LESSON FOR SEPTEMBER 14

THE TEN COMMANDMENTS.

LESSON TEXT—Ex. 20:12-21. GOLDEN TEXT—"Thou shalt love the Lord thy God, with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy strength, and with all thy mind; and thy neighbor as thyself."—Luke 10:27.

Every commandment contained in this second table of the law is conditioned upon and rooted in that which is commanded in the first table, and all has been reiterated in the New Testament.

V. The Fifth Commandment, v. 12. The word "honor" while confined to this commandment—the relation of child to parent—is predicated upon man's relation to God on the one hand and on the other it flashes its light upon every subsequent command. Our duty to God is pre-eminent. If we neglect or disregard God's rights, the rights of man will soon be lost sight of. A due and proper regard for those to whom we owe our being is our first obligation and is here placed before those laws that deal with our relations to outsiders. Respect, esteem, obedience and support are all a part of that honor which is commanded. See Prov. 1:8; Eph. 6:1-3; Matt. 15:4-6. Notice also that woman's place is here made equal to that of the man. It is Paul who emphasizes the fact that this is the "first commandment with promise," and also that to neglect this duty is to invite punishment (Eph. 6:2-3). It is the business of the child to honor the parent, no matter what may be his character; he must not sit in judgment. On the other hand, the parent has an obligation to the child. Eph. 6:4.

Human Life Sacred.

VI. The Sixth Commandment, v. 13. This is a revelation of the sacredness of human life. God alone has the right to take away or command to take away human life. One reason for this is because we are made in his image. Gen. 9:6.

VII. The Seventh Commandment, v. 14. This commandment deals with the sanctity of the married relation and indicates the sacredness of parenthood. There is no other sin that so speedily undermines human character and overturns families, tribes and nations. It is the source of, or leads to, every crime in the calendar. It demolishes the moral sense, wrecks the body, brings a hell of remorse, misery and despair, and effectually bars man from heaven. I Cor. 6:10, 11; Heb. 13:4; Rev. 22:15.

VIII. The Eighth Commandment, v. 15. Here is a statement which deals with the sacred rights of possession. To take that which rightfully belongs to another is to steal. It does not matter if it be done "within the law" by withholding a just compensation or by gambling, it is just the same, Deut. 24:14, 15. This works both ways. The employee who steals his employer's time, the buyer or the seller who cheats, lotteries in the church or out of it, these are forms of stealing in that they take something without rendering a just equivalent of value.

IX. The Ninth Commandment, v. 16. This commandment recognizes the sacred rights of character and insists upon absolute truth as a standard of judgment. Reputation cannot be passed on from father to son; it is much harder to secure than money and is far more valuable. Backbiting, false slander are not compatible with love for your neighbor. To give wings to a bit of scandal you have received is to violate this law.

The Most Severe.

X. The Tenth Commandment, v. 17. This is perhaps the most severe requirement of any in this second group of laws. The man who keeps this will readily and easily keep the four which immediately precede it. All desire for those things that belong to another is inconsistent with true love, and in the light of this law such a desire is sin, yea, more, it is idolatry. Col. 3:5. Hard as it is there is, however, a way to observe it, viz., to "love your neighbor as yourself." Such love will desire that he shall have the best things and consequently makes it impossible for us to covet his possessions.

The effect (v. 18) upon the people of this manifestation of God's glory and the giving of the law was that they were filled with fear and besought Moses rather than God to speak with them. This is a commentary upon the words of Paul just referred to, and an illustration of the need of the law as a revelation of sin. Moses responded (v. 20) to their fear with words of assurance, and explained to them that this fear was to prove them that they should not sin.

Life that is truly rooted in religion expresses itself in morality of the highest type. Without right relations with God we cannot expect that children will properly honor their parents, that human life will be safe, that the marriage relations will be held as sacred, that the rights of property will be recognized, that truth will be the basis of judgment, or that covetousness and envy will not be the inspiration of fraud and wrong doing of all kinds. On the other hand, wherever God is supreme. The lives of men harmonize with the professions of their lips.
