THE CRONIN CASE.
Starting Testimony Before the Coroner's Jury—Coughlin Certainly Mixed up in the Case.

CHICAGO, June 5.—Startling evidence was given before the coroner's jury in the Cronin case by Capt. Schneck. It was late when the "Burgomaster" was called. He testified that on the day the grand jury took up the case the prisoner Woodruff, also King, sent for him and confessed that he drove the wagon with the trunk that contained Cronin's body from the Evanston avenue cottage to the catch basin. He opened the confession by saying that he was in a saloon on Division street, near Franklin, one day with two men named King and Fairburn, when a strange man entered and took King aside. He produced a big roll of money and gave some to King and to Fairburn. When he had gone Woodruff asked King who it was, and he replied: "That's the great lawyer, Alex. Sullivan." Woodruff went on to say that he was hired by Detective Coughlin for the sum of $20 to go to the cottage and get the trunk. The two men before referred to accompanied him. They first drove through Lincoln park, where the trunk was taken out, and again returned to the buggy. Then they drove to the catch basin. After the body had been placed therein and the trunk dropped by the wayside, they drove to a barn where they washed and fixed up. Coughlin, he went on to say, told him several days before hand that he had a job for him. On the afternoon of May 4 he came to him and said: "Now's the night. It has got to be done. If you can't get out before 3 o'clock it will be no use." At 8 o'clock he got the wagon. After Schneck had concluded "Mayor" Simpson, a man well known in the police courts and the Bridewell, testified that Coughlin tried to hire him some time ago to slug Cronin and promised to pay liberally for the job. A man named Billy Lyon corroborated this and an adjournment was taken.

The evidence taken earlier in the day was that of the Lakeview police officers that saw the mysterious vehicle on the fatal night and of the doctors that made the post mortem examination.

Capt. Schneck Removed.

Chief of Police Hubbard has issued an order temporarily removing Capt. Schneck from the command of the Chicago avenue district and also suspending him from duty. This action was based upon his unsatisfactory evidence and upon the opinion that he had bungled the case from the start. He admitted to the jury that he had not asked Woodruff to describe Alex. Sullivan and in general demonstrated that he had tried to shield Coughlin from the hindrance of the investigation.

An Important Clue.

CHICAGO, June 5.—The police claim to have an important clue to the murderers of Dr. Cronin. They have found the expressman who hauled the murderers' goods from the building at 117 Clark street to the Carlson cottage. According to the expressman the fellows being in Chicago and he has seen both of them frequently since he hauled their goods. The last time he saw them was last Saturday. The expressman's description of one of the men tallies closely with that of Simpson, who fought the furniture from Howell & Co., and of Williams, who rented the cottage from the Carlsons. The police believe the two men are still in town and they are relying on the expressman to find them.

A Water Spout in Canada.

CORNBURG, Ont., June 4.—Heavy rains have prevailed in this district during the last week, and this morning what appeared to be a large water spout passed over this place in a northwesterly direction and burst when a couple of miles distant. In a few minutes small creeks became rivers and all bridges and dams between were the hurt occurred and Lake Ontario were carried away and railway embankments destroyed. Many houses were inundated and people had to be rescued in boats. In this city all the cellars in the business portion were flooded, water in some instances rising above the store floors. Farmers will lose heavily, many of them their entire crop. The loss will reach half a million dollars.

Although M. M. Treadwell & Co. have done the largest millinery business this season they have done for years, by opening fresh invoices twice a week, they not only keep up a full stock, but are sure to have everything of the latest as it comes out.

DAMAGING TESTIMONY
BROUGHT OUT IN THE CRONIN INVESTIGATION CASE.

Maurice Morris Testifies That He Believed McGeehan Left Philadelphia for the Purpose of Killing Cronin—Alex. Sullivan's Name Prominently Mixed Up in the Case—Lake Dillon to Testify.

CHICAGO, June 5.—All the evidence in the Cronin inquest was directed toward establishing the fact that the deceased was firmly impressed with the idea that his life was endangered through the machinations of Alexander Sullivan. Maurice Morris, a member of the Clan-na-Gael, said that, at the last convention, he had heard several delegates say that Cronin and Dr. McGehee, of Philadelphia, ought to be gotten rid of. Cronin had told him that he believed McGeehan, the Philadelphia, had come to Chicago at the instigation of Alex. Sullivan, to kill him. Joseph O'Byrne, senior guardian of Camp 396, swore that on the day before the physician disappeared, Cronin had told him that he was badly broken up and discouraged, and that he believed he would give up and let those rascals, Alex. Sullivan and Recorder of Police Michael Boland, of Kansas City, complete their murderous design and kill him. O'Byrne went on to say that he had heard McGeehan say that Cronin and McGehee ought to be killed, because they were scoundrels. He had heard that there was a trial in Camp 39, but knew nothing definite on the point. He did not, however, believe that Cronin was a traitor.

Cronin Tried and Convicted.

Closely pressed, he admitted that rumors that Cronin had been tried and convicted came to him through friends of the lawyer, P. McGary, a Lakeview boiler maker and intimate friend of the dead man, and his evidence with as much dramatic effect that once or twice he was applauded. He testified that Cronin had several times told him that his life was in danger, that Alex. Sullivan, if he was murdered, would be found to be the instigator and that there were papers in his safe that would connect Sullivan with the deed. Witness told how he went to Toronto and met Long, the reporter, who was responsible for the circumstantial stories regarding Cronin having been seen in that city. McGary offered him $2,000 to substantiate what he had written, but he could not do it. Instead he said: "I wish to God I had never had anything to do with this business." He had heard that Lee Decker Sullivan, Detective Coughlin and Detective Whalen were members of Camp 39. It was a matter of daily conversation among the members of the clan that there was a conspiracy to kill Cronin. At one meeting of Camp 20, when the witness remarked that the man who gave LeCaron his credentials was worse than LeCaron himself, Lawyer Beggs remarked: "There must be union and unity among Irishmen, even if there has to be war."

Created a Sensation.

Closely questioned, the witness said that the man who gave LeCaron his credentials was Lawrence R. Buckley of this city. This created a sensation. Responding to another question the witness said dramatically: "I think God that I don't belong to any organization of which Alex. Sullivan is a member, for I consider that man is the cause of all the disgrace and slurs that have been put upon the Irish people."

The last witness was Byron C. Smith, receiver of the Traders' bank, Heshouder by checks on file and ledger entries that in the summer of 1882 Alex. Sullivan had altogether $100,000 in the bank, of which $10,000 was a personal account and the balance credited to "Alex. Sullivan, agent." By Sept. 6, 1882, all this money had been drawn out on checks made payable to J. T. Lester & Co., brokers. A member of this firm will be summoned to-day.

Woodruff emphatically denied that he made the confession attributed to him by Capt. Schneck to the effect that he saw Sullivan pay a large sum of money to two men in a saloon.

Dillon to Testify.

State's Attorney Longenecker, Chief of Police Hubbard and Luke Dillon of Philadelphia were in conference last night from 7 o'clock until nearly midnight. Dillon is to be called as a witness and is willing to tell all that he knows concerning the conspiracy against Dr. Cronin. He is anxious at the same time to preserve the secrets of the Clan-na-Gael so far as his written work is concerned. He considers that in a measure the oath of secrecy has been removed from the members of the organization, but only so far as the doing of the particular camp that condemned the Nationalist to death is concerned. On this point the officials do not agree with him, and when he is put upon the stand to-day an effort will be made to compel him to expose the inner ramifications of the organization. The police authorities confirm the report that the expressman who hauled the furniture from the Clark street flat to the Lakeview cottage has been found. He will be placed on the stand to-morrow, and his evidence will go far toward fastening the crime on certain suspected individuals.

THE DANVILLE DISASTER.
Six Deaths Reported and Many Others Not Expected to Live.

DANVILLE, Va., June 1.—Details of the disaster of yesterday show that the loss of life and property was greater than was at first supposed. The dozen men at work on the Pean building had but little warning to make their escape ere the crash came. A white man named E. W. Young, the boss brick-layer, was at work on the fifth floor. He jumped from the building to the ground below, sustaining internal injury, and had his shoulder injured; Tom Carter, a colored brick carrier, was on the sixth floor, and as the building separated he went through to the cellar and suffered a wrench in the back. Most of the brick-layers stopped work at 11 o'clock or the loss of life and injury to person would have been much greater. As it is, two persons were killed outright and nine injured. Four of them have since died. Crowds soon gathered, and in a driving rain went to work removing the debris in order to get out those supposed to be under it. After hard work the body of William Young, white, a carpenter, was reached, and when taken out there was hardly a whole bone in his body. His neck was broken and resting on one of his legs, while the body was doubled up in a knot. The following is a list of the killed and wounded: Killed—Robert Pruitt, white, carpenter, death instantaneous; William Young, white, carpenter; B. G. Jones, white, carpenter, crushed internally, skull fractured; Buck Koofer, colored, hod carrier, skull crushed; Henry Oakes, white, carpenter, skull cracked and hurt internally; D. S. Collier, white, carpenter, skull crushed, arm broken, injured internally; injured—William H. Crowley, white, carpenter, hurt in head, may recover; Thomas Sawyer, white, carpenter, two ribs broken; E. W. Young, boss brick-layer, injured in shoulder and internally; John Strainer, colored, hurt about the body, but will recover; Tom Carter, colored, brick-carrier, hurt in back and internally. The loss by the disaster will probably reach $12,000.

The Parnell Commission.

LONDON, June 1.—At the sitting of the Parnell commission yesterday Mr. Reid of the Parnellite council stated that inquiry had resulted in the finding of thirty books belonging to the National League, which would be produced in court. Mr. Lockwood, one of the Parnellite counsel, produced a pass book apparently belonging to Mr. Justin McCarthy, which dated from November, 1880, to May, 1887, which contained an entry of a check for £100 paid to Frank Berne, the dynamite. Mr. McCarthy informed the court that the pass book did not belong to him; that it never was in his possession, and that he did not know that the book existed.

Investigating Physicians.

PITTSBURG, June 1.—The committee of the state board of health, appointed to investigate charges against Dr. Van Kirk of McKeesport and Campbell of Latrobe of issuing certificates for the transportation of corpses of persons who had died of contagious diseases, began its work yesterday. The case of Dr. Van Kirk was first taken up, but after an exhaustive inquiry, he succeeded in convincing the committee that the case, while one of carelessness, was not done with criminal intent.

"E Pluribus Unum" on Coins.
"Did you know that the legend 'E Pluribus Unum,' which has appeared on different United States coins, was never authorized to be so placed by law?" said a numismatist. "It was first used in that way in 1796. There was no United States mint then, but there was a private one at Newburg, N. Y., and the motto of the United States was first placed on a copper coin struck at that mint. Few collections have specimens of this coin. They are valuable. In 1787 a goldsmith named Braher coined a piece which was known as the $10 gold piece, and the motto placed in this form, 'Unum E Pluribus,' was stamped upon it. The coin is worth today $2,000, and only four are known to be in existence. In 1787 the motto also appeared on various copper coins of the State of New Jersey. A great many of our early coins, before there was any legal authority for national coinage here, were made in England. The State of Kentucky had some peculiar copper coins which were minted in England in 1791 and bore the national motto. The United States mint was established in 1792, but the use of the motto on any of the gold, silver or copper coins was not authorized or directed by any of the provisions of the act establishing it. The motto had not appeared on any of our coins since 1837 until the present silver dollar was coined. It remained on our early gold and silver coins until 1834, when it was omitted from the gold coins. In 1836 it was dropped from the silver twenty-five cent piece and the following year from all silver coins."—Philadelphia Press.

A Monkey Feels Its Fate.

Not long ago the authenticated case of the suicide of a dog from grief at being beaten by its master was chronicled, and now we read of a monkey destroying itself under very remarkable circumstances. The facts of the case, which are positively vouched for by a correspondent writing to a Paris contemporary from Montichard, in the department of Loir-et-Cher, are as follows: A learned monkey, named Bertram, was deeply attached to its owner, who, among other tricks, had taught it to fire a pistol while galloping on the back of a dog. The master of the animal, it seems, lately met with certain domestic troubles, and, in a dejected frame of mind a few days ago, he sent a bullet through his head, death being instantaneous. The monkey was present at the death of his master, and probably took in every particular. In any case, when a doctor was called in to see if life was extinct in the man, he was astonished to find himself in the presence of a double suicide, the monkey's body being stretched beside that of his master, with the revolver clasped between its fingers. It is stated that the animal picked up the pistol after his master had blown out his brains and imitated what he had just seen done, sending a bullet through his head precisely as the man had done.—London Standard.

The Voltaic Battery.

At the very beginning of the present century Volta, stimulated by Galvani's recent discovery of what he called "animal electricity," invented the "pile" and the "crown of cups." We now speak of any equivalent arrangement as a voltaic battery. Without attempting to trace out the path of discovery and invention pursued by Volta, it will be sufficient for our purpose if we make clear the general construction and action of such an apparatus.

If a plate of zinc and a similar one of copper be nearly immersed in water containing a little sulphuric acid, which may be held in any suitable vessel, no noteworthy action will be apparent so long as the metals do not touch; but if they be brought in contact, or be joined by means of a conductor, bubbles of hydrogen gas will at once appear on the surface of the copper, and the zinc will more or less rapidly dissolve to form zinc sulphate with the acid.

If the plates be separated, and the portion of the zinc which remains above the liquid be tested with a very delicate electroscope, it will be found to be charged with negative electricity, and in like manner the corresponding portion of the copper plate will be found to be charged with positive electricity.—Professor C. F. Drackett in Scribner's.

Plenty of Oil.

The fear that there would be an oil famine in the near future has been expressed again and again; but the figures given by The Oil City Derrick and endorsed by Bradstreet go to show that the Pennsylvania and Virginia belt alone is practically inexhaustible. So far the yield from this tract of 204 square miles has been over 240,000,000 barrels. The estimate is that the possible future yield that exist in Canada, in Colorado, California and elsewhere, both at home and abroad. The yield per square mile has been for fifteen years 1,000,000 barrels. There seems to be no reason to fear that the oil supply will fall before its substitute is fully established.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

The Eiffel Tower.

The whole tower could be lifted by four men of average strength. The case has been proved. When it was about half its present height a few men actually did lift it. This is not humbug; the thing is perfectly simple. The construction of the tower is based on the cantilever principle, and its bulk of 6,400 tons is so adjusted as to press on the foundation with less weight than that of a man in an armchair on the floor.

Is the tower beautiful? No. But it has the erect, fragile looking elegance of an obelisk not hewn out of red granite, but knit of dark hued meshes.—Eugile Mielche in Paris Illustrate.
