

San-Jose Scale Treatment

A fruit grower in Indiana county wrote to Prof. H. A. Surface, State Zoologist, Harrisburg, stating that he occasionally found trees badly infested with San Jose scale, although in most cases the pests had not become abundant in this county. He said that he was trying to get his neighbors to destroy infested trees so as to save others from infestation, and asked Prof. Surface what he thought of this plan. The reply of the latter gives information useful to others, and of special interest during this period of scale agitation. It is as follows:

"I do not think it necessary to destroy any tree because infested with the scale. Spray it with the boiled lime sulfur solution. My neighbors have had it on their trees for years, but I have not felt like asking them to spray, because the treatment I give my trees is the same, whether my neighbors spray or not. Perhaps a few more scales come over the fence when the wind was blowing from their trees to mine, but they are easily suppressed by spraying, at any time during the dormant season, with the boiled lime sulfur solution, either home made or commercial.

"The best preparation for destroying the San Jose scale is made by boiling one pound of quick lime and two pounds of sulfur together with each gallon of water for three-fourths of an hour, and then storing as long as it is wanted, and when you are ready to use it dilute with about six or seven times its bulk of water. It will keep any length of time and is just the same as the commercial lime-sulfur solution. For more accurate testing when you are doing some spraying one should have a hydrometer, which is a small instrument made for testing the strength of solutions.

"The chief causes of failure in controlling the San Jose scale very effectively and very cheaply have been either from using the wrong material or not using it strong enough or not using it thoroughly. If the boiled lime-sulfur is used strong as I have directed, or as tested with the hydrometer, and if the application is thorough, there will be no further trouble with San Jose scale until the next dormant season, when there should be another spraying for this pest.

"The parasites which have clean up the San Jose scale in this region, and which have been sent to certain persons requesting the same, may prove to be efficient in the course of time in other regions, but I do not recommend any person to fall to spray his trees with the boiled lime-sulfur solution during the dormant season if they have live scale on them. You can soon learn if the scale is alive or not, and if parasitized by sending us cuttings of infested twigs."

Lime Sulfur Solution Not Poisonous

A false rumor is being circulated to the effect that the lime-sulfur solution is a poison and is liable to prove injurious to bees, or beets, or man. This solution, which is the standard and now almost universally used material for dormant spraying of trees, bushes, shrubs and vines of all kinds at any time during the leafless period, is composed of nothing whatever but sulfur and lime. Both of these are harmless materials, and the compound itself while caustic or strong is not a poison. A person could breathe in a mist of it without being injured, and could drink water containing it without being poisoned, as it is not an arsenical poison or any other poison. He could wash his hands in the strongest solution and could eat fruit from the uncovered hands without drying them and would not be poisoned in the least.

When the writer had his bees in an apple orchard at Camp Hill, near Harrisburg, sprayed his trees with strong lime-sulfur solution until the bees were yellow, and the bees flew through the mist of spray and were not killed nor harmed in the least. Instead of the lime-sulfur being poisonous or injurious it is the reverse, and beneficial because it is a germicide, and if the walls and floors of a building were washed with this material, they would be far more healthful than otherwise.

A person once after using this material was taken sick from other causes, and it was impossible to convince the people of the neighborhood that he was not poisoned by the lime-sulfur solution. It was merely a guess, but as they had no other theory to offer it was allowed to remain as a false assumption, doing an injustice to the material itself and to all persons concerned.

It must be remembered that no person adds arsenate of lead or any poison to the lime-sulfur solution as a dormant or winter spray. This preparation is made by merely boiling sulfur and lime together and adding water to it. This makes the complete spray material. The original ingredients are wholesome rather than objectionable. The persons who imagine that this material is poisonous should know the facts immediately, as they will stand in the way of progress and be living examples of persons who refuse to be convinced when the truth is placed before them.

INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(By E. O. SELLERS, Director of Evening Department, The Moody Bible Institute, Chicago.)

LESSON FOR NOVEMBER 23

JOSHUA THE NEW LEADER.

LESSON TEXT—Joshua 1:1-9. GOLDEN TEXT—"Be strong and of good courage." Joshua 1:9.

"Now it came to pass" (v. 1). Things do not happen in the kingdom of God, they "come to pass." This world, nations, families or individuals were not set in motion by a creator who has gone off neglectful of his creatures, nor has he left them to blind fate or inflexible law. Attention is also drawn to the time, "after the death of Moses."

The call was clear and unquestioned, for the Lord "spoke." Our highest responsibility is to that call which comes from the highest source of authority. This call came in the time of great need, Israel is without a leader. Then follow the first words of Jehovah to this newly chosen leader (v. 2) and which constitute his charge, "Moses my servant is dead, now, therefore arise." This suggests a prayerful attitude on the part of Joshua, but in no way is it to be construed that Moses was a hindrance to this forward march of the people of God. Rather, that Moses' work was completed and on the basis of his work an advance was to be made.

Obedience to Law.

The conditions laid upon Joshua were: (1) Confidence due to this promise of the presence of Jehovah (v. 5). The personal pronoun "I" is used seven times in these nine verses as though God would make confidence doubly assured. But confidence alone was not enough, hence the necessity of "courage" (v. 6). Strength is due to confidence and quietness, Isa. 30:15, but courage is the active principle which is the evidence of our strength and courage. Conquest was not alone conditioned upon courage (v. 6), but also upon the sure foundation of the word and oath of Jehovah. But strength and courage are maintained by obedience to law whether it be physical, civil or spiritual, hence the words of verse 7, the possession of this land depended upon absolute unflinching, invariable adherence and observance of the law, "which Moses my servant commanded."

Confidence and Authority.

But Jehovah never leaves his own (v. 5), Matt. 28:20, nor does he leave man to blind fate or fortuitous circumstances. Therefore we read in verse 8 the counsel of Jehovah as to the method whereby Joshua and Israel may "prosper" (v. 7) or according to the margin "do wisely," viz, they shall meditate upon the books of the law. This verse is enough for the entire class session. The leader, be preacher or teacher, who has any doubt about the word of God, or stands dumb before the empty tomb had better seek a new vocation for he is the apostle of a dying, disintegrating class or church and a decadent faith. The origin of man, the mystery of life, the destiny of the soul, demands the voice of confidence and authority not of uncertainty and doubt. True prosperity and wisdom are conditioned upon our taking the word of God as the man of our counsel, the light of our path, our daily meditation. The definite result of such a course is set before Joshua, and in addition he was promised the companionship (v. 9) of Jehovah every step of the way. It is interesting in this connection to remember that Joshua was associated with Moses in the first experience of war in the history of this young nation.

Conclusion. The greatest lesson before us at this time is that of continuity of the purposes of God. As great and important as Moses has been during his 40 years of leadership, yet he was not necessary. The instrument of divine deliverance, direction and discipline, yes, the voice of God to Israel, the receiver of their complaints and of their confessions, yet now he has been removed. What a tremendous blank he must have left. Yet Israel is to go forward, there is to be no halting in its progress. God had been training men for 40 years, one of whose faith failed not at the sight of the giants, one who had fellowship with the old and is now to face the new. We recall the words of John Wesley, inscribed upon his memorial tablet in Westminster abbey, "God buries his workmen, but carries on his work." Each individual in the long succession of leaders has his appointed task, and as he is loyal completes that task thereby preparing the way for a new leader. The abiding principles that condition each man's success are loyalty and obedience.

The Golden Text is in substance thrice repeated. First, Joshua was to be strong and of good courage because of the work ahead of him (v. 6); second, he was to be strong and courageous in the observance of the law; and lastly he was to be strong and courageous in order to avoid the perils of fear and dismay which were to beset the path of advance (v. 9).

A study of the remainder of this chapter reveals not only the orderly response of the people but that the people, as well as God, also demanded of their leader that he should "be strong and of a good courage."

Mixed Metaphor.

"Sir Arthur T. Quiller-Couch, since he accepted the chair of English literature at Cambridge, has blossomed out as a very witty lecturer," said a man who knows him.

"I attended one of Q's lectures the last time I was at Cambridge. I still remember an anecdote wherewith he illustrated the rottenness of fancy his falutin' writing.

"He condemned first the fancy phrases so common in the magazines and popular novels—and then he said that these phrases were as absurd to cultivated ears as the telegrams that the babu sent from Bombay to announce the death of his mother.

"The babu's telegram ran: "Regret to announce that hand which rocked the cradle has kicked 'the bucket.'"

No More Use for the Ax. For some time there has been in more or less limited use a system of felling trees by which a heated wire is drawn across the trunk and gradually eats its way through. An improvement on this has been patented recently, in which the necessary heat is generated by the passage of the wire back and forth over the tree trunk. In order to increase the heat the wire is slightly roughened, and this also assists in tearing away the fiber of the wood, facilitating the passage of the wire. The new scheme is just as rapid as the older one, and a great improvement on the use of the time-honored ax.

Right-Handed Plants.

That there are right-handed plants and left-handed plants has been reported to the Cambridge (England) Philosophical society by R. H. Compton. In an examination of eight varieties of two-rowed barley the first leaf was found to twist to the left in 58 per cent of more than 12,000 seedlings, and an excess of left-handed growth was found also in millet and oats. In corn there seemed to be a marked tendency either way. No evidence of hereditary peculiarity appears to have been obtained and special significance of the results was pointed out.
