ROMESBERG.

A new town is on the map of Somerset county—the town is not so large in population now, but great in possibilities. The opening of the Black mines and the track to the B. & O. will make this a great industrial centre for years to come.

The coal company expects to ship coal from these mines by the middle of August.

Buildings are going up very rapidly in Romesberg, but still the demand for homes is such that the carpenters cannot keep up with the requirements. The houses are occupied before they are finished.

Romesberg Bros., have started a store and are already doing a good business.

The coal company has the contract to supply the B. & O. engines on the main line.

Efforts are being made to have either free mail delivery here or the establishment of a postoffice. The latter would be more satisfactory.

Since the dinkey is mean enough at times to jump the track on the curves, the expert track man thinks the rails ought to be sent back to the shops to have the corners chiseled off, while others think the rails are all right if the curves are put in properly. For this new idea in making rails for curves an increase in salary should be in order.

Romesberg is on the map to stay. Come and live among us. The Black mines will be a busy place in the future.

Work every day. Read The Meyersdale Commercial in the evening and be happy all the year 'round.

Is It Necessary to Bag Grapes?

A grape grower in the eastern part of Pennsylvania wrote to State Zoologist, H. A. Surface, Harrisburg, and asked "Is there any remedy to get good grapes without putting them in bags? I left some out last year and every one was stung. Please let me know if I can grow grapes without such great work as bagging them." To this Professor Surface replied as follows:

"Grapes will ripen as well outside of paper bags as in them. The object for placing them in bags is to keep pests away from them and keep them clean. You can spray with proper fungicides and insecticides and keep them clean. You can spray with proper fungicides and insecticides and keep the grapes healthy in this manner, and thus avoid the necessity of bagging. Commercial grape growers do not practice bagging, as it is more economical in saying time and money to spray instead to take the time to place them in bags. Where one has but a few vines, however, it pays him to take time to bag them.

"If you had sprayed with an ounce of arsenate of lead in each gallon of water beginning about the time the fruit was the size of a small pea, and repeating this once every two weeks for three or four spraying, your grapes would not have been stung. The insect you describe is the grape berry moth which damages a great deal of fruit in this state, but is easily killed by spraying with arsenate of lead. I advise bagging during June, but not before the blossoms drop. Grapes that have been bagged and kept clean should sell for a fancy price. If one can develop a special trade, such as these grapes will justify, it may pay him to place bags over them even though for market. It would scarcely pay you to attempt to place fly netting over a whole vine.

The Ability to Check

Shows Man's Supremacy

If the horses, cattle and chickens had their way they would enter the ripening hay and grain fields and eat and trample down the maturing products. Having a feast today—a famine tomorrow.

But man builds fences, mows and reaps, saves and stores away the summer's abundance for the winter's needs.

The same care, the same restraint, the prudent man employs with his money. Dollars in the pocket go quickly.

Dollars in the bank go slowly. The writing of a check causes us to think twice before spending.
