"What do I consider essential to a young man's success in life? Well, industry, perseverance and a definite goal are three of the necessary factors. The young man must know what he wants to do; must work hard to accommish it, and must not be dismayed or turned from his course by discouragements.

"What measure of success I may have attained has been due largely to these three things. I have been a busy man for more years than most men, and I have always noticed that the man who made up his mind to succeed, almost invariably did so, if he was made unto of the right material."

Spenking from an experience of more than half a century of Wall street and its methods, Mr. Sage said:

The Law Broken. - By a solemn covemant the Israelites bound themselves to keepall the law, moral and civil (24:3-8). this covenant they broke when they made the golden calf. In making this there was no intention to turn away from Jehovah, but to have a material representation of Him which would help them in their worship. They broke, not the first, but the second commandment.

The Civil Law.- Ex. 20:22-23, called the "Book of the Covenant," is the earliest of all Hebrew legislation, some of the laws coming down from the early days in Egypt. It treats of (1) worship, (2) rights of slaves, (3) assaults on persons, (4) domestic animals, (5) property, (6) purity, (7) kindness, (8) injustice, and (9) the sacred seasons.

The Calf Worshiped. Moses and Joshua had gone up into the mountain. The people had been waiting that they would return, but still they for leadership. There is the surges-"The speculative fever has been the tion of a succe in the expression "as Although Mr. Sage is far past the age | basest | logratitude. | Perhaps | it | is through, or, in other words, who leads not or does not lead them out again, to spoken of in the same time of value. MOST ANCIENT OF CROWNS.

The Iron Crown of Lombardy, Which Is Said to Contain a Nail from the Savior's Cross.

Among the crowns preserving the ancient form more than any others now worn is the so-called iron crown of Lombardy, which is the most treasured national possession of the Italian kingdom, says an article by the Duke of Argyle, in Leslie's Monthly. It is of golden "plaques," or panels rather longer than they are high, but small in size, so as not to rise above the top of the head. They form, indeed, only as jointed band of foliaged, embossed relief-work, and one narrow wire of iron binds them together in the insid this wire having the repute of being hammered out from one of the nails of our Saviour's cross. It was the enlargement of these panels in other it. crowns which led to the cross-bamil or "closure" of the crown. Look at the German crown and the Austrian, both adaptations of that of the old emperors of the "Holy Roman Empire." The "arch of empire" became the result in the crown of the necessity for fastening panels for protection for the head from any stroke from above delivered in war.

They Were Slow Conches.

The old newspapers of Boston were "slow coaches," there is no denying it, says Frank B. Sanborn, in the Bookman; but the country itself was slow compared with the modern pace. This was a favorite jest when Mr. Sanborn entered college at Harvard 50 years ago: "Why is the Advertiser like a poor man's plaster?" Because it is good for a week back." A few years earlier, J. K. Mills, at their club, had dared to say to Nathan Hale, then at the top of Boston journalism, when the veteran editor was saying, "Such a thing happened of a Saturday; I know it, because that day my son Charles was born. "No, Mr. Hale, your son Charles was born of a Wednesday, but you didn't find it out till Saturday."

Solicitude Misdirected.

In a London safe deposit vault recently the renter of a safe, anxious for the spiritual welfare of one of the janitors, said, while they were in the vault together: "Are you prepared to die?" For answer the janitor instantly pinned the questioner to the wall by the throat. Assistance arrived and the unfortunate renter was carried out, half "throttled." Explanations ensued and it was the discovered that an inquiry after his spiritual weifare had been construed by the janitor as the preliminary to a murderous attack.
