SUMMER SPRAYING FOR PEACHES.

A wide awake Pennsylvania fruit grower wrote to State Zoologist H. A. Surface, at Harrisburg, and said he was unable to find much literature on the subject of "summer spraying for peaches." He asked for advice on this subject and received the following reply:

The chief reason why you find little on the subject of summer spraying for peaches is that as a rule this is unnecessary. The only summer spraying that is important, and recommended as a general rule, is the spraying to prevent ripe rot or brown rot. This is to be done by the use of the self-boiled Lime-sulphur Solution, made according to Scott's formula and published in detail in a Farmer's Bulletin from the U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., which can be obtained free of charge by writing there for it.

According to this formula eight pounds of quick lime and eight pounds of flowers of sulphur are to be slaked together with eight gallons of water for ten minutes, then enough water is added to make fifty gallons. If chewing insects are liable to be present two pounds of arsenate of lead can be added. Strain and spray. The best strainer is the conical wire strainer devised by me and of which I send you a cut. I am not interested in its sale, but I wish every person to use something that will give satisfaction.

Every person who contemplates summer spraying of peaches should write to Washington for the bulletin on Scott's formula for self-boiled Lime-sulphur Solution and follow the directions carefully.

There is some danger of injury to foliage, as certain limes are stronger than others and may make it so strong as to take off the leaves. Spray only a few trees and watch the results. Within two or three days if the leaves are all right then the formula is not too strong. If they show injury it should be diluted more. The self-boiled lime-sulphur contains a great deal of sediment of fine lime and undissolved sulfur, and should be stirred frequently.

Of course, during the summer is the time to give the trees treatment by either washing or spraying the base of the trunk to prevent borers, as described several times in my circulars, as a result of my own experiments and discovery."

To Produce Good Grapes.

A Lebanon county grape grower wrote to State Zoologist H. A. Surface, Harrisburg, and asked him whether he should spray his grapes or bag them. The reply of Professor Surface is as follows: "It is possible to spray your grapes with arsenate of lead and Bordeaux mixture and have good results. Use three pounds of bluestone and four pounds of lime in fifty gallons of water to make the Bordeaux mixture. To this add two pounds of arsenate of lead. Spraying once every two or three weeks during the principal part of the growing season will be sufficient, and will give you good returns. Of course, putting them in paper bags gives excellent protection, and if a person has only a few vines, I would recommend bagging them. This is done by pinning a two-pound bag around each cluster of grapes shortly after the blossoms fall. It keeps the insects and disease germs off, and also it keeps the grapes nice and clean. When you have more than can be economically bagged, the best treatment is to spray them well and thoroughly."

ODDS AND ENDS.

Before ironing any woolen garment add to the water one handful of salt, and see how much softer it makes the garment.

A couple of spoonfuls of borax in the water in which they are washed will remove leather stains from the feet of light colored hosiery.

Put a teaspoonful of kerosene in the starch or borax; either keeps the irons from sticking, and borax will give white things that new and ivory appearance.

Be sure to get the first cockroach that comes, and watch diligently for his followers; otherwise a colony of them will soon establish themselves and your labors be greatly increased.

For dissolving carbolic acid crystals for insecticide and disinfectant, use boiling water. For household uses, the crystals will answer, but for medicinal uses the finer preparations should be used.

To clean jet use the softest brush that can be procured and remove the dust in the most genteel manner from the carving; then touch the jet with little oil on clean cotton wool and polish with a chamois. Great care should be exercised, as the carving on jet is brittle.

It is sometimes difficult to keep the kitchen paper free of grease stains. They may be removed entirely if a mixture of pipe clay and water, made the consistency of cream, is spread over them and allowed to remain overnight. In the morning it should be removed with a clean brush or cloth.

From the fluted cardboard which is used for protecting bottles, cut circular pieces, which make excellent rests for coffee pot or hot dishes. Make flatiron holders from oblong pieces of the cardboard of three thicknesses.

Keep one or two blocks of wood or squares of oilcloth to put on the kitchen table to stand saucepans or baking tins on while their contents are receiving attention, as this precaution will save the table from becoming blackened by them.

To make iron run smoothly, get some leaves from evergreen trees. Rub hot irons on them and they will iron without sticking to starched clothes. This is used in old Virginia. Leaves may be dried for use.

CORROBORATION

Of interest to Meyersdale Readers.

For months Meyersdale citizens have seen in these columns enthusiastic praise of Doan's Kidney Pills by Meyersdale residents. Would these prominent people recommend a remedy that had not proven reliable? Would they confirm their statements after years had elapsed if personal experience had not shown the remedy to be worthy of endorsement? The following statement should carry conviction to the mind of every Meyersdale reader.

Mrs. W. C. Burket, 315 High St., Meyersdale, Pa., says: "I gladly confirm the public statement I gave praising Doan's Kidney Pills two years ago. This remedy was used in my family in a case of kidney trouble and the relief it brought has been permanent. I have often recommended Doan's Kidney Pills to other kidney sufferers and I know of cases where they have been used with just as great benefit."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

A BEAUTIFUL BOOK.

The Pennsylvania State Normal School of Indiana, Pa., is now sending out its 116 page catalogue, a very beautiful and interesting book. This school has exceptional opportunities in the matter of presenting such a catalogue. Indiana—the school in the foothills of the Alleghenies—is itself a wonderfully beautiful place.

This book tells, in many pictures and in graphic text the story of modern school life. The volume does justice to the beauty of Indiana's location—it presents many views of the big modern buildings, the fine lawns, the spreading elms, and of the hundreds of earnest young students who live and work at this famous school.

Many interesting scenes of school life are reproduced. They illustrate important features of the school—the unceasing care for the health and comfort of students, the splendid equipment of every department and the remarkable thoroughness and practical training for which Indiana is famous.

Indiana's catalogue is certainly a thing of beauty and an inspiration to young people who are ambitious. It is sent free on request.

The big school graduate, more than 300 students this year—the greatest number ever graduated by a Normal School in Pennsylvania.
