NEGRO CUT TO PIECES

Mob Takes Terrible Vengeance on Brute at Devon, W. Va.

HIS MANGLED REMAINS BURNED

Negro Carried Little Girl to Woods and Tying Her to a Tree and Gaging Her, Assaulted Her Until Nearly Dead—Was Caught in the Act.

Bluefields, W. Va., July 12.—The full details of one of the blackest crimes that has ever blotted the history of the state have just reached this city. The little town of Devon, Kings county, was the scene of the assaulting of a little 14-year-old girl by a negro, followed by his subsequent lynching by an enraged mob numbering over 200 men.

STEAMSHIP PIER BURNED

$500,000 Loss Sustained By Scandinavian Line at Hoboken, N. J.

New York, July 11.—The new pier of the Scandinavian-American line, at the foot of 17th street, Hoboken, was destroyed by fire and for the second time in three years the line is temporarily without a pier.

Floods in Germany.

Berlin, July 14.—The highest floods known in the region for many years are reported from Silesia. Nearly the whole town of Troppan was under water for many hours.

Cleveland's Boom a Comedy.

Milwaukee, July 14.—W. J. Bryan was interviewed here as to the Cleveland movement. Mr. Bryan said: "It is a comedy as it now stands, but a tragedy if it should succeed."

Root's Son Ends Long Tramp.

New York, July 14.—Tired and dusty with a tramp of nearly 200 miles, about half way across the state, Elihu Root, Jr., son of the secretary of war, and his classmate, Frederick B. Bastin, reached here after two weeks on the road from Clinton, Oneida county, where they finished the year at Hamilton College.

COLONEL W. C. SANGER.

bany, N. Y., as assistant secretary of war to succeed Colonel William Cary Sanger, resigned. The appointment was agreed upon finally at a conference between the president and Secretary Root.

DARK DAYS FOR COTTON MILLS

Predicted That Speculation Means 30,000,000 Idle Spindles.

Charlotte, N. C., July 13.—George B. Hiss, president of the American Cotton Manufacturers' Association, said that probably by September the number of idle spindles dependent upon American cotton would reach 30,000,000.

When it is considered that about 30,000,000 of the 125,000,000 spindles in the entire world are dependent upon American cotton, the importance of this statement can be realized. It means that approximately 500,000 people will be thrown out of employment and that counting an average of $50 to the spindle, $250,000,000 of capital will be temporarily idle.

Labor Demonstration For Mitchell.

Pittsburg, Kan., July 11.—Twenty thousand persons participated in a labor demonstration in honor of President John Mitchell, of the United Mine Workers of America. Eight thousand coal miners, with 15 bands, paraded. Mr. Mitchell responded to an address of welcome by Mayor Price.

Cashier Short $50,000.

Newburgh, N. Y., July 13.—Joseph W. Cummin is in jail here on the charge of grand larceny. He was secretary-treasurer and cashier of the Cornwall Bank, and is alleged to be a defaulter to the extent of about $50,000, wrecking the bank. The state bank examiner appeared at the bank and before the examination of the books Cummin took him aside and confessed that he was short in his accounts between $40,000 and $50,000.

Lockjaw Cures Up Dying Boy.

Shamokin, Pa., July 13.—His right body curled backward so that it rests only on the head and heels, Nicholas Revels, Jr., 12 years old, is lying at his home at Midway as the result of his Fourth of July celebration. A wad from a toy pistol penetrated a finger of the boy's left hand. Lockjaw developed and yesterday the body began to stiffen.

Seashore Visitor a Suicide.

Atlantic City, N. J., July 14.—C. M. Cooper, of Ambler, Pa., committed suicide in his room at one of the hotels in Chelsea. When found the body was lying flat on the floor, the gas was turned on full, and the cracks were closed. Cooper arrived and appeared to be in good health. He had registered for a fortnight's stay.

Engineer Meets Terrible Death.

Pottsville, Pa., July 14.—B. S. Adams, of Girardville, employed as engineer of the Reading Railway near Mahanoy City, was mangled to death by being caught in the machinery. Every bone in the body was crushed, and his body was left limp. He leaves a widow and eight children.

HIGHSTRUNG NORTHERN FISH

Some That Rarely Become Tame or Cease to Become Restless in Captivity.

"The theory that climatic conditions are largely responsible for the enterprise and activity of the American people finds contemporary demonstration in the lower orders of animals, and particularly among the fish," said a scientist who has made a close study of the collection in the New York aquarium.

"All of the game fish," he said, "the fighters, the highstrung, nervous fellows, like the brook trout, the black bass and their only slightly less strenuous brother, the pike, are northern fish. In only rare instances do these fish become tame or remain restful in captivity. They have the keen spirit of American enterprise in them."

"On the other hand, the quiet, easy-going fish are nearly all from tropical waters. Of course, there are exceptions from muddy habitats, but all of the brilliant-hued, gaudy fish are from the tropics. They are calm and quiet, and after a short time in captivity become so tame as to eat food fearlessly from the hands of the keepers."

DISLIKES MISSIONARIES.

King Menelik Would Rather Have Them Remain Outside His Boundary Lines.

King Menelik, the native ruler of Abyssinia, never fancied Christianity or those who endeavor to propagate it, says an exchange. He is of the opinion that the orthodox faith is good enough for his subjects, and therefore those who go together with the object of spreading the doctrines of the Roman Catholic or Protestant church think it advisable to say that their sole object is to convert Hebrews and pagans.

THE WOMAN PEDDLER.

the Can Do Much Better Handling Household Articles Than Trying to Sell Books. "Any woman who can talk at all," said a school-teacher who, according to the New York Times, had tried book canvassing and given it up in despair, "can interest a housekeeper in labor-saving appliances. The woman who does her own housework will give attention to anything that will save her a pain in the back or grinding arms. But she will not talk to me about such things. When I lost my place as teacher in a public school, I tried book peddling. Oh, the women I called upon would invite me in and talk to me readily enough. That was the trouble. They would tell me their family history and their troubles, and then lead me to the door with the sorrowful assertion that they never had any time to read, they were so busy. So I gave up books and took up little time and labor-saving articles in the way of egg beaters, potato parers, can openers and cheap little articles such as women seldom see except at food shows. A stove lifter is a most valuable article. I keep watch for anything new in this direction and then go the rounds. I have several regular customers, who bring me a good commission on things that I buy for their dining-room and kitchen."

THEIR LAST QUARREL.

Developments Were So Ridiculous This Couple Were Most Likely Ashamed.

There could be no excuse for family quarrels if it were not that they are prejudices and excuses for happy reconciliations. No honest man will say that he and his better seven-eighths never disagreed, says a writer in the New York Press. I have in mind one brilliant fellow who tells this on himself and his wife in deepest confidence: "We had our little after-dinner spat—as usual. She vowed she was going home to her mother, who lived only two blocks away. I swore I was going to the club and stay all night. The five children of our happy union were asleep. She got out of the front door a little ahead of me and started east. I went west. At the corner I looked back out of the slant of my eye and saw her standing still in the middle of the next block. After a little hesitation she walked back. She said nothing. I added, 'Quite a moon-to-night.' 'Why don't you open the door?' she ripped out. 'Because my keys are up stairs,' I replied. 'Why, so are mine!' she cried. Well, I had to climb a tree and open the window on the third floor before we got in. And we haven't quarreled since."

PRIVATE SECRETARIES.

Their Work at the Telephone Is Sometimes More Important Than Their Skill at Letters.

The success of the fashionable woman's private secretary in these days depends much more on her ability to answer telephone calls discriminatingly than on her talent for note-writing, says the New York Sun.

The private secretary gets a salary of perhaps $1,400 or $1,500 a year and enjoys the confidence and consideration of her employer. On some days she works overtime, maybe 11 or 12 hours, and to be efficient she must have at her fingers' ends a lot of knowledge that was never gained in a correspondence school or included in business tactics. She must supervise the household bookkeeping and bill-paying, of course, but her chief duty is to help in social matters.

She must know the name, the domestic circumstances and the social rating of all the people in her employer's world. Being relied upon for suggestions when extra guests are wanted in a hurry, she must be sure to remember when folks have gone away or have been thrown into mourning.

When invitations, or informal projects are suggested over the phone she must know at once the best course to be pursued. The secretary talks over the phone with milliners, tailors, dressmakers, florists. Sometimes it is to applaud and scold, again to plead or hasten, again to dispute bills.

Tea Through a Straw.

When the natives of Paraguay drink tea they do not pour it from a teapot into a cup, but fill a goblet made out of a pumpkin or gourd and then suck on the not found through a very reed. Moreover, the tea which they use is altogether different from that which comes from China, being made out of the dried and roasted leaves of a palm-like plant which grows in Paraguay and southern Brazil. The goblets and reeds which are used for this purpose are often stichly carved, and many of the latter are made of solid silver. The natives say that this tea is an excellent remedy for fever and rheumatism, and chemical tests which have been made by German physicians seem to show that there is good ground for this statement.—Boston Globe.

A great time is being spent in the celebration of the Centennial. There is no doubt that the people of this country are proud to have reached this great anniversary.

The Great Attention

"And let me get the full report of the centennial and see how it is going?" asked the reporter. "Did you?" "I visited the centennial and witnessed it all," he said. "That is, I saw the centennial in the third set of the centennial books, looking for the centennial centennial. I was in the centennial centennial." —Centennial Commercial Tribune.
