

anything in a crisis. When misfortune comes they look around for somebody to cling to they go. Once down they are as helpless as capsized turtles, or unhorsed men in armour, and they cannot find their feet again with out essistance. Such silken fellows no more resemble self-made men, who have fought to position, making difficulties their st pping. stones, and deriving termination from their defeat, than vines resemble oaks, or spluttering tushlights the stars of heaven. Efforts persisted to achievements train a man to sel'reliance; and when he has proven to the world that he can trust himself, the world will trust him. We say, therefore, that it is unwise to deprive young m n of the advan ages which result from energetic action, b" "boosting" them over obstacles which they ought to surmount alone. No one over swam well who placed his confidence in a cork jacket; and if, when breasting the sea of life, we cannot buoy ourselves up and try to force ourselves ahead by dint of our own energies, we are not salrage, and it is of little consequence whether we "sink or swim.

One of the best lessons a father can give his son is this: "Work; strengthen your moral and mental faculties, as you would strengthen your muscles by vigorous exercise. Learn to conquer circum-tauces; you are then independent of fortune. The men of athletic minds who left their marks on the years in which they lived, were all train ed in a rough school. They did not mount to the high positions by the help of leverage ; they leaped into chasins, grappled with the opposing rocks, avoided avalanches, and when the goal was reached, felt that but for the toil that had strengthened them as they strove, it could never have been a tained."

There has been a storm at sea, and a gal lant ship, with all its ireight of human soulhas suns beneath the dars blue waters of the ocean. Not a vestige of the storm now remains, but the waters sleep peacefully and calmly, and none would think, were they gazing upon its unruffled surface, that the storm king had ever reigned there. Not an hour before, the waves were dashing against the vessel's side, the white capped billows were hurrying to an fro, the deep, reverberate ing thunder rolled along the sky, and the vivid lightning flashed along the horizon. The waves rolled higher and higher, and washed across the vessel's deck. The planks were shivered to atoms, the white sails were torn asunder, and the good ship lay a wheck upon the waters. There were strong men battling with the waves, weak women sinking beneath the waters, and little children borne along on were trying to clasp their babes, husbandtheir wives, brothers their sisters, but they were torn from their protecting atms by the cruel waves. It was but a moment they were separated, and then all sank benea h the wa

Oh ! those treacherous waves. If w many homes they have left de-olate and lonely ! How many hearts they have filled with sorrow ! When the time atrives for the ship's return; friends will be an xiously waiting to greet friends, but they will look and long in vain. As the days lengthen into weeks the weeks into months, and the months into years they will cease expecting, and hope will die from their hearts Then there will be anguish, mourning and weeping. Prayermingled with wails will a-cend to the thronge of Heaven, bat it will avail nought. Nover again will the lost friends cone ; never agam will the maiden behold her lover, the wife her husband, the parents their children .---There will always be a sanctuary within their hearts, consecrated to the memory of the 1 v ed, lost and dear ones who are sleeping the dream sleep beneath the waters of the ocean.

An isle of the Pacific, but just arison from the unexplored depths of the boundless octan. (From the ocean of time and eternity ) Su usted between the tropics, and cooled by the "ever fanning breezes on their way," i's sands glittering with gold and rich in agricultural and mineral deposits; why was it not a most desirable dwelling-place for man?

Why not ? There was a very good reason why not-there was nothing of life-no or ganization. And hence this rich-immensely rich world was a most lonely desert isle?

Yet time passed on, and the ever restless toiling ocean continued its work. It brought safely stowed in its vast hold, the cocon, the aknond, and all the seeds of a multitudinous tropical vegetation, and with a hoaree laugh cel of land cast them upon this miniature continent .-The dull seeds spring into life as they touch ed the genisl soil. Flowers bloomed and birds sung, and tall trees, exuiting in the rich sunshine, lifted their heads up to the blue heav ens. And now how charged- ruly a para dise! And with what variety of outlinefrowning cliffs by the side of deep woods rich in birds and flowers, rivulets and broad rivers, cascades and stupendous cataracts, all blended in the most beautiful harmony.

The same yet not the same-great is the difference betwixt the island desert and the island garden, but a far greater difference betwixt the mind uncultivated and cultivated. If we could imagine a mind entirely untatored, there would be nothing to compare with the lights and shades-the never ending varieties of a more perfect garden !

Second thoughts are best ; man was God's first thought ; woman his second.
