A little daughter of a clergyman was not feeling well and had to be put to bed early. "Mamma," said she, "I want to see my dear papa."

"No, dear," said her mother, "papa is not to be disturbed just now." Presently came the pleading voice: "I want to see my papa."

"No," was the answer, "I cannot disturb him." Then the four-year-old parishioner rose to the question of privilege.

CHARGES ARE DENIED

Schools in the Philippine Islands Are Non-Sectarian.

Catholics Not Discriminated Against and Proselyting Is Forbidden—Father McKinnon's Educational Proposition.

The bureau of insular affairs of the war department has made public the report of Frank H. Bowen, acting general superintendent of public instruction for the Philippine Islands, upon the charges made in the United States against the school system of the islands alleging that it was used as a proselyting agency against Catholics and generally used to the prejudice of Catholicism.

These charges were forwarded to Manila and the reply was made to Acting Gov. Wright.

The report of Superintendent Bowen is a general and specific denial of the charges. He says that of 20 persons who have been division superintendents only one has ever been a clergyman. Three division superintendents were appointed from a list submitted by leaders of the Roman Catholic church in the United States.

In this connection the report says: "The question of the religious belief of applicants and appointees was never considered until late in 1901. At that time a special list of applications, gathered by the authorities of the Roman Catholic church in the United States, was sent to the civil governor of these islands and transmitted to the general superintendents. From these special lists 23 division superintendents and 22 teachers were appointed. In reporting these appointments to the civil governor the general superintendent stated: 'I have had much difficulty in finding people in this list of applications who are possessors of the educational preparation and teaching experience which is required of other appointees in this department. Those who have not been selected seem to be wholly unsuitable.'"

The only departure from strict nonsectarianism in the conduct of the schools was a provision of the Philippine commission, which made it lawful for a priest or minister of any established church in the pueblo where a public school is situated to teach religion for one-half hour three times a week in the school building to pupils whose parents have expressed a wish for such instruction.

Concerning proselyting, the report says: "Not only is no proselyting allowed or attempted in any of the public schools, but inquiry of the leaders of the four principal Protestant denominations here brings out the fact that so far as is known by these leaders there is not a native Protestant Sunday school teacher in the entire archipelago."

The statement that not one-third of the Protestant teachers ever taught a day before going to the Philippines and that the Catholic teachers are sent on to the distant provinces is emphatically denied.

Father McKinnon, a priest officially connected with the public school system in Manila, who went to that place as chaplain of the First California regiment at the outbreak of the Spanish-American war, has urged the authorities of the Philippines church to send 400 of the younger native priests to America for a couple of years' training in seminaries in the United States.

Father McKinnon says he discussed this plan with the late President McKinley, who approved it, as it was believed that in this way Filipino clergymen would become imbued with the broad spirit of American priesthood. It is believed possible that money for carrying out this project could be raised in America. It is estimated that the seminary expense of each priest would be about $150 a year. The natives are favorable to the plan. The fact that the native priests speak a different language from those in America would be no hindrance, because all Catholic clergymen have a common knowledge of Latin, and besides a number of priests in the United States speak Spanish.

Monarch of the Forest. A few weeks ago there was discovered east of Fresno, Cal., in the Sierras, the largest tree in the world. At the time it was said that it measured 150 feet in circumference. John Muir, the naturalist, has visited the tree and reports that it measures at the base only 109 feet, and at four feet above the ground is only 97 feet in circumference. It is, however, larger than "Gen. Sherman" and "Gen. Grant," which heretofore were the recognized monarchs of the forest.
