

Miscellaneous.

THE TAVERN-KEEPER AND RAFT-WALKER.

There was a fellow once stepped out of the door of a tavern on the Mississippi, meaning to walk a mile up the shore to the next tavern. Just at the landing there lay a big raft—one of the regular old fashioned whalers—a raft a mile long. Well, the fellow said the raft was a mile long, and he said unto himself: "I will go forth and see the great wonder, and let mine eyes behold the timber which the hand of man has hewn." So he got at the lower end, and began to amble over the wood in pretty fair time. But just as he walked up the river, it walked down, both traveling at about the same rate. When he got to the end of the sticks, he found they were pretty near the shore, and in sight of a tavern; so he landed and walked straight into the bar-room he had come out of. The general sameness of things took him a little aback, but he looked the landlord straight in the face, and settled it in his own way:

"Publiean," said he, "are you gifted with any twin-brother who keeps a similar sized tavern, with a duplicate wife, a comporting wood-pile, and corresponding circus bill, a mile off from here?"

The tavern-keeper was fond of fun, and accordingly said it was just so.

"And, publican, have you, among your dry good, for the entertainment of man and beast any whiskey of the same size as that of your brother's?"

And the tavern man said that, from the rising of the sun to the going down of the same, he had.

They took drinks, when the stranger said: "Publiean, that two-brother of yours is a mighty fine man—a very fine man indeed.—But do you know that I'm afeared he suffers a good deal with the Chicago diptheria?"

"And what is that?" asked the toddy-sticker.

"It is when the truth settles so firm in a man that it never comes out. Common doctors of the catnip sort call it lying. When I left your brother's confectionery, there was a raft at his door, which he swore on his life was a mile long. Well, publican, I walked that raft from bill to tail, from his door to yours. Now I know leg-time, and I'm just as good for myself as for a horse, and better for that than any man you ever did see. I always walk a mile in exactly twenty minutes on a good road, and I'll be busted with an over-loaded Injun gun if I've been more'n ten minutes coming here, stepping over the blam-ed logs at that."—Pacific Month.

Signs that Failed.

We all remember the story of the inn-keeper who became proud as he prospered, and taking down his sign of the Ass, put up a portrait of George IV, in its place. His neighbor immediately raised the cast off effigy, and "in this sign he conquered." The first landlord, alarmed at the increasing popularity of his rival, and understanding the cause, wrote underneath the grim visage of his Majesty: "This is the real Ass." But a more ludicrous incident of the kind is just now told at the expense of the good Bishop Landaff. He took up his abode near the head of Lake Wendenburg, where the principal inn had been known as the Cock; but the landlord, by way of compliment to his distinguished neighbor, substituted the Bishop as the sign. An inn-keeper close by, who had frequently envied mine host of the Cock for his good fortune in securing a considerable preponderance of visitors, took advantage of the change, and attracted many travelers to his house by putting up the sign of the Cock. The landlord with the new sign was much discomfited at seeing many of his old customers deposited at his rival's establishment; so by way of remedy, he put up in large red letters under the portrait of the Bishop: "This is the old Cock."

A Good One.

Somewhere in the outskirts of Hartford there is a Mission School that has the reputation of being rather "noisy," so much so that those appointed to take charge of it generally resign in a few weeks. Last Sunday, the school being destitute of a superintendent, a prominent manufacturer of Norwich, Conn, volunteered for the day.—Having called the school to order, and got most of them seated, "Boys," said he, mounting the platform, "let's see if we can't hear it still," and he put himself in a quiet posture for the school to imitate. As there was some noise, "Boys," said he, "we can have it stiller, I know," and walking to the front part of the stage and raising his hand—"Now let's see if we can't hear a pin drop."

All was silence, when a little fellow in the back part of the room, placing himself in an attitude of breathless attention, spoke out: "Let her drop!"

The stern features of the superintendent are said to have slightly relaxed.

Manhood: how lost, how restored.

Just published a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical cure (without medicine) of SPERMATORRHOEA, or seminal Weakness, Incontinence, Seminal Losses, Impotency, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc.; also, CONSTIPATION, EPILEPSY, and Firs, induced by self-indulgence or sexual extravagance.

Price, in a sealed envelope, only 6 cents.

The celebrated author in this admirable essay clearly demonstrates from a thirty years' successful practice, that the alarming consequences of self-abuse may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicine or the application of the knife—pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain, and effectual, by means which every sufferer may put in practice, and his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately, and radically.

This Lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land.

AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL,

FOR THE RAPID CURE OF

Coughs, Colds, Influenza, Hoarseness, Croup, Bronchitis, Incipient Consumption, and for the relief of Consumptive Patients in advanced stages of the disease.

So wide is the field of its usefulness and so numerous are the cases of its cures, that almost every section of our country abounds in persons publicly known who have been restored from alarming and even desperate diseases of the lungs by its use. When once tried, its superiority over every other expectorant is too apparent to escape observation, and where its virtues are known, the public no longer hesitate what antibiotic to employ for the distressing and dangerous affections of the pulmonary organs that are incident to our climate. While many inferior remedies thrust upon the community have failed and been discarded, this has gained friends by every trial, conferred benefits on the afflicted, they can never forget, and produce cures too numerous and too remarkable to be forgotten.

Those who require an alternative medicine to purify the blood will find AYER'S COMPOUND SARSAPARILLA the remedy to use. Try it once, and you will know its value.

Prepared by J. C. AYER & CO., Lowell, Mass. and sold by Saml. Stark Tunkhannock, and all dealers in medicine everywhere.
