THE SONG OF THE SWORD.

A PARODY ON THE "SONG OF THE SHIRT"

Weary, and wounded, and worn,
Wounded, and ready to die,
A soldier they left all alone and forlorn,

War-war-war!
Fire, and famine, and sword;
Desolate fields, and desolate towns;

War-war-war!
Muskets, and powder, and ball;
Ah! what do we fight for?

War-war-war!
Misery, murder, and crime,
Are all the blessings I've seen in thee

Ah! had I but known in my happier days,
In my hours of boyish glee,

And many a long, long day of we,
And sleepless nights unrolled,

Weary, and wounded, and worn,
Wounded, and ready to die,
A soldier they left, all alone and forlorn,

"THE WAY YOU ALWAYS STOPPED."—The
Vermont Record tells a good story of an innocent old lady,

"No, dear," said the lady, "I will take it off."

"The wit deservedly won his bet who in company, when every one was bragging of his tall relations,

"Great as you may be, the cradle was yours once, and over it, the only horizon you beheld,

"A schoolmarm in England has adopted a new and novel mode of punishment. If the boys disobey her rules she stands them on their heads and pours cold water into their trousers legs.

"How strangely the moon lights up the past; how it shines through the years that are gone, showing us far-off graves by its gleam.

AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, FOR THE RAPID CURE OF Coughs, Colds, Influenza, Hoarseness, Croup, Bronchitis, Incipient Consumption, and for the relief of Consumptive Patients in advanced stages of the disease.

So wide is the field of its usefulness and so numerous are the cases of its cures, that almost every section of country abounds in persons publicly known who have been restored from alarming and even desperate diseases of the lungs by its use. When once tried, its superiority over every other expectorant is too apparent to escape observation, and where its virtues are known, the public no longer hesitate what antidote to employ for the distressing and dangerous affections of the pulmonary organs that are incident to our climate. While many inferior remedies thrust upon the community have failed and been discarded, this has gained friends by every trial, conferring benefits on the afflicted, they can never forget, and produce cures too numerous and too remarkable to be forgotten.

Those who require an alternative medicine to purify the blood will find AYER'S COMP. EXT. SARSAPILLA the remedy to use. Try it once, and you will know its value.

Prepared by J. C. AYER & CO., Lowell, Mass. and sold by Sanl. Stark Tunkhannock, and all dealers in medicine everywhere.
