WANTED—YOUNG MEN to prepare for Government Positions. Fine Openings in all Departments. Good Salaries. Rapid Promotions. Examinations soon. Particulars Free.

Inter-State Cor. Inst., 5-16-3m. Cedar Rapids, Ia.

Difference Settled.

The Town Council did not close a contract with H. G. Frederick and Frank Bradenbaugh of Millersburg, last Friday night. There was harmony on all questions except the disposition of the plant in 15 years, the time fixed for the expiration of the contract. The Council will meet again this (Wednesday) evening to consider the matter more fully. The question at issue is a very important one and should be carefully considered.

[Later. The difference has been settled by Fredrick and Bradenbaugh yielding the point at issue and it is expected that the contract will be signed this week.]

Soldiers Attention.

The Snyder County Monument Association will meet in the G. A. R. Hall, Middleburg Saturday May 16th, at 1 p.m.

LATEST FANCIES.

Fashion's Dictates For Spring. Spring Styles that Furnish Wide Latitude for Choice.

Distant notes of change in the fashions are in the air, although for the Spring and Summer the pace is pretty well set. For example, large hats continue to hold sway, notwithstanding the well-defined effort on the part of several leading milliners to introduce the small bonnet tied demurely under the chin—a style which, so far, has failed to attract milady, and large flat hats without ties still hold the field. A reaction must come, however from this long-flourishing style and this column predicts the dawn of favor for the little bonnet.

Now, as to skirts. Not for years have they undergone such evolutions and revolutions. White starched admirers of the clinging hip portions still adhere faithfully to this style, other as famous modistes are making nothing but full skirts—from girdle to hem.

Cost and jacket fashions are in the same state of transition as are the hats and skirts, but in the group of costumes illustrated are embodied admirably the most pointed features of the Spring fashions for 1903.

THE NEWEST STYLES.

The central figure is a wooltex costume with its new effect, stole front and triple tufted skirt. The etiquette for this costume is a sorosis demi-yoke, mercerized, silk-appearing fabric.

The bolero costume with the triple yoke for the skirt is made of Mohair Sicilienne of the richest and heaviest character. This costume shows the new low-necked effect, or rather the collarless dress, and it will be noted that the front is trimmed in triplets of pearl buttons. The swinging low front is the new French curve which is particularly emphasized by the assistance of a new and welcome article of woman's apparel known as the Rosalind waist adjuster. This excellent contrivance is attached to the corset which holds it comfortably and rigidly at the desired point. The belts of the skirt, underskirt and waist are most easily and neatly arranged by the use of this new article, and are kept firmly yet easily in place without a wrinkle, dispensing with much of the annoying fullness usual to the superposing of several different garments.

The third costume is of Spring weight Worrell dyed English velveteen. It has also the French curve front, and in addition has the new extended skirt back which is produced by a single strip of featherbone descending from the waistline in back to a point about 12 inches above the bottom of the skirt where a fork or triple line of featherbone holds the rear of the skirt gently but gracefully in place. The girdle of both costumes is made upon the new featherbone girdle form, which is elastic and pliable, yet holds the shape of the waist.

that no... and... separa... that no... and... separa... is to-day... and... them. The newest note... fashion, however, is not alone in the dresses, but in the arrangement of the hair. The low coiffure will be especially noted in these figures. The low neck or collarless bodice will make a great revolution in hair dressing, and with the descent of the hair arrangement to a point below the neck or collar will come the great vogue of silk hair nets, always so useful and so easily adjusted, and in this case, absolutely necessary, to the new fashion.

The new French curve form of the newest vogue in figure is visible in these costumes. It is produced by the new model C. B. A. la spirite corset, over which these superb gowns are made.

Many gowns for the summer girl are being made up without linings, either in bodice or skirt, so she is supplying herself with a variety of silk slip linings, which she will wear with one or many gowns.

Materials this spring are of exceeding softness and lightness of weight, voiles, grenadines, bangles and the like, contributing to the soft, drooping effect now so desirable.
