: "Physicians did him no good and nothing I could do did him any good. 'Discovery' had cured my cough so when everything else failed, I wrote to bring him back from the country, and carried him here to see if the change would do him any good. It did. He is at the time. She brought him back, giving him your 'Golden Discovery' for a time, he entirely recovered."

THE RUBBER LARYNX

Frenchman Carries a Strange Device in His Throat.

It is Made of Vulcanized Rubber and Virtually Indestructible—Invented by a Frenchman.

Paris has been much interested recently in a medical subject who was exhibited before the Academy of Medicine as the possessor of an artificial larynx, capable of speaking in monotone and of eating solid food. The apparatus, inserted above the trachea, is of vulcanized rubber, having a rubber diaphragm answering for the glottis, and vibrating in monotone as the patient speaks. A metallic grating prevents the ingress of food into the windpipe and such liquor as is swallowed falls into a funnel and drains to the esophagus.

According to cable dispatches, Great Britain, more than France, should be interested in this special case, with reference to the reported condition of King Edward's throat. Chicago physicians are recalling, in connection with this French case, the death of Emperor Frederick of Germany when an artificial larynx was ready for insertion in his throat, but when the judgment of the German doctor Von Bergmann was overturned by that of English Sir Morrill Mackenzie as to the necessity of the operation.

"Emperor Frederick might have been alive and well to-day had it not been for the influence of Mackenzie," said a well-known physician to a Chicago Tribune reporter. "Without the influence of the English throne was behind the interference, for if it had been known that Frederick had cancer of the throat the daughter of Queen Victoria would never have been given to Mackenzie. The influence of Mackenzie, however, staved off the operation just when the time was ripe, and the emperor died because of it. Now it looks as if that situation might come home to roost on the English throne."

According to Dr. F. Hollinger, a Chicago authority on throat troubles, however, the whole French sensation is considerably belated and out of date.

"The artificial larynx is nothing new," he said, "and in the hands of a surgeon who knows his business little danger or difficulty attends its use. It has been used since 1870 or earlier by Prof. von Bruns and has been much improved. It is an appliance that can be bought in any well-regulated instrument store, but its use is confined to extreme cases only. Tuberculosis or cancer is the disease which makes it seemingly necessary, but even then the use of the artificial larynx is avoided through the great improvement in methods of diagnosis and treatment of cases by way of the mouth.

"Cases where the artificial larynx has been worn for years are not rare. One of the most remarkable on record is the case of a German officer, who wore one for 35 years, in this time giving instruction in horseback riding and yet making his commands understood above the noise of horses' hoofs in the ring.

"In the French case, an improvement seems to have been made in that the patient is able to swallow. But the great disadvantage of all these appliances are the consequences of the pressure they exert on the living tissue, which often lead to sores and scars that make prolonged use a bore and even a danger to the patient."

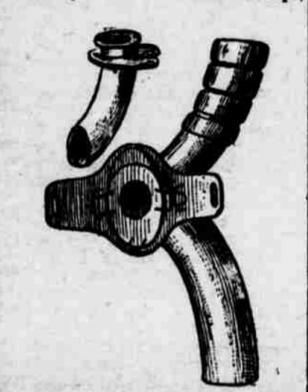

In brief, Dr. Hollinger's idea is that in almost any case a patient would better lose his voice than risk an artificial larynx.

Anton A. Frank, a Chicago surgical instrument dealer, has an artificial larynx in stock, though he has never sold one. It is of solid silver, with a glottis of the same material inserted. The mechanism is nearly four inches long, weighs two ounces, and costs $20.

To wear this the throat is opened just above the Adam's apple, and the corrugated end of the larynx is grasped by the vocal chords. The glottis drops into the lower tube, which extends into the windpipe, downward. Breathing through an auxiliary tube and the patient to talk, would have to close this tube with his fingers. The worst feature of the appliance, to the eye, is that a loop from it projects through the neck above the pomum Adami, through which a lace must be passed for tying around the neck.

Two years ago F. X. Ryzdewski, proprietor of a saloon and bowling alley in South Chicago, decided to save all the pennies he took in at his establishment. Accordingly he fixed a box in his office and began dropping the coppers in as they were received. The box was opened the other day. Four men spent most of the day counting the coins and placing them in bags. Then it was approximated that 65,000 pennies had been saved. Ryzdewski took the pennies to the Calumet national bank, where they were deposited.

The Burlington (Kan.) papers are boasting that within the present year more than $23,000 worth of monument have been erected in the Burlington cemetery, owing to the good times, which have enabled people to pay more than the usual attention to the resting place of their dead. There is something novel in the thought that the material condition of a town may be discovered in a glance across its graveyard fence.

An American woman traveling in the far east noticed that her relatives sent her magazines with the advertisements torn out in order to economize on postage. She wrote them that if they must tear out something to leave the advertisements and eliminate the reading matter.

The salt manufactured in Michigan during the year ending November 30 exceeded that made during any previous year. The total was 5,380,101 barrels. The industry was started about 30 years ago, and during this period the production was 94,993,384 barrels.

There are several states without debt, but no American city, with the single exception of Washington, the local debt of which is an obligation of congress. State debts are decreasing steadily; city debts are increasing.

It is well enough to make hay while the sun shines; but, adds the Philadelphia Saturday Evening Post, if there were no rainy weather there would be no hay to make.

The following paragraph from a recent letter of the chief of the weather bureau bears on the question whether the climate is changing? The climate has changed in recent times: "In the first place, instrumental data are not available in any part of the world for a longer period than 300 years, and even these are not accurate. The effect of man's occupancy of the earth is an unknown factor. Through his agency large areas of the earth's surface have been deforested and cultivated. Water has been diverted from streams and spread over the soil, thus transferring deserts into fertile plains. The latter, in turn, through the varying fortunes of empire have again become arid. While the total effect of such changes as man has wrought is probably small, who shall say that it is absolutely nil? In the second place, the records of the weather bureau show that during the last 50 years there have been three marked cold periods in the South Atlantic states, viz: from 1852 to 1857, both inclusive; from 1871 to 1875, both inclusive, and from 1892 to 1901, both inclusive, a total of 21 years out of 50. All of the years within the above-named periods were not uniformly cold. Indeed, within the last-named period there were two normal winters, viz: 1894 and 1898. The final conclusion appears to be that the statistics show no progressive change in climate in this region, and that there is no known a priori reason why there should be such a change."

"The odd things that schoolboys say sometimes when trying to be entertaining are often spoken of," Right at Hand, says a teacher, "but I think the limit was reached by one of my scholars a couple of weeks ago. I had been ill for several weeks and the boys were very unobtrusive by calling every day to inquire about my condition. When I was convalescent one of them came to see me. After the usual greeting he stood awkwardly shifting from one foot to the other. Finally he looked out the window, and a happy thought struck him. Woodlands cemetery was just a few blocks away. 'I'm awful glad you're better, Miss Jones,' he said; 'but I was just a-thinking that if you should happen to get worse, it is a good thing the cemetery is so handy to you.'"

A congress is officially known by its number; the present is the Fifty-seventh. It is becoming a common practice to designate them as the "first Crisp," the "third Reed," or the "second Henderson," which would be the every-day designation of this one. Occasionally a congress is nicknamed for some distinguished accomplishment, or by some fault alleged against it by the opposition, as the "billion-dollar congress" of 12 years ago. The practice of nicknaming a legislative body has many examples in early English parliamentary history. The list includes the "lock-learning" parliament, the "long," which became the "rump," and was followed by "Barebone's" parliament among others.

Getting Thin

is all right, if you are too fat; and all wrong, if too thin already.

Fat, enough for your habit, is healthy; a little more, or less, is no great harm. Too fat, consult a doctor; too thin, persistently thin, no matter what cause, take Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil.

There are many causes of getting too thin; they all come under these two heads: over-work and under-digestion.

Stop over-work, if you can but, whether you can or not, take Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil, to balance yourself with your work. You can't live on it—true—but, by it, you can. There's a limit, however; you'll pay for it.

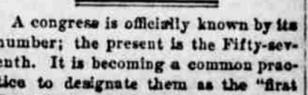

Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil is the readiest cure for "can't eat," unless it comes of your doing no work—you can't long be well and strong, without some sort of activity.

The genuine has this picture on it, take no other.

If you have not tried it, send for free sample, its agreeable taste will surprise you.

La Grippe Quickly Cured.

"In the winter of 1898 and 1899 I was taken down with a severe attack of what is called 'La Grippe,'" says F. L. Hewet, a prominent druggist of Winfield, Ill. "The only medicine I used was two bottles of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It broke up the cold and stopped the coughing like magic, and I have never since been troubled with Grippe." Chamberlain's Cough Remedy can always be depended upon to break up a severe cold, ward off any threatened attack of pneumonia. Gustave Dore's portrait of Dante is worth seeing—once. But once is enough. Some such look you notice on the faces of those who have suffered, and still suffer, much physical pain; people subject to rheumatism, gout, neuralgia, periodic headache, lumbago, or pain from some old lesion. This pain-habit puts its marks on them, as the custom of handling ropes crooks a sailor's fingers; or as too much riding of a bicycle stamps a worried expression on certain faces. THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Lesson in the International Series for March 24, 1902—The Ethiopian Converted.

THE LESSON TEXT.
(Acts 1:23-26.)

23. Then the Spirit said unto Philip, Go near, and join thyself to this chariot.

24. And Philip ran thither to him, and heard him read the Prophet Esaias, and said, Understandest thou what thou readest?

25. And he said, How can I, except some man should guide me? And he desired Philip that he would come up and sit with him.

26. The place of the Scripture which he read was this: He was led as a sheep to the slaughter; and like a lamb dumb before his shearer, so opened he not his mouth.

27. In his humiliation his judgment was taken away; and who shall declare his generation? for his life is taken from the earth.

28. And the eunuch answered Philip, and said, I pray thee, of whom speakest thou the prophet this? of himself, or of some other man?

29. Then Philip opened his mouth, and began at the same Scripture, and preached unto him Jesus.

30. And as they went on their way, they came unto a certain water; and the eunuch said, Here is water; what doest thou bidder me to be baptized?

31. And Philip said: If thou believest with all thine heart, thou mayest. And he answered and said: I believe that Jesus Christ is the Son of God.

32. And he commanded the chariot to stand still; and they went down both into the water, both Philip and the eunuch; and he baptized him.

33. And when they were come out of the water, the Spirit of the Lord caught away Philip, that the eunuch saw him no more; and he went on his way rejoicing.

34. But Philip was found at Azotus; and passing through, he preached in all the cities till he came to Caesarea.

GOLDEN TEXT.—With the heart man believeth unto righteousness; and with the mouth confession is made unto salvation.—Rom. 10:10.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

Read not only the lesson as given above, but also the verses just preceding, beginning with the 26th. Read also Isaiah 53. The time of this lesson was the summer A. D. 35, 36 or 37, and occurred in the uncultivated region southwest of Jerusalem. The following is a brief analysis of the passage to be studied:

Philip's directions..... Acts 8:26-29
Philip's exposition..... Acts 8:30-32
The eunuch baptized..... Acts 8:36-40

Philip's Directions.—The journey which Philip was bidden to take was long and lonely and seemed to lead him away from the place of greatest usefulness. Yet he prepared at once to go. The road to which he was sent was rough and uninhabited. The Ethiopian eunuch seems to have been a Jewish proselyte, though that fact is not stated, and nothing more is necessarily implied than that he was interested in the Jewish religion. His position was such that he could travel in comfort, though he does not appear to have had much of a retinue with him. The depth of his religious interest is shown in his possession of a copy of the prophecy of Isaias, probably the Greek translation, and in his reading it as he went on his way. The chariot did not move so swiftly but that a man on foot could easily keep up with it, and Philip went on in this way until invited to enter the chariot.

Philip Explaining the Scriptures.—The eunuch was reading aloud (no one ever thought of reading in any other way in those times), and the reading furnished Philip with a means of approach. It is easy to imagine the difficulty a man must have felt in understanding Isaias's purpose, who was unfamiliar with Hebrew traditions and was reading the words for the first time, or at most had had small opportunity for studying them. The passage he was reading was the familiar one in Isaias 53, which has been understood by Christians in all ages as especially referring to Christ. The eunuch's difficulty was especially with regard to the person of whom the prophet was speaking. He had no doubt that a well-informed Jew would be able to clear away the difficulty. Philip's answer to the question was probably a simple relation of the main events of Jesus' life. He would of course follow this narration with a statement of the reasons for believing that Jesus fulfilled the prophecies of the Old Testament.

The Eunuch Baptized.—Philip's account of Jesus must have included some information as to the practice of his followers, since the proposition for the baptism came from the eunuch himself. There is no way of knowing what water was found that suggested the thought, but it was pretty surely some wayside fountain. Notice the omission in the Revised Version of Philip's answer to the eunuch's question and the Ethiopian's confession. They are probably additions by some scribe. It does not seem to have been the practice in the apostles' time to require anything more than the expression of a desire for baptism before administering the rite. Philip's disappearance may have been, probably was, miraculous. It is not, however, necessary to suppose that he was transported through the air to Azotus. The meaning of the statement is that Azotus was the first place where he was recognized. From that point he journeyed to Caesarea, preaching on the way. Caesarea became his home, and there he afterwards entertained the man who had driven him away from Jerusalem (21:8).

PRACTICAL SUGGESTIONS.

The Word of God should be read daily—even when upon a journey. To read it often is to love it.

The Word of God when thoughtfully and candidly read quickens the soul with new questions.

The Word of God, in every part, when rightly understood bears convincing testimony to Christ.

The Word of God, when it has convinced one of duty, should be immediately obeyed.
