The Officers of the Lewistown Division are considering the matter of changing the time of the afternoon train leaving Sunbury for Lewistown. They would like to know whether it would suit the people along the line better to have the train leave Sunbury at 5:25 p. m. instead of 2:15 p. m. We think that the change would be an improvement over the present arrangement, as at present, no one can leave a station on this division and go any further than Sunbury or Lewistown and get back the same day. Under the other arrangement, a trip could be made as far as Lock Haven, Mt. Carmel, Wilkesbarre, Harrisburg and intervening stations and return the same day. One could leave Philadelphia at noon and get home the same day. Middleburg should have this train and so should every town along the road, but as Selingsrove would not be satisfied without an afternoon train, and Middleburg, the county seat, needs the afternoon train to accommodate the people from the East who have a few minutes business here, instead of running the afternoon train only to Selingsrove, it should run at least to Middleburg.

NO RELATION.
 By Lady Cook, nee Tennessee Claflin of London For the Post.
 Such is the heading of a great London Daily in its relation of the claims of two poor women under the "Workmen's Compensation Act, which have just been tried at the Merthyr County Court.
 "Maria Jones claimed against the Dowlais Iron Company, as personal representative of D. W. Thomas, collier, sixteen, who was killed on April 5th, at one of the respondent's coal-pits, by a fall of the roof. Respondents objected that the relationship between applicant and deceased (a natural son) was not legitimate, and his honour, having regard to the ruling in Dickenson and the North Eastern Railway Company, dismissed the claim.
 "In the matter of Ann Prosser and Messrs. Hills, Plymouth Colliery Company applicant claimed on account of the loss by death through an accident of Rees Prosser. She had been married to the deceased twelve years, and lived with him until his death, but being the sister of the deceased's wife, was not his lawful wife. On that ground the claim failed. In both cases sums of ten pounds paid into court by the respondents for funeral expenses were ordered to be paid out, and no expenses were allowed."
 We quote the foregoing as two pertinent instances of the brutality of our laws in such cases, and of the need of a sweeping redress. For years we have publicly advocated the legal recognition of all parental relationship whether legitimate or otherwise, and have pointed out that the cruel disabilities of a woman who marries her deceased sister's husband, are based upon an extremely doubtful interpretation of a passage in Leviticus. Unfortunately, the Bill for legalizing marriage with a deceased wife's sister, although passed triumphantly through the "Commons" by overwhelming majorities, was defeated in the "Lords" solely through the action of the Lords Spiritual. With a few honourable exceptions the Right Reverend and Most Reverend gentlemen, after the manner of a Traders' Union, combined in a solid phalanx for the preservation of theological conceits against moral and civil equity and natural rights. Bishops who were strangers to the very door-keepers or who seldom occupied their episcopal benches, rushed to Westminster with indecent haste to block the latest effort in the cause of freedom. We owe these purblind legislators few thanks for anything they have ever done, and least of all for this, and we are well assured that whatever the duration of their ecclesiastical power may be, their secular authority is fast approaching its end. The handwriting is on the wall and can be read by him who runs. The fair spirit and good sense of the English people are already in rebellion against the mediaeval pretensions of priestly peers, and every legislative success of theirs against the liberties of the nation will only hasten their Parliamentary extinction. But for their so swelling the minority it was able to outvote the majority of the secular Lords over the last Bill. Mrs. Ann Prosser would have received substantial compensation from Messrs. Hills for her husband's death, whereas the poor woman has had to pay his funeral expenses and has been probably ruined by the costs of prosecuting her claims. All this may be strictly in accordance with the ordinary notions of employers and capitalists, but for the Right Reverends and Most Reverends, this is "to visit the widows and fatherless in their affliction" with a vengeance, and utterly opposed to the apostolic teaching. There is a large party in this country which desires to consider marriage as a purely civil contract for mere mutual convenience, to be dissolved by mutual consent if desired, and the Bishops have given practical emphasis to this doctrine, and have decided that those who have been "united in holy matrimony" may, notwithstanding, have no relation to each other.
 Merthyr is the chief industrial centre of the Welsh principality, and consequently should contain no small number of "illegitimates." There must be hundreds of mothers there in the same position as Maria Jones before her unfortunate boy was crushed to death by the falling roof of a coal-pit. The boy appears to have been the mainstay of his mother who was neither maid, wife, nor widow. To console her for the loss of her son the law informs her that he was not legally related to her,
