Has he the same opportunity now that he had 25 or 50 years ago? Can be begin had 25 or 50 years ago? Can be begin now, as he did then, with nothing, and by his intelligence, fidelity and "push," create a place and carve out a fortune for himself? Certainly conditions have greatly changed, but it is by no means certain, declares the Youth's Companion, that opportunities have lessened. A large company of men gathered recently to do honor to an old friend and employer on his eightieth birthday. By his inventions and improvements in processes he had "the iron master." He rose from the working ranks under the old condireferences also to the head of the great shipping combination, the presthe world, and the largest contractor in the world. They represent, in part at least, the new conditions, yet every one of them has risen from the ranks. It is doubtful if the chances are less frequent; it is not doubtful that the demand for qualities which command suc cess has increased. Moreover, the rewards have grown larger, and the time in which they may be won has short ened. Specialization, concentration. are the order of the day, and the qual ities most in demand are executive qualities. It is an age of great under takings. The man who succeeds best is he who can not only work efficiently himself, but can show others how to work. to Yourself. in the least self-needs and self-being. Our first and highest duty is to make the best of ourselves. We can never make men or things better until we have succeeded therein in some casure. Men may call it agotism, says a writer in the Philadelphia North American, just as Pitt char acterized Gen. Wolfe's boasting the day before the English army embarked for Canada. But Pitt forget all that when he heard how Wolfe rose from a sickbed to achieve the glorious victory of the Heights of Abraham! So will men forget their sneering when through personal care and attention we fit ourselves for the accomplishing of some high work. All we shall ever be able to accomplish, either in ourselves or in others. must begin in ourselves. It is most necessary we should set our standards sufficiently high to rise above the requirements of this world; but having done that, let us stick to the mark, despite what others say or think or do. All you can make of your life you alone must make. You may become a borrower, and thus constitute yourself only a depository for other people's thoughts and opinions and principles. Or you can be your own banker, drawing on yourself for the principal, and lending it out at interest. One thing admits no disputing-what you have not you cannot give! Apparent selfishness is often the purest unselfishness. And I am not sure there can be any finer perennial resolution

Americans will hardly be able to repress a smile at the naive comment of an English tailor-one of the men who came over with Mr. Alfred Mosely to study American labor conditions. "We di not find as much shoddy as we expected," he says. "The tailoring establishments in this country are up to date and the material is good, as is also the workmanship." All the best woolens used to come from abroad, but that is past. In the manufacture of certain kinds of cloth, Great Britain and Germany still lead; but as a whole, American woolens of to-day are as attractive in design, as honestly and as durable as those which are imported.

Owing to close confinement in business I suffered from a bad touch of indigestion, so much so as to cause me intense pain. My tongue was caoted; had severe pains around my eyes and felt miserable. Through the persuasion of a friend I tried Ripans Tabules, and after taking them for two days I obtained some relief. I kept on taking them, and can safly say they have cured me.
