Mr. Editor :- All of our domestic animals are apt to be annoyed with vermin, which a little of the right kind of knowledge, and a little attention will readily disperse, In some periods of hot weather, flies, especially of the Tabanidæ variety, are particularly troublesome, They will render a spirited horse unmanageable, and will often drive cattle from the pasture. Of sheep, the "Ettrick Shepherd" says, "The flies were at this time settled in the fold in such numbers that we could with difficulty see each other. The heads of the sheep were swollen and black, and seemed a scab all over, the ffies being settled on them like a black cloud. A few were annointed with train oil, and no sooner were they turned in with the others than in a few minutes not a fly was to be seen." Spirit of tar added to the oil makes it more efficacious, and as the flies will not face these remedies when applied to sheep, horses and cattle should surely be protected from them.

Fleas are very troublesome to dogs .-Washing and combing are without efficacy. Tobacco water may be used, though it frequently poisons the dog. Mr. Blain says "the tolerably certain cure, I know, is to make the dog sleep on fresh yellow deal shavings. Rosin and bran in powder may be usefully applied; oil, however, is believed to be a specific.

Lice on horses, cattle, sheep, and dogs, are another pest. For these we have invariably found oil a specific. In horses, the prevalence of this filthy vermin, shows want of proper cleaning, although it is oftentimes connected with poverty and mange. In the slighter visitations, we have invariably found that Olive oil alone will cause their disappearance from all the above named animals. Corrosive sublimate may be used but it requires great caution in the application.

Ticks in sheep are another nuisance. A mixture of tar and turpentine with oil is a speedy and certain poison for them.

Maggots in sheep sometimes a most fatal vermin, requires the utmost care and vigilance. As soon as they are observed, the parts affected should be deprived of their wool, clipped as close to the skin as possible: and the part annointed with spirits of turpentine and oil with tar, or, with a solution of corrosive sublimate, either of which will prove a speedy and perfect cure.-R. Mc-CLURE, in Farmer and Gardner.

A WHOLESOME DRINK.

The excessive use of cold water during the sweltering heat of summer, often results in serious and alarming illness. It is therefore advisable that some beverage should be substituted for it, of which those oppressed with thirst can partake with safety. For this purpose I am aware of no better or more refreshing drink than the following: " Take of the best white Jamaica ginger root, carefully bruised, two ounces; cream of tartar, ince; water, six quarts, to be be about five minutes then strained; to the strained liquor add one pound of the best white sugar, and again place it over the fire . keep it well stirred till the sugar is perfectly dissolved, and then pour it into an earthen vessel, in which you have previously put two drachms of tartaric acid, and the rind of one lemon, and let it remain till the heat is reduced to a lukewarm temperature; then add a tablespoonful of yeast, stirring them well together and bottle for use. The corks must be well secured. The drink will be in high perfection four or five days. This is a very refreshing and wholesome beverage, and one which may be largely partaken of without any unpleasant results even in the hottest weather. Those who make use of old cider will find this much superior as a common field beverage. - Germantown Telegraph.

THE FODDER OF SWEET CORN.

The reader of the Telegraph will no doubt remember that we long ago advocated the sowing of sweet corn for feeding green to cattle in august and September, being con vinced that it made a much better feed than the ordinary corn of the farm. Stowells Evergreen which produuces largely of fodder, we sug gested as the best to plant for this purpose. We also stated that the dried fodder for winter use was also greatly to be preferred to the other. The following statements put forth by the Norfolk Co. (Mass.) Agricultural Society, will go far to substantiate what we have hitherto written on the subject. In the report of the society, it is stated that.

"Mr. Spear, the occupant of the Welles Farm in Dorchester, considers the fodder of sweet corn very valuable. He stated, that in feeding his cows last winter on the fodder of sweet eorn the supply became temporarily exhausted and instead of the fodder a full supply of the best hay was given, the keeping in other respects being the same as it was before; but the quantity of milk decreased considerably, till by removing some hay another supply of corn-fodder was reached, and on returning to it, the cows soon gave the former quantity of milk. This was the dried mar-ket as "green corn." The stalks were cut close to the ground soon after the ears were gathered.". The same report gives a statement derived from Cheever Newhall, E.q., of Dorchester, in regard to the fodder of sweet corn, the substance of which is as follows:

"He planted three fourths of an acre of sweet corn, in the latter part of May, dropping the seed with a corn planter, in rows three feet apart, and in drills about two feet apart, The cultivation was all done with the cultivator. Sixty barrels of corn was sent to too little, Boston from the lot, and on the 15th of September the crop was cut close to the ground and shocked -the stalks being quite green, as the variety was late. It remained on the field till about the middle of November, when it was housed. Mr. N. states that he had fed the fodder to a cow and to his horses which eat with evident relish, and without the least waste, although the stalks were not cut. He is so well convinced of the value of fodder of sweet corn, that he intends to raise enough in future to keep his horses through

YANKEE WIT .- In a neighboring town, in which they were building a railroad, a party of Irishmen, who were employed there, went to the store of a Yankee, and thinking they would show a specimen of Irish wit, one asked for a yard of pork," whereupon the Yanke deliberately cut off three pigs feet and handed them to the Irishman. Pat not understanding the joke, asked: 'And sure and is that what you would be after calling a yard of pork?" "Certanly," replied the Yankee, coolly "don't you know that in this country three feet make a yard."

"My dear," said an anxious father to a bushfuldaughter, "I intend that you should be married, but I do not intend that you shall throw yourself away to any of the wild worthless boys of the present day. You must marry a man of sober and mature age one that can charm you with personal attraction. "Our only child, about three years of age, was attacked by pimples on his forehead. They rapidly spread until they formed a loathsome and virulent sore, which covered his face, and actually blinded his eyes for some days. A skilful physician applied nitrate of silver and other remedies, without any apparent effect. For fifteen days we guarded his hands, lest with them he should tear open the festering and corrupt wound which covered his whole face. Having tried every thing else we had any hope from, we began giving your Sarsafarllla. And applying the iodide of potash lotion, as you direct. The sore began to heal when we had finished the second.
