

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Don't Know It.

How To Find Out.
Fill a bottle of common glass with water and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys; if it stains your linen it is evidence of kidney trouble; too frequent desire to pass it or pain in the back is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

What to Do.
There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in 50c. and $1. sizes. You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful discovery and a book that tells more about it, both sent absolutely free by mail, address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper.

TRUTH ABOUT VERNE.

Famous French Author has Never Been Blind and is in Excellent Financial Condition.
There have been so many contradictory reports recently about the condition of Jules Verne, the most famous writer of purely imaginative fiction that the world has ever known, that the correspondent of the New York World visited his home the other day at Amiens for the purpose of ascertaining the exact truth.
It has been said that Jules Verne had become blind, that his eyesight had been restored, that he was in destitute circumstances, and that he was living in comfortable retirement upon the proceeds of his successful novels.
The truth is that he has never been blind, and that he is in excellent condition financially, a man of wealth, in fact, as fortunes are estimated in Amiens. His eyes, however, have long been a source of trouble and anxiety to him.

He lives in a plain house on the Boulevard Longueville with his devoted wife, who speaks of him with great admiration and recites his virtues with eloquence. It was she who received the representative of the World.
"Yes, he has some trouble with his eyes," she admitted, "but he has not been hampered with his work, the study where he works being so arranged as to let in only a ray or light. Of course, the operation for cataract will be postponed as long as possible, on account of the danger which might result from it at his age."
In order to show how exaggerated the newspaper reports were, Mme. Verne went out on the porch and called: "Jules," and in came the novelist, in his morning gown.
Tall, with his white curly beard, he looked the picture of strength. The half-closed condition of his eyes was the only indication of his infirmity.
He is now 74 years of age. The idea that his American friends were concerned about him was gratifying to him, and he began at once to give many details about his work. He expects not to lay down his pen until he has reached his hundredth book.

Gen. Neville G. Lyttonelton Who Succeeded Kitchener as Commander in South Africa.
Gen. Neville Gerald Lyttonelton, who succeeds Lord Kitchener as commander in chief of the British forces in South Africa, was appointed to the command of the Fourth division at the front in 1900, and has also been at the head of the Fourth brigade and the Second division. Born at Hagley, Worcestershire, he is the third son of the fourth Baron Lyttonelton, and one of the many old Etonians who have served in the war. He entered the Rifle brigade in 1865, went through the Fenian rebellion in Canada in the following year, receiving the medal and clasp; the Jowaki expedition of 1877; and the Egyptian campaign of 1882, including the battle of Tel-el-Kebir, for which he was mentioned in dispatches, awarded a brevet-lieutenant colonelcy, the medal and clasp, the bronze star, and the fourth class Osmanieh. In the Nile expedition of 1898 he commanded a brigade, was present at the battle of Khartoum, was mentioned in dispatches, and promoted major general. His appointments in time of peace include A. D. C. to the viceroy of Ireland, 1868-73; military secretary to the governor of Gibraltar, 1883-85, and to the governor of Bombay, 1885-90; A. A. G. at the war office, 1895; and assistant military secretary, 1897-98. He held a command at Dublin until 1895, and was head of the Second infantry brigade at Aldershot in 1899 and 1900. Gen. Lyttonelton is married to Katharine, youngest daughter of the Right Hon. James Stuart-Wortley.

LIVE STOCK FEEDING PLATFORM.

Will Pay for Itself the First Year on Any Farm Where Many Hogs Are Kept.

The time for feeding hogs will soon be here again, and with grain at such prices as now indicated, it will pay to arrange for feeding without waste. There is a leak somewhere in the management of most farmers, through which the profits steal away. Most farmers feed corn in the ear, to hogs, and throw it on the ground. When the ground is frozen this method will do, but when the ground is soft or muddy there is lots of waste. The accompanying illustration shows a feeding platform photographed by the writer on one of the large hog-raising farms in this community. It is, in my opinion, a cheap, ideal platform for feeding corn to hogs, shelled or in the ear. The platform is about 6x12 feet, sufficiently large to accommodate eight or ten fair-sized hogs. The owner of this farm has several just such platforms which he uses in feeding his hogs, so that each litter is kept separate from the others. The platform itself is made of two-inch plank 12 feet long. It is considered best to use plank on account of the wear and tear. I have used both the two-inch plank and inch boards; the inch stuff will do, but will not last as long.

In framing the platform the planks should be mounted upon 2x4s set up edgewise. The 2x4s should be of good pine or oak; either will last well. The plank are securely nailed to the 2x4s. On one side of the platform is the trough, and this is a good place for it. It gives the hog a good place to stand while drinking and be free from mud and slush in very bad weather. At the other side and end are nailed 2x4s to keep the corn from working off of the platform when the hogs are eating. The opposite end has no cleat but is left open to give a place to clean the platform readily after each feeding. When building the platform let it incline toward the uncleated end so that in rainy weather the water will wash and clean the platform.
The amount of material required to build this platform is less than 200 feet, and at the price of hemlock plank in this market (about $17 per M.) it is so cheap that no farmer should try to go along without. The platform will pay for itself the first year and it will last many years.—Leo C. Reynolds, in Ohio Farmer.

RAZOR-BACK CROSSES.

Experiments Now Being Conducted May Increase the Profits of the Swine Department.
The fecundity, vigor and digestive propensities of the razor-back hog is to be utilized in the production of good hams and bacon. Experiments are being conducted at the Wisconsin experiment station in crossing the razor-back boar, direct from the wilds of Arkansas, with Berkshire and Poland-China sows. The first cross is said to be a great improvement over the male parent, both in looks and quality of the same pork. Subsequent generations are expected to accentuate the most desirable qualities of the wild hog, while retaining the keen appetite and natural fecundity of the wild hog. This is a very interesting as well as important experiment. At one time the rough, wild hog of the forest was the only source of pork that our forefathers knew anything about. Thousands of years were required to improve such rough stock to its present satisfactory condition. It is not to be wondered at that during all the necessary inbreeding for special points, the final progeny should lose some of its original digestive and productive vigor. If these desirable qualities can now be extracted from the original type of wild boar and incorporated into our present symmetrical breeds by judicious crossing, the profits from the swine department of the farm will be still greater.—Agricultural Epitomist.

MEAT IS HIGH EVERYWHERE.

Beef and mutton are high in England. Beef and mutton are high in Australia. Beef and mutton are high in France, Germany and on the continent generally. Beef and mutton are high in this country, but not the highest of the world's markets. Beef and mutton are high almost everywhere. Civilized man eats. What has done all of this ever the universe is human hunger and the improved condition of the masses. Cold storage is at such an improved stage that the congestion of products at certain far-away centers is relieved by taking these cheaper meats to markets where they are needed and can be used. Then droughts and stock diseases have helped largely. The world is meat hungry and is paying the price for its food.—National Provisioner.

RAISING BEEF CALVES.

At the End of Six Months They Should Be Ready for the Market at the Top Price.

"In successfully growing calves I prefer an April calf of good beef stock," says a correspondent of the Indiana Farmer. "The mother should be well taken care of, fed on plenty of clover hay, ground corn and oats, mixed half and half. Let the calf have all the finest milk that it wants; then take it away from the cow and put it in a stable handy and where the cow can see it, if it is bad weather. If the weather is nice put the cow on a good pasture of rye, with the calf just over the fence at a straw shed or stack, where it can get the benefit of the sun. The calf should be turned to the cow morning, noon and night for the first two weeks; then the calf will eat if it is where it can get something green. There should be a small lot of rye fenced off for the calf, and that, with plenty of milk morning and night, will be all that is required for the next two weeks. Then the calf will be one month old. On May 1 there should be a patch of oats ready for the calf, with a box nailed up under a shed where the calf can go out of bad weather and eat a quart of ground oats and corn, equal parts, morning and night for the next month. Feed just after turning the cow out. During the third month, June, the calf should be treated the same as the second, except a little more ground feed, say one-half pint more. The fourth month it should have a patch of peas to run in, and the feed should be cut down to one quart morning and night. The fifth month the calf should have three pints of ground oats and corn and one of oil cake or flax-seed meal given just after being turned to the cow, with the pasture increased by letting run on a fresh rye patch. At the end of August it will be six months old, and should be ready for market at the top price for calves. I should have said at the end of two weeks the calf should be trimmed and dehorned if a horned calf, and during all this time the calf should have fresh, clean water where it can go and drink at will."

PROTECT YOUR STOCK.

No Farm Should Be Without a Well-Constructed Pasture or Paddock Shed.
Where cattle or other animals are kept in a pasture both day and night, there should be some protection provided against rainstorms and heavy showers. A shed well adapted to this purpose is shown in the accompanying illustration.
It is low, and has one side open. This open side should face the quarter from which cold rains are least likely to come, the direction varying in different parts of the country. No floor is required, thus saving much lumber. The numerous windows are provided with drop shutters, to be kept open as shown, thus
