

Local and Personal.

The Roads in almost every direction are said to be in a ruinously bad condition. To allow them to be so for any considerable length of time is the worst sort of economy in tax-payers, and to a stranger, must give an unfavorable opinion of the thrift and enterprise of the community where they exist.

Second-hand Pianos, Organs and Melodions can be had at the Music Store of L. B. Powell, Stratton. In many cases a really good instrument can be obtained at less than one-half the price of a new one, and there are many who would gladly avail themselves of an opportunity to procure a Musical instrument when it can be had at so low a rate.

The Rain—which we noticed in our last, as then in progress was so general and long continued as to raise many of the streams in this vicinity to a higher point than for many years past. We have heard of the sweeping away of dams, mills and lumber; and the wholesale destruction of other property. The river was swelled to within a few feet of the famous flood of 1855. But as most persons living along its banks have become more cautious by their sad experience, the loss and destruction of property was comparatively small.

Just So.—A contemporary remarks: "Wagons cannot run without wheels—boats without water—built from jump without legs or newspapers—carried on everlastingly without money, no more than a dog can wag his tail when he has none. Our subscribers are all good, but what good does a man's goodness do when it don't do any good. We have no doubt every one thinks all have paid except him and as printers are good fellows, and his a little matter it will make no difference."

Wheat—About 3000 bushels of which was stopped in transit last Fall, by the break in the canal at this place, is now being hauled away by teams, to the Depot, to supply the wants of those who can afford to indulge in the article at the price, at present, so ruinous to consumers. We noticed, the other day, that two of the teams which left freighted with it, returned heavily loaded with lumber. Our temperance friends would call this returning evil for good, in violation of one of the noblest moral precepts.

"Music hath charms to soothe the savage breast" says the Poet. But we are of the opinion that its charms are not confined entirely to the "savage breast," judging from the grand array of female beauty promading the Court House Square on Saturday evening last, drawn there by the melodious strains of the Tunkhannock Brass Band. The Band did its best, and from the profuse display of handkerchiefs and bouquets, must have excelled all former attempts. It has got to be one of the institutions of the town; and, under the leadership of Prof. R. P. Ross, who, by the way, is one of the very best Band Masters who composes and arranges his own music, has become one of the best Bands in Northern Pennsylvania.

Sary-Naded.—About the witching hour of night,

"The other night

When all around was still"

we waked up to find ourselves one of the most distinguished individuals in town. Floating out on the clear cool midnight air, directly from under the window of the room where the Mrs. Editor lies down to pleasant dreams, was the Grand March in Norma, played by our excellent string band, in which Dick, Lew, Boxer and Burns, take the leading parts. The March, in Norma, is our favorite one for tramping; and should we ever go to war or the gallows, we want the chief fife to play it instead of the Rogue's March. On waking up to consciousness, our first dim notion was that we had waked up in a higher holier sphere; but a sharp pinch in the ribs from our bed-fellow—who by the way isn't much of a fellow after all—satisfied us that we were in the vicinity of material objects and in this same old sublimity sphere, where but a short time before we had spent several hours down on all fours in an apparently futile attempt to make a small patch of carpet cover a large patch of floor. We hardly knew what to do on the occasion—having never been thus honored before. All our former ceremonies have been those in which the high-backed-out-argues were the principal instruments. But as on former occasions, after the first air, we appeared to the serenaders in propria persona and in-dishabille. It seemed to be a proper occasion for waving, linen, but finding that we had no handkerchief, nor even that "handy pocket" in which to put one, we waved the only substitute for that article, at hand, in the most graceful manner possible; and as a further token of our appreciation of the distinguished honor, we invited the party to partake of the strongest and best the house afforded—i.e. of some two-days-old buttermilk. They declined to indulge in this beverage, for the reason, we suppose, that they belong to the anti-buttermilk society. Thanking them and bidding them good night, we retired to a miller at mosphere, and to dream of a place where chanting seraphs are, and unstretched carpets are not.

Married

LULL—LUTON.—At the residence of the Bride's mother, on Tuesday the 14th inst. by the Rev J. L. Legg, Mr. George M. Lull to Miss Julia A. Bolton all of Tunkhannock Borough.

Previous to the event above mentioned, owing, perhaps, to the high price of flour, and somewhat to the fact that our young friends have of late been a little faint hearted in the matter of asking questions, we—from a poor devil of a printer, down to a poor printer's devil—had become ravenously hungry for wedding cake. But in this desert world of ours, there are some patches of tall clover, even for these times of darkness. We were invited—and didn't wait for a second or more urgent invitation; we attended—saw the knot tied—and made such destructive raids on the pyramids of cakes, butter and the thousand and one other goodies, gotten up for the occasion, that we blushing confess we retire from the still our burdened table very much demoralized in the center of our corps de phisque (Military Talk.)

Julia looked lovely, and the Ladies say, was elegantly and richly dressed. We were paying to much attention to the edibles, to notice the lustrous substantial objects of the toilet. George looked, as he always did, good.

May long life and prosperity attend them.

"MEXICO UNDER MAXIMILIAN."

BY HENRY M. FLINT, ESQ.

Author of "Druid's Letters," "Life of Senator Douglas," &c.

12mo. Green English Cloth, $2.00.

In presenting this work to the Public, the Publishers are actuated by a desire to furnish a cheap and convenient vehicle for the transmission of light and instruction to the masses upon a subject concerning which there is both doubt and misapprehension in the minds of all classes of our countrymen. This has arisen as much, perhaps, from the heretofore imperfect sources of intelligence concerning that unhappy country, as from the influence of our domestic politics upon the questions growing out of the consideration of its history. The Revolution through which our own Country has just passed, has not been without influence, though indirectly, upon the fortunes of the Mexican Nation, and while we esteem the wonderful changes wrought in the United States by five years of strife, we are naturally led to inquire the results achieved by the revolutions of our Southern Sister once the Republic and now the Empire of Mexico. Our Author has answered this inquiry in a manner both satisfactory and conclusive, in the Volume we have just issued from the Press, and we commend it to the citizens of the United States as an invaluable contribution to contemporary history. Mr. Flint clearly demonstrates among other things, that the Maximilian Government in Mexico is firmly established; that the people have abandoned Juarez, (whose troops are said to consist now of but a few bands of guerrillas,) and joined Maximilian; and that the popular prejudices in this country against the establishment of an Empire in Mexico are wrong, because in asserting the Monroe Doctrine we are running counter to the wishes of the Mexican people, and taking from them their exclusive right to settle their own affairs in their own way and to their own satisfaction. Facts and documents are presented to show that the Empire is maintained now without the aid of France and solely by the Mexican people—the merchant class, and better sort of people generally. The book gives a good insight into the policy which our own Government has pursued in Mexican affairs, as well as many facts and statistics of interest and value.

If the Mexican people have chosen a constitutional monarchy as a cure for the anarchy which for so many years convulsed the Republic, and if their choice turns out wisely, then among us dare say to them: Put away these law, prosperity and the Empire and take back faction, war, lawlessness, ruin and death.

—one Republic.
