Pennsylvania Business and Shorthand College and Correspondence Schools.

Lancaster, Pa.

During the past season the above school has had an enrollment of more than 1500 from all over the United States and a finishing class of 500—almost 100 more than any other school of the kind in Pennsylvania graduates. Students enroll daily throughout the entire year and have absolute assurance of employment when they finish as the school is overwhelmed with applications for help.

Board is secured in good homes at from $1 to $2 a week less than in other places offering similar advantages. Tuition is proportionately low.

On the 15th of May, last, the school purchased a building which, when the remodeling is completed, will be one of the largest, best located and finest used, exclusively, for business college purposes in the United States. It is the only "business" college Pennsylvania owning a building of any great value.

REDUCED RATES TO BALTIMORE.

B., in Baltimore, Md., September 7, to 9, the Pennsylvania Railroad Company will sell excursion tickets to Baltimore from all stations on the lines west of Harrisburg, Pa., and intermediate stations, Columbia, Pinebrook, and intermediate stations on the Northern Central Railway; Lancaster, Harrisburg, and intermediate stations on the Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington Railroad, including all stations south of Downingtown, Pa., on September 5, 6, and 7, good for return passage until September 10, inclusive, at rate of single fare for the round trip, plus one dollar.

For conditions and stop-over at Philadelphia or Lancaster, reading through this point, consult ticket agents.

Gathering Fruit Too Soon.

The desire to secure even a very small crop of fruit from young trees leads too many growers to fruit their trees too young. In the cases where new varieties are planted and the grower wishes to see the kind and quality of fruit, it may be well to permit the trees to bear a very few specimens the first or second bearing year, but it is better to give a very severe thinning out of the fruit every bearing year, not merely to secure fine specimens, but to prevent the trees from being prematurely injured, as all fruit trees properly cared for will continue and in good soil will invariably set more fruit than they can bring to perfection. The practice is inexcusable in case all of the fruit of young trees the first bearing year is removed, particularly for several successive years on the same tree.

Calamity howls may be gathered in the woods and pulled down as a cool place. They will keep in cold cans.

POTATOMATO PLANT.

It Bears Tomatoes Above and Potatoes Below and Is a Triumph of Grafting Art.

An anomaly in grafting, being a plant which is growing first-class potatoes at the roots and bearing fully developed tomatoes at the stalk, was brought about by Prof. Green, of the Minnesota state school of agriculture, when he cut off the young shoots of a potato vine, making a V-shaped slit in the top, into which he inserted a freshly clipped young tomato plant, bound the joint with straw and supported it by long rods. Nature did the rest.

The tomato drew sustenance from the earth through the roots of the potato and in return furnished what was required in the way of the action of light and air upon its own leaves to its adopted roots.

The plant is now three months old. On pushing aside the earth several fairly developed potatoes are shown, each a trifle larger than a large hen's egg. From the vines a half-dozen tomatoes are hanging, in different stages of maturity. Several have ripened and the others promise to do so, as well.

The tomato vine loses its identity at the place where the graft was made. There are no leaves at all suggestive of the potato. The vine is fully three feet high.—N. Y. Herald.

Second Farmer—He's the city galoot that thinks he is gittin' healthy on the sulphur spring water that he's buyin' a barrel at a lick from my mill pond.—Philadelphia Telegraph.

A Feminine Marvel.

Chief Millikin—That female witness is the most peculiar woman I ever encountered.

Inspector Casey—So? In what way does she differ from most women?

Chief Millikin—Why, when she hasn't anything to say she doesn't talk.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Altruism.

When they reproached the reformer with the dowdiness of her gown she smiled sadly.

"Oh, how can one think of one's own clothes when there are so many statues and paintings and pictures without any clothes at all!" she exclaimed, with emotion.—Puck.

Frankness.

"Now tell me honestly," said Gazzer, interrupting himself in the narration of a story, "have you ever heard this before?"

"Yes, I've heard it before" replied Lyzzer frankly, "but I'll acknowledge I never heard it told worse."—Town Topics.
