FALL HATS AND FIXINGS.

Small Hats Lead—Larger Shapes Promised—Velvet First Favorite—Niniche Shapes in Lace—Upstanding Garnitures—Girdles and Contours.

The above designs are by The McCall Company, New York, Designers and Makers of McCall Patterns.

New York Sept., 27, 1913.

School girl or grandmother, debutante or matron, of home making taste, or business capacity, every woman is at this time of the year interested in the subject of new head-wear. Velvet shapes are generally seen early in September, even though torrid temperatures prevail, and so accustomed have we become to this fad, that a velvet hat topping a lingerie frock has ceased to seem incongruous.

NEW SHAPES.

Small hats lead, some of them so small that they are just sufficient to form a base for the towering trimmings of wired net, tulle, lace, or upstanding butterfly feathers which are the favorite garnitures shown. While sold crowns are most worn there are many shapes stiffly modeled, some of the prettiest, with little or no brim except at the left side where the brim turns up high above the top of the crown, with a butterfly, or antennae like feathers poised at the top of this flare, in a way that adds much to the height of the wearer. Flat niniche shapes, in shirred silk or transparent lace, as well as in velvet, are built up with high trimmings at the back, where they turn up to display the coiffure. These and many other models are very often fastened with the "Tommy Atkins" chin strap, which is gaining ground, and is a boon to the woman whose chin needs help, though, truth to tell it's the very young contingent who use this device most. The strap gives a very saucy air when attached to one of the high, drum shapes that are almost or quite brimless and a rather prim demure look where the hat has a drooping brim.

For auto wear, and general knock-about use, shapes of plush made up without stiffening, and which pull down well over the ears, are prime favorites. A very small hat of this genre seen recently was of purple taffeta silk, cut in strips and braided like a straw, then serve in a shape half hood, half hat, but altogether smart looking and comfortable.

NEW GIRDLES.

The Turkish sash that, going twice about the waist, droops well over the hips, and ties at the left side, is still with us, and, strange to say is successfully worn even where the girth of the figure would seem to preclude its use. Newer however, are girdles of leather or satin hat start a bit below the natural waistline and go up to a height of eight to twelve inches. These are especially attractive in suede leather, dyed in all modish colors, and often form the sole contrasting color note in the dress, though this is apt to be repeated in hosiery, parasol and in the hat or its trimmings.

CORSET LINES.

Corset lines change somewhat each season to keep pace with the new models launched by fashion leaders. No woman who aspires to appear well turned out can afford to neglect this fundamental structure which molds and holds the figure correctly if the style is selected. Fortunately for the woman whose dress allowance is limited the American corsets just launched for the Fall of 1913, can be had at reasonable figures, and one is as sure that the outlines are up-to-date in a Warner's rustproof as in the most expensive French stays more sure in fact, because these are modeled to suit not the French but the American type of figure.

NEW BLOUSES.

There is no change in the liking for transparent fabrics for waists and bodices. Full flowing lines are employed, even for tailor-made wear, but materials are so soft and clinging that the lines of a neat figure quite as well defined in these, as in the old-time tight-fitting bodice. Vest blouses, which simulate a man's vest, only that the front and back are built of the same material, come nearest to the old time fitted bodice which is threatened by designers but which still lingers in the background. These "Vestee waists," have sleeves of thin material, silk, lace, chiffon or marquisette, which usually contrast in color as well as in fabric. Very smart models of this type show the vest of brocade and the sleeve repeating one of the colors of the figured stuff. These are especially good, with the cut away coats, which require a vest to complete their effect.

CURES PIMPLES EASILY.

Simple Remedy that Clears Skin Quickly of all Eruptions.

For several weeks past S. E. Thorley has done a big business in selling Hokara, the skin healer that has won so many friends in Meyersdale.

It has been found to heal not only all minor skin trouble like pimples, blackheads, acne, herpes, scaly scalp, complexion blemishes, itching feet, piles, etc., but also the worst ulcers or even chronic eczema and salt rheum. There has yet to be found any form of wound or disease affecting the skin or mucous membrane that Hokara does not help, and its action is so quick that those who try it are simply delighted with it right from the start.

In spite of its unusual curative powers, the price is trifling. To convince every one of its merits S. E. Thorley will sell a liberal jar for 25c. And remember that if you do not think it does what it claims, you get your money back. You certainly can afford to try it on this plan. ad

The Accommodating Salt.

There isn't a better friend in the household than salt, and one can't begin to remember the half of the things it will gladly do for us if but given the opportunity.

Salt sprinkled over a carpet after it is swept will brighten the colors and kill germs.

A pinch of salt in water will help to keep cut flowers fresh.

To clean a white knit sweater or shawl put it into a flour bag containing equal parts of flour and salt and shake well. By washing will be required after this process.

For cleaning enamel bathtubs, etc., rub with a cloth saturated with kerosene, upon which has been spread a layer of salt. Afterward rinse tub with warm soapy water.

Before washing soiled handkerchiefs allow them to soak in cold water into which has been put a handful or so of salt. This makes them much easier to wash.

Before washing new goods let stand in salt water to set the color.

Salt in the bottom of the shoes in winter will help the circulation and prevent the feet from getting cold. This precaution is quite common and effective among Maine woodsmen.

A quarter of a teaspoonful in a quarter of a glass of water taken a half hour before breakfast is a good laxative and generally beneficial.

The hands of fainting persons are often rubbed with salt to help the circulation.

But of the uses of salt there seems no end.
