ADDISON.

Addison, the beautiful little municipality on the national pike, which runs from Baltimore to Wheeling and on west, the town which every inhabitant knows is 4 miles east of Somerset, 2 3/4 miles to the state line, 12 miles from Grantsville, 26 miles from Frostburg, 37 miles from Cumberland, 28 miles from Uniontown, 38 miles from Brownsville, 96 miles from Wheeling and by township road 26 miles from the county seat. The population is about 300, giving the town 62 voters, nearly equally divided politically. The town was founded by Peter Augustine, who was born about 1760, at the beginning of the last century, probably about 1802, and had been known for many years as Petersburg, in honor of its founder, Peter Augustine.

Peter Augustine had three sons—Frederick, Jacob and Peter. The well known and influential people of the town and community are the descendants, who are the children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren of the three sons of the founder of Petersburg, or Addison, as it is now known. Addison, as a municipality, can trace its history back over a period of but little more than one year. The date of incorporation is February 25th, 1912. Charley Rishbarger is the popular burgess and P. J. Shirer is the president of council.

The town has three general stores whose proprietors are Robert E. Ross, Frank Straw and Wm Barclay. There are also three blacksmiths; Thomas E. Null, Joe Null and Frank Shirer.

The town and surrounding support a flourishing bank with a capital of $50,000 and a healthy surplus. There are three churches in the town, Lutheran, Methodist and Disciple.

The Rush Hotel is the well known hostelry in the village, carefully conducted by James Rush.

The people of the town are thrifty, and it is said, that with very few exceptions all the people live in their own homes. When teaming was in the height of its prosperity, the town played a very important part. At the east end of town, coming over the hill from Listonburg, one is impressed with the architecture of a two story building of massive stones. The building is octagonal and has at a distance the appearance of an observatory, but this building is simply an evidence of the amount of teaming that was done years ago, when at the gate house the gatekeeper went up in the tower to inform himself of the number of teams that were headed in his direction.

This gate house is the only one of its kind on the old National Pike, and is now occupied by F. B. Nicklow, who holds a state position taking care of the National Pike. The older the gate house becomes, the more the people think of it and venerate it as a link between the past and present age in which we now live. The people are minded to have the State make an appropriation so that it may be preserved to posterity as a land mark in the growth and progress of our country. This shows a splendid veneration for the past, and it seems this spirit holds the people very strongly and manifest itself in another direction, namely in the cemetery of Addison, which is known far and wide. They have an unusual respect for "God's acre."

At the entrance are two stone pillars that were formerly used at the gate house referred to above. There is also a cannon placed in the cemetery which had been shipped from California at the expense of the government. A resident formerly of this community and a member of the regiment to which Mr. Black belonged of the Black post G. A. R. maintained his interest in the east and through his efforts and courtesy the cannon became the property and the ornament in the Addison cemetery.

The famous Addison cemetery is only of the present generation. Charles Rishbarger, the present burgess, had the first burial. By the way Charley is the eldest in length of years, undertaker in Somerset county. Mrs. Henry Bird, was buried January 6th, 1882. The town has many splendid citizens, men and women who are courteous and affable. Samuel Lakel, (according to the old German spelling Loechel) is one of the fine men. He has been in the lumber business for many years. He has at the present time a tract of 300 acres which he is putting to market with his shipping point at Listonburg. Postmaster Jeffreys, Col. Augustine, Charles Rishbarger, and many others are big spirited and big hearted.

A splendid characteristic is that the people are intensely loyal and apparently of one mind when the question of Addison is involved.

Along the pike from Addison to Somerset there is a beautiful panorama of well kept farms. It is along this pike that the famous Augustine farms are located.

May the Petersburg, of old, carry with it many worthy memories of the past in the days of small things and many the history of Addison carry with it possibilities and realizations of the greater things for her people in this strenuous 20th century.

LISTONBURG.

The Listonburg Cornet Band, under the leadership of W. J. Palmer, furnished the music for the K. of P. Decoration services held at Addison Sunday afternoon. Many persons from here attended the services, and were highly gratified with the impressive manner in which the services were conducted, and the excellent address rendered to the Brotherhood by Rev. Morris, of Grantsville. Rev. Morris is an able and fluent speaker and also a true knight in the fullest sense.

While quiet reigned in our town, John Peck and Irvin Bender wended their way to Unamis, where they partook freely of the Unamis Lithia Water in regular propinquer. Mr. Karl F. Miller, proprietor of the Unamis Lithia Spring, is now extensively shipping this water to numerous cities, where it is gaining a wonderful reputation for its healing and curative powers.

On Saturday evening a birthday party was given by Ross F. Lenhart to fifty or more of his neighbors and friends in honor of his wife's forty-second birthday. It was truly a festive occasion as Mr. Lenhart had prepared a menu sufficient to satisfy the appetite of the most astute epicurean. The evening was a joyous one, the program consisted of music by the band, singing and amusement games. The crowd dispersed to the tune of Yankee Doodle.

The enterprising firm of John Curry & Son, who have a saw mill about two miles south east of this, have begun building a train road from their mill to intersect the public road at a point near Jacob Wilhelm's three-fourths of a mile from here. From this point they propose to draw the lumber direct to the rail road cars and thereby save the rehandling here in the lumber yard.

Squire T. J. Havener avers that it is a trying matter to be compelled under the law to throw bass fish back into the river after having landed them. This was his experience last week while fishing in the Yonghlo-gheny river, he landed three large bass and threw them back into the river. By this act the Squire set an example for others to follow, and every true sportsman and law-abiding citizen will do likewise.

Paul K. McMillan, of Meyersdale, was a visitor here several days of last week.

Mrs. Sue Liston, of Meyersdale, was attending to business here on Monday and Tuesday.

THE JOYS OF FISHING.

"The ideal way to go a-fishing in the mountains is with a strongly built spring wagon and a stout, steady team of horses." Such is the introduction to a special article on Colorado Trout Fishing in the June Sports Afield. Where the Striped Bass is King, The Big Trout of the Old Dam Pool, on the Hudson River, and Old Mose tell of other fine fishing, to be had in York State, in Vermont, in Northern Wisconsin and elsewhere. In the department devoted especially to camping and shooting we note a number of able articles on sport in Maryland, Texas, Florida, Kentucky, Illinois, Alaska,

California and Scotland. The Twelve and the twenty-eight—an article advocating the use of small bore guns and the series of papers on The Deer and its habits cannot fail to prove of interest to sportsmen in all parts of the world. Our merry-hearted friend, The Man with the Typewriter, is as quaintly entertaining as ever, and the entire issue is full of interest. Your news-dealer can supply you; if not, send 15 cents to Sports Afield, 542 So. Dearborn street, Chicago, Ills.
