BOY DROWNED.

Son of Assemblyman Hemminger Lost in Susquehanna—Body Not Recovered.

Oscar Hemminger, the 13 year old son of Dr. C. J. Hemminger, member of the house of representatives from Somerset county lost his life at Harrisburg Monday afternoon in the Susquehanna river in an effort to rescue a companion whom he believed was drowning.

Representative Hemminger moved to Harrisburg with his family at the beginning of the year and resided in the eastern part of the city, where the son attended school. Monday was the first day of half-session school and young Hemminger and some companions went to Island Park to swim. Among the boys was Chester Brownagle, aged 11 years.

After young Hemminger had returned to the island, following a swim in shallow water, Brownagle got in to a swift current and was carried swiftly downstream. He shouted for help and young Hemminger threw him a rope. This Brownagle missed. Hemminger swam out after the drowning boy. As Hemminger overtook his companion the former sank and disappeared. The cries of the boys on the island attracted the attention of a sand dredger and he pushed a sand float in front of young Brownagle and pulled him out of the water.

Search for the body of young Hemminger was continued until long after dark Monday, but the searchers were unrewarded for their efforts. Representative Hemminger offered a reward of $100 for the finding of the body. The Rev. J. Elliott Wright, chaplain of the house, during his prayer at the opening session Monday evening referred to the death of the boy and Tuesday a resolution of sympathy was presented.

Dr. Hemminger, whose home is at Rockwood, is well known throughout the county as one of the leading practitioners. The sad news of the death of his son reached here on Tuesday noon and much sympathy is expressed for the bereaved parents. Interment will in all probability take place at Rockwood.

KILLED AT MSPADDEN

The body of George Slavin, aged about 40 years, who was run down and instantly killed at McSpadden by train No. 5 on Monday evening, was brought to the Reich morgue on train No. 16 the same evening and prepared for burial. Among other things found in the unfortunate man's pockets was a certificate from a labor employment agency in Chicago setting forth that his residence was on Ogden avenue in that city, and that he had accepted employment from the agency on a job being done by the Pennsylvania railroad at Newcomerstown, Ohio. He also had a pawn slip from a Conneville money lender showing that he had pawned his watch for $1.00 on the same day that he met his death. The remains will be held here pending word from his Chicago friends, who have been notified. The remains were shipped to Chicago on Tuesday.

SECURED BIG FEATURE

An announcement that will appeal wonderfully to its ever-widening circle of readers in this community has just been made by the Pittsburgh Dispatch to the effect that the world-renowned George Ade, master hand at the art of tale making, will write exclusively for that popular journal. "Newest Fables in Slang," the title of the latest from the Ade factory for sprightly humor of pith and point, will begin appearing in The Sunday Dispatch next Sunday, June 8, and thereafter for many weeks.

The famous George opens his big series with "The New Fable of the Speedy Sprite," one of the best he ever produced.

"One Monday morning a rangy and well-conditioned Elfin of the Young Unmarried Set, Yclept Loretta, emerged into the Sunlight and hit the Concrete Path with a ringing heel."

Thus this Newest Fable starts, and will be seen only in The Sunday Dispatch next Sunday, June 8.
