Miss Gertrude Hersh, and Lester Frye Engle, both of Elk Lick township, were married at Meyersdale, by Rev. H. L. Goughnour, pastor of the Meyersdale Church of the Brethren.

New Incandescent Lamp.

Another wonderful improvement in the incandescent electric lamp was recently announced from the experimental laboratories of the General Electric Company. The new lamps will cut the consumption of electricity in half, consuming only one-half watt of current for each candle-power of light. The present type of tungsten filament lamps consume one watt per candle-power.

The new lamps contain especially shaped tungsten filaments and are filled with inert gas, such as nitrogen, at a pressure of about an atmosphere. The types which it is expected to first develop are adapted to comparatively high current consumption, 6 amperes and above, and operate at an efficiency of half a watt per candle-power. This is fully twice as high an efficiency as the most efficient incandescent lamps heretofore available. The new lamps promise to be of particular value in a field not heretofore covered by incandescent lamps, and should greatly broaden the applications in which they can be used advantageously, particularly in the direction of very large candle-power units.

The research leading to this discovery has been going on in the research laboratory at Schenectady for several years.

Cream Mints.

Pound confectioners' sugar, white of egg well beaten, two teaspoons ice water, 30 drops oil of peppermint. Mix well and roll on a breadboard. Cut with a cutter about the size of a quarter of a dollar.

Cocoon Cakes.

Cup sugar, quarter cup water, let it boil until it hairs from the spoon. Beat white of an egg to a stiff froth and stir the sirup slowly into it while you keep beating. Then stir in cup of cocoon. Drop on buttered paper and bake until brown.

PRESIDENT SIGNS TARIFF BILL.

President Wilson at 9:09 o'clock Friday night signed the Underwood-Simmons tariff bill, the first great reform act of his administration and the first Democratic tariff revision enacted in a score of years.

The President signed the bill with two pens. That with which he wrote "Woodrow" was given to Representative Underwood and the other, with which he completed his signature, he presented to Senator Simmons.

The signing was witnessed by Chairman Underwood and members of the House ways and means committee; Chairman Simmons and members of the Senate financial committee, Vice President Marshall, President Pro Tempore Clark and Majority Leader Kern of the Senate, Speaker Clark, members of the cabinet and newspaper correspondents.

The law went into effect on Saturday, but collectors of customs will continue to assess the duties of the Payne-Aldrich act, withholding final liquidation of each entry until the receipt of copies of the new law. In this way, it is expected, there will be no delay in passing importations through the custom houses and the Government will be guaranteed the proper duties. It will probably require 10 days for the customs service in all parts of the country to adjust itself to the new law.

The sending of the bill to the President was preceded by a parliamentary tangle in the House, some leaders asserting the Senate's dropping of cotton futures tax amendments left no dispute, but Speaker Clark ruled the House must withdraw the Smith-Lever cotton futures tax amendment to be in accord, and this was done on motion of Chairman Underwood.

MENDS POSSIBLE FLAW.
"This bill is of too vast importance or the House not to clear up any questions of procedure," said Speaker Clark. "The measure must be put in such shape that skilled lawyers cannot pick flaws in it."

This position was endorsed by Representative Payne, the Republican tariff leader.

The House then agreed to the tariff bill conference report, at 1:22 o'clock, and Speaker Clark affixed his signature at 1:25 o'clock. It was sent to the Senate and Vice President Marshall signed the bill at 1:34 o'clock.

The bill reached the White House at 2:30 o'clock, but the President adhered to his plan not to sign the measure until 9 o'clock.

Norway skils are not made in factories, but in the homes of carpenters, who give all their time to the business, in summer laying up supplies for the coming winter.

Lawyers' Wills.
That lawyers seem unable to make their own wills has again been illustrated by the fact that the will of Lord Llandaff, the noted English judge, who died a month or two ago, has been found in a very incomplete condition. Probably the most extraordinary case of a lawyer's will that led to many legal difficulties, was that of Lord St. Leonards, who died in 1875. He boasted that he would leave behind him an absolutely perfect last will and testament, and spent years in drafting it. To secure this precious document he had a box specially made, which never left his room except in his or his daughter's custody. But when the box was opened after his death, in 1875, it was found to be empty, and the testator's intentions had to be proved from the recollection of its contents by his daughter, who had acted as his amanuensis.

Ancient Family of Bankers.
Clay tablets found in the mound of Jumjuma speak of the great banking house of the Igibi or Jacobs family of Babilonia for centuries. The ancient plan of the city has been determined; its walls have been measured; its streets have been traced. Though large parts of the city still lie buried far beneath later ruins, enough of it has been uncovered so that we are no longer dependent upon the imagination of the artist for a picture of it. We have the city itself to tell us how it looked, how its people lived and traded and worshiped, and how the great Nebuchadnezzar ruled. Thus the dead cities of the Bible are no longer dead; the spade of the excavator is restoring them to us.—Christian Herald.

Dance Reflects Its Period.
The dancing masters who attended the annual convention of the American National Association of Dancing at Asbury Park were divided in opinion as to the future of the popular dance novelties. "Dances," one expert said, "have always reflected the age of their birth. The minuet was timely in its day, and it gave way to the more rapid quadrille. The polka and waltz held out until the two-step made them appear old-fashioned, and it was only natural that a time like this, with customs and ideas which would have been impossible in the days of the quiet dance, should have produced the various new dance movements. If we should ever 'quiet down' they will be modified—if not they will stay."

ALL CHILDREN IN SCHOOL OF PRAYER

Topic—"Getting the most from prayer." Psalms 34:1-22.
A mystery, a reality—such is prayer. The wise men write learned books, endeavoring to explain prayer's processes and power on psychological grounds, but we turn from these unsatisfied. By a sense beyond explanation we know that prayer is not merely some higher science, some sublimated law, some psychological reaction. Prayer is best understood in simplest terms. We grasp its reality most clearly when our minds are most childlike. Prayer is just asking God for what we need, and expecting him to answer our prayers according to his greater wisdom. The Jesus prescription for prayer is sufficient: "Ask, and ye shall receive."

The warrant for human prayer is found in the character of God.

They get most from prayer who put most into prayer, of time, interest, faith and knowledge.

Affection understands what is mysterious to science. Loving trust finds none of the difficulties in prayer which stagger the learned critics. To the devoted heart it is perfectly clear that the great God who loves his own, prizes their confidence and delights to fulfill their requests. Because God is God, and cares for his children with a love passing that of an earthly parent, he fulfills to them all of the offices of a father.

"Blind unbelief is sure to err,
And scan his work in vain;
God is his own interpreter,
And he will make it plain."

"Judge not the Lord by feeble sense,
But trust him for his grace;
Behind a frowning providence,
He hides a smiling face."

Ordinarily, they get the most from prayer who are most in prayer.

The platform of prevailing prayer is labeled, "Thy will be done." A sense of God's sovereignty, and of his right to decide what is best, and of the wisdom of all of his decisions, must underlie all approach to the throne of grace. The Gethsemane garden cry, "Not my will, but thine, be done," is fundamental to the entire Christian idea of prayer. Stubborn self-will can command no favors from heaven.

In the school of prayer the great life lessons are learned. There it is that a sense of relations and proportions is acquired, so that life is not distorted, with the nonessentials first and the essentials last. It is a profound education for any soul to grasp the truth that God is on the throne of the universe. Then all lesser truths and facts fall into proper relationship. A sense of humility and teachableness follows naturally. One is brought into spiritual fellowship with all the family of God's praying children as he kneels before the throne; prayer is a real school of brotherhood. The elusive peace which the world so vainly pursues becomes the possession of the one who enters often into the prayer closet. Strength, wisdom, contentment, power, all await the pupil in the school of prayer.

"There is a spot where spirits blend,
Where friend holds fellowship with friend,
Through sundered far; by faith they meet
Around the common mercy seat."

"There, there on eagle wings we soar,
And time and sense seem all no more,
And heaven comes down our souls to greet,
And glory crowns the mercy seat."

Poise of soul is acquired in the school of prayer.

Every growing life needs periods of detachment. "Come ye apart," is the master's word to all his disciples. Freedom from dependence upon and entanglement with the world is won by him who goes apart to pray. In this experience of isolation and meditation he realizes himself, as well as God. George Herbert's injunction is wise:

"By all means use some times to be alone;
Salute thyself, see what thy soul doth wear,
Dare to look within thy chest, for it is thine own."

And tumble up and down what thou findest there."

The Good Shepherd.
"The Lord is thy keeper."—Ps. cxli.
5. We may lie down in peace, and sleep in safety, because the Shepherd of Israel neither slumbers nor sleeps. No foe or thing of evil can ever surprise our ever-watchful Guardian, or overcome our Almighty Deliverer. He has once laid down his life for the sheep; but now he ever liveth to care for them, and to insure to them all that is needful for this life and for that which is to come.—Rev. J. H. Taylor.
