

On Easter Morn

The softened winds to every quickened ear Breathe music sweet, telling the time of year.
All nature sings, and in glad antiphon, Blent with the organ's tone, The voice of man in praise to heaven is borne.

WITH April's fairest offerings we adorn Our altars, embleming eternal spring O'er winter triumphing, And good o'er evil, joyous-ness o'er gloom—Yea, life o'er death, Christ risen from the tomb
On Easter morn.

Before the First Easter Day

ON Palm Sunday each year the minds of millions of Christians the world over are occupied with thoughts of a scene in Jerusalem.

On the eastern spur of the Mount of Olives lies the little town of Bethany a few furlongs away from Jerusalem.
On the memorable morning of his entrance into the city Jesus secured near Bethany the donkey upon which he made his memorable journey to Jerusalem. The occasion was the feast of the Passover, and pilgrims from Galilee and eastern Judea, the localities in which his ministry had been performed, accompanied him upon the journey.
As they beheld him riding on an ass (the royal beast in the days of David) the hopes of the multitude were suddenly revived. Quickly the news of his coming spread through the low-lines of pilgrims. Those ahead to-palm branches from the trees by the wayside, while others spread their garments and cloaks along the way of which he was to pass, while they joined in a triumphant song:

Hosanna to the son of David!
Blessed is he who cometh in the name of the Lord!

Hosanna in the highest!

Slowly the procession came around the southern end of the Mount of Olives, with the gorge of the Kedron to the south, until the wonderful city of Jerusalem burst into view. Then, descending into the valley, Jesus entered the city through this gate in the midst of a cheering multitude of people, who waved their palm branches before him. Just as the sun was setting behind the hills he found his way to the temple. He sought not a waiting throne, but a quiet place for worship. Then in the hush of the evening, refusing to give any encouragement to the selfish material hopes of the populace, he quietly returned to his humble home in Bethany.

The gate, as we see it today, is entirely sealed. Many hundred years after Christ had passed through it the city fell into the hands of the Turks, and it was their belief and fear that our Lord Jesus was about to return and re-enter the city through this gate. It was not their will that he do this, and they believed that by sealing it up in this manner his coming would be prevented, and so it remains to this day, the Sealed Golden Gate, the most remarkable and interesting Biblical landmark in the world.

How to Dye Eggs.

If you will save the dry, brown skins from onions and boil the eggs with the onion skins long enough for the eggs to be hard you will obtain beautifully dyed Easter eggs of various shades of brown, with no taste of the onion and no danger of poison, as from some other dyes.—Woman's Home Companion.

NEW YORK FASHIONS.

New York, March 31—
No one epoch is responsible for present styles, though early Victorian and Directoire influences predominate. It is a queer mixture.
Victoria and Josephine, but the woman of to-day considers only the appeal which the various models make to her tastes and requirements.

The Directoire influence is responsible for the striped skirts, topped with little coats of plain material. With these the various tricorne and high turban hats are in perfect accord skirts and tightly outlined bodice, the prettiest hats have wide brims touched up with groups of pink roses suggesting dainty gowns that should smell of lavender. Slim yellow gloves have been brought out in Paris for this type of costume, and oddly shaped small parasols that will give them the proper cachet when Summer comes.

turnover collars of stiff white organ-die and lace berthas around the round decolletage caught with full blown roses or Camellias are all Victorian trifles revived. Then there are dancing skirts with old fashioned lace flounces festooned under roses, and long lace sleeves prolonged over the hand into mits with thumbs.

Sleeve Fancies

While long tight sleeves are very much worn there is so far no indication of leg of mutton styles, but elbow sleeves are undoubtedly on the way as indicated by new smart models. There is a delightful liberty in the way of arm covering—to each arm its sleeve, seems to be the prevailing motto. If the arm is lovely, the Greek shoulder drapery is a fitting setting, since it hides no fraction of the arm.
Then there are the varous wing sleeves with their filmy, floating draperies to match or contrast with the gown. These have a most enticing effect in the dance. Sometimes these draperies are caught to the wrist with bracelets of crystal or they may be left swaying to form a graceful veil for the back of the figure.

Skirt Lines

With all the prevalence of circular flares in skirts and coats, the tunic topping a quite narrow skirt is not yet out of the running, for many women are loth to abandon its specially becoming lines. They like the tunic and have still the backing of some of the most noted designers but it is a waning not a coming style.

Princess Gowns

No one who sees the way in which street gowns or coat dresses as they are often called, are being taken up by the smartly turned out crowd here, can doubt that Princess lines are coming rapidly to the fore.

Onevery new model shows the full skirt hung to the tight fitting bodice with many gathers, but rows of shirring held in with cords to preserve the princess silhouette to the knee line.

Fashionable Embroideries

Embroideries in self color with a touch of silver or gold braid are very much employed for trimmings of all sorts of gowns. The prevailing fancy for pockets, yokes and similar em-placements lend themselves to this form of decoration.

Perhaps nothing else gives such an air of elegance and distinction to a costume as just the right design wrought on the dress material. Clever needlewomen are taking advantage of this mode and turning out embro-dered emplacements only at the cost of a little time, which would add greatly to the cost of their garments if the work had to be paid for.

JOFFRE PLEASURES PUNSTERS.

Many Ads. Contain Plays on French General's Name.

Joffre's name is being widely punned on by French manufacturers and merchants. "Joffre" a thousand francs to whoever proves that the — cigarettes, or suspenders, or electric light lamps, or what not, are not of French manufacture, has come to a common enough advertisement. "Joffre is "I offer" in French.

It is told of Thiers that when he was near the end of his career a friend treated him to come out of a bottle which bore for label a gorgeous colored portrait of the statesman, who exclaimed, "Well, here at last is glory!" Already a hundred products have been named after Joffre.

The "Joffrench" combination, too, has been given to several commodities.
Man and Money.
"Themistocles preferred an honest man that wooed his daughter before a rich man. 'I would rather,' said Themistocles, 'have a man that wants money than money that wants a man.'"—Plutarch.
