Elaine moved into the drawing room Elaine moved into the drawing foom, Jehnings springing forward to part the portlares for her and passing through the room quickly where Flirty Florris sat waiting. Flirty Florrie rose and stood gazing at Elaine, apparently very much embarrassed, even after Jennings had gone. "It is embarrassing," she said final-ly, "but, Miss Dodge, I have come to you to beg for my love." The Exploits of Elaine A Detective Novel and a Motion Picture Drama order to get another. I'll have to go

I'll get this story from you, Craig.'

~

ly, "but, Miss Dodge, I have come to you to beg for my love." Elaine looked at her nonplused. "Yes," she continued, "you do not know it, but Craig Kennedy is infatu-ated with you." She paused again, then added, "But he is engaged to me." Elaine stared at the woman. She was dazed. She could not believe it. "There is the ring," Flirty Florrie added, indicating a very impressive paste diamond.

RUNNING IN THE AUDITORIUM, MEYERSDALE, EACH THURSDAY EVENING, READ THE STORY AND SEE THE PICTURES.

041

Half an hour later I was waiting house."

added, indicating a very impressive paste diamond. Quickly she reached into her bag and drew out two photographs, with out a word, handing them to Elaine. "There's the proof," Florric said simply, choking a sob. Elaine looked with a start. Sure enough, there was the neat living room in the house on Prospect avenue. In in the house on Prospect avenue. In one picture Florrie had her arms over Kennedy's shoulders. In the other, apparently, they were passionately kissing. Elaine slowly laid the photographs

Elaine slowly laid the photographs on the table. "Please—please, Miss Dodge—give me back my lost love. You are rich and beautiful—I am poor. I have only my good looks. But—I—I love him— and he—loves me—and has promised to marry me." Florrie had broken down completely end was weeping softly in a lace and was weeping softly into a lace handkerchief.

handkerchief. She moved toward the door. Elaine followed her. "Jennings-please see the lady to the door."

near the house in the suburbs to which I had been directed by the strange telephone call the day before. I noticed that it was apparently de-serted. The blinds were closed and a "To Let" sign was on the side of the The door." Back in the drawing-room, Elaine seized the photographs and hurried into the library where she could be had

Just then she heard the bell and

"There," he said, unscrewing one of the beautiful brown glass eyes of the alone.

Just then she heard the bell and Kennedy's voice in the hall.
"Hello, Walter," cried Craig at last, bustling along.
<

He took the ring, about to put it on her finger. Elaine drew away. Concealment was not in her frank na-

Concealment was not in her trank na-ture. She picked up the two photographs. "What have you to say about those?" ahe asked cuttingly. Kennedy, quite surprised, took them and looked at them. Then he let them fall carelessly on the table and dropped into a char, his head back in a burst of lanchter.

And the energy of the case and any of the poper of large terms of the solution of the case of the case embroidered tale that had caught my ear. Kennedy said nothing, but listened ntently, perhaps betraying in his face the skepticism he felt. "You see," she said, still voluble and eager to convince him, "I was only walking on the street. Here-let me show you. It was just like this." She took his arm and, before he knew, it, led him to the spot on the floor near the window which Dan had indicated. Meanwhile Dan was lis-tening attentively in his closet. "Now-stand there. You are just as I was-only I didn't expect any-thing."

ried buckled to his back. Quickly he closed down the cover of the tube, but not before a vile effluvi-um seemed to escape, and penetrate even to us in our hiding places. As "But," he began, trying to explain. "No buts," she interrupted. "Then you believe that I.--" "How can you, as a scientist, ask me to doubt the camera?" she insinuated, your work with the trying away.

he moved forward, Kennedy gave a fiying leap at him, and we followed with a regular football interference. It was the work of only a moment for us to subdue and hold him, while to doubt the camera?" she insinuated, very coldly turning away. Kennedy rapidly began to see that it was far more serious than he had at first thought. "Very well," he said with a touch of impatience, "if my word is not to be taken—I-I'II—" He had seized his hat and stick, Elaine did not deign to answer. Then, without a word, he stalked out of the door. "Sever gas," he ejaculated, as he us.

We waited a moment. Nothing hap-

As Craig Kennedy Turns on the Current Elaine's Chest Slowly Begins to

ILEI I I GE

() • ()

N THE

when 1 heard the telephone ring. it was Craig. Without a word of apology for his rudeness, which I knew had been purely absent-minded, I heard him say: "Walter, meet me in half an hour outside that Florence Leigh's bouse." The minutes passed as the police-man and I watched our prisoner in the cellar by the tube. I looked anxiously at my watch. "Craig!" I shouted at last, unable to control my fears for him. No suswer to control my fears for him. No answer. By this time Craig had come to a small, open chamber, into which the viaduct widened On the wall he found another series of iron rungs, up which he climbed. The gas was terrible. As he neared the top of the ladder he came to a shelf-like aperture in the sewer chamber, and gazed about. It was horribly dark. He reached out and feit a piece of cloth. Anxiously he pulled on it. Then he reached further into the darkness. There was Elaine, unconscious, ap-parently dead.

"Hello, Walter," cried Craig at last,

"Come on," cried Kennedy, beckon-ing us on. Quickly he rushed through the house. There was not a thing in it to change the descried appearance of the first floor. At last it occurred to Craig to grope his way down cellar. There was nothing there. Kennedy had been carefully going over the place, and was at the other side of the cellar from ourselves when I saw him stop and gaze at the floor. "Hide," he whispered suddenly to us.

move, as though some one was pulling it taut. He gazed down.
"Craig! Craig!" I called. "Is that you?"
No answer. But the rope still moved. Perhaps the helmet made it impossible for him to hear.
He had struggled back in the swriting current almost exhausted by his helpless burden. Holding 'Elaine's heat above the surface of the water and pulling on the rope to attract my attention, he could neither hear nor shout. He had taken a turn of the rope about. He had taken a turn of the rope about. He had taken a turn of the rope about. He had taken a turn of the rope about. He had taken a turn of the rope about. He had taken a turn of the rope about. He had taken a turn of the rope about. He had taken a turn of the rope about. He had taken a turn of the rope about. He had taken a turn of the rope about. He had taken a turn of the rope about. He had taken a turn of the rope about. He had taken a turn of the rope about. He had taken a turn of the rope about. He had taken a turn of the rope.
At last I could make out Kennedy dimly mounting the leidder. The weight was the unconscious body of Elaine which he steadied as he mounted the ladder. I tugged harder and he slowly came up.
Together, at last, the policeman and he slowly came up.

We waited a moment. Nothing hap-pened. Had he been seeing things or hearing things, I wondered? From our hidden vantage we could now see a square piece in the floor, perhaps five feet in diameter, slowly open up as though on a pivot. The weird and sinister figure of a man appeared. Over his head he wore a peculiar helmet with hideous glass pieces over the eyes and tubes that connected with a tank which he car-ried buckled to his back. Quickly he closed down the cover of ed the ladder. I tugged narder and he slowly came up. Together, at last, the policeman and I reached down and pulled them out. We placed Elaine on the cellar floor, as comfortably as was possible, and the policeman began his first aid mo-tions for resuscitation. "No-mo!" cried Kennedy. "Not here—take her up where the air is freacher."

fresher.

"Quick-quick!" he cried to the offi-cer. "An ambulance!" "But the prisoner," the policeman indicated.

Tresher." With his revolver still drawn to overawe the prisoner, the policeman forced him to aid us in carrying her up the rickety flight of cellar steps Kennedy followed quickly, unscrewing the oxygen helmet as he went. In the deserted living room we de posited our senseless burden, while Kennedy, the helmet off now, bent over her.

stroyer!

faintness

To an electric light socket Cratatached wires. The doctor watched dim in silent wonder. "Doctor," he asked slowly as he worked, "do you know of Professor Leduc of the Nantes School of Medi-sine?"

attendants hurried up to the door

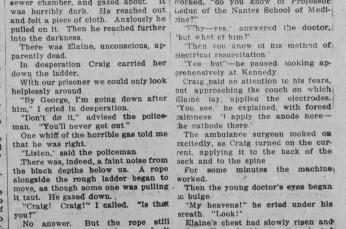

Without a word the doctor seemed to appreciate the gravity of the case. He finished his examination and shock his head. "There is no hope--no hope," he said slowly Kennedy merely stared at him But the rest of us instinctively removed our hats the rest of us instinctively removed our hats Kennelv gazed at Elaine, overcome. Was this the end? It was not many minutes later that Kennedy had Elaine in the little sit-ting room off the laboratory, having taken her there in the ambulance, with the doctor and two attendants. Elaine's body had been placed on a couch, covered by a blanket, and the shades were drawn. The light fell on her pale face. There was something incongruous about death and the vast collection of scientific apparatus, a ghastly mock-ing of humanity. How futlle was in all in the presence of the great de-stroyer!

Josephine had arrived, Aunt Josephine had arrived, stunned, and a moment later Perry Bennett. As I looked at the sorrowfal perity Aut Josephine rose slowing from her position on her knees, where she had been weeping silently beside Elaine, and pressed her hands over her eyes, with every indication of

By ARTHUR B. REEVE -The Well-Known Novelist and the Creator of the "Craig Kennedy" Stories

anted in Collaboration With the Pathe Players and the Eclectic Film Company Copyright, 1914, by the Star Company. All Foreign Rights Reserved Pres

SYNOPSIS.

The New York police are mystified by a bries of murders and other criminal is they starting leve to the sent her victims, they to the sent her victims, they to the sent her victims, they to the mouse sent the detective, they to the mouse the bound of the sent the the sent the the determined effort which Elsine and the sent of the mouse the bound and the sent the sent the the sent of the mouse the bound the sent the sent the the sent of the mouse the bound the sent the sen

TENTH EPISODE

THE LIFE CURRENT.

Assignments were being given out on the Star one afternoon, and I was standing talking with several other reporters, in the busy hum of typereportors, in the busy hall of opp writers and clicking telegraphs. "What do you think of that?" asked one of the fellows. "You're something of a scientific detective, aren't you?" Without faving claim to such a distinction, I took the paper and read:

THE POISONED KISS AGAIN. Three More New York Women Report Being Kissed by Mysterious Stranger —Later Fell Into Deep Unconsciousness—What is it? I had scarcely finished when one of the copy boys, dashing past me, called 'out: "You're wanted on the wire, Mr.

stag. Back of it could be seen a camera Jameson." I hurried over to the telephone and answered. A musical voice responded to my nurried hello, and I hastened to adopt my most polite tone. "Is this Mr. Jameson?" asked the voice. "Yes," I replied, not recognizing th "Weil, Mr. Jameson, I've heard of vou on the Star, and I've just had the polsoned kiss." The woman did not pause to catch my exclamation of astonishment, buil went on: "It was like this. A man ran up to me on the street and kissed the Jone of those new quick shutter cameras," he explained. Then woman did not pause to catch my exclamation of astonishment, buil didn't come to for ap hour- h a hoe pital-fortunately. I don't know what would have happened if thadn't been that someone came to my assisting and the man field. I though the Star-and the man field. I though the Star-as I learned only too lato. "We are," I hastened to reply. "Will you give me your name?" I hurried over to the telephone and would be interested." "We are," I hastened to reply. "Will you give me your name?" "Why, I am Mrs. Florence Leigh of No. 20 Prospect avenue," returned the voice. "Say," I exclaimed hurrying over to the editor's desk, "here's another woman on the wire who says she has received the poisoned kiss." "Suppose you take that assignment." the editor answered, sensing a possi-ble atory.

le story. I took it with alacrity, figuring out he quickest way by elevated and sur-ace to reach the address. I must say that I could scarcely crit-Timist say that I could scattery officiate the poisoned kisser's taste, for the woman who opened the door cer-tainly was extraordinarily attractive. "And you really were—put out by a kiss?" I queried, as she led me into a kiss?" I queried, as she led me into a neat sitting room. "Absolutely—as much as if it had yen by one of these poisoned needles ou read about," she replied confident-ly, hastening on to describe the affair

COLDEN

ntment

Be

7 TO 9

he ır-ral

ng ter

its to

by

ANK

PENN'A.

CLASS

DOF

-:-

D OR

EASONABLE

te to J. S. dale, Pa.,

ed Prices

Station.

ERD PENN'A

MAN,

۱., UTH, PENN'A

SPILLS

BRAND

1

ES-TER S RED and with Blue by of your ES-TER S for twenty-five lways Reliable. UGGISTS RE WORTH

pe Cough. and instant erious condfweakening ywhere.

Washing arm. Ar bought nship farm ly, hastening on to describe the affair volubly.
It was beyond me.
"May I use your telephone?" I asked.
"Surely," she answered.
I called the laboratory. "Is that you, I called the laboratory. "Is that you, Yes, Walter," he answered, recoge rice

The day before, in the suburban house, the Clutching Hand had been talking to two of his emissaries, an at tarking to two of his emissaries, an at-tractive young woman and a man. They were Flirty Florrie and Dan the Dude. "Now, I want you to get Kennedy," he said. "The way to do tt is to sep-arate Kennedy and Elaine—see?" "All right, Chief, we'll do it," they repulled replied. Clutching Hand had scarcely left when Flirty Florrie began by getting published in the papers the story which I had seen. The next day she called me up from

The next day she called me up from the suburban house. Having got me to promise to see her, she had scarce-ly turned from the telephone when Dan the Dude walked in from the next room. "He's coming," she said.

ready. See how I need it? That ought to please the Chief. Dan moved quickly to the mantel and mounted a stepladder there by which he had taken down the head, and started to replace the head above

I had scarcely got out of the house, as Craig told me afterwards, when Firry Florrie told all over again the embroidered tale that had caught my thing." She was pantomiming some one approaching stealthily while Kennedy watched her with interest, tinged with doubt. Behind Craig in his closet, Dan was reaching for the switchboard the mantel. He hooked the head on a nail.

		nizing my voice.	fore Kennedy could draw away, Dan	Kennedy was moping in the labora-	"Sewer gas," he ejaculated, as he	him," urged Craig, seizing the police	Line and the
		"Say, Craig," I asked breathlessly,	the the elegat had progood the but	tory the next day when I came in.	slammed the cover down. Then he	man's pistol and thrusting it into his	and the set
Clarke		"what sort of kiss would suffocate a	ton and the switch several times in	"Say, Craig," I began, trying to over-	added to the policeman: "Where do		Elaine Confronts Kennedy With the person?"	ton and the switch several dimes in	come his fit of blues.	you suppose it comes from?"	He was trying the ordinary methoda	"Poisoned Kiss" Photographs.
rector		My only answer was an uproarious	"Th-that's very realistic," gasped	Kennedy, filled with his own	"Why," replied the officer, "the St.	of resuscitation. Meanwhile the off	placed his ear quickly to her heart.
		laugh from him at the idea.	Casta a meet deal token abook by the	thoughts, paid no attention to me.	James viaduct-an old sewer-is some	cer had hurried out, seeking the near	His face was a study in astonishment.
same place		"I know," I persisted, "but I've got	- diam angulatana aggault	Then he jumped up.	where about these parts."	the first and the second	The minutes sped fast.
o all calls		the assignment from the Star-and	II. fromnod	"By George-I will," he muttered.	Kennedy puckered his face as he gazed at our prisoner. He reached	to bring Elaine back.	To us outside, who had no idea what Phones.		I'm out here interviewing a woman	ur Jul look into the ence" he soid	I poked my head out of the door in	down quickly and lifted something of	Again and again Kennedy bent and	was transpiring in the other room,
·····	-	. about it. It's all right to laugh-but	"It-lan amore "Thore there may be	time to see him grab up his hat and	the man's coat.	outstretched her arms, trying to in ;	the minutes were leaden-footed. Aunt illie's daily		here I am. I've found a case-names,	and antista and antion-but-	coat and dash from the room, put-	"Golden hair." he muttered.	duce respiration again. So busy was	Josephine, weak but now herself dates and places. I wish you'd explain	er"-	ting his coat on as he went.	"Elaine's!"	I that for the moment I forgot out	again, was sitting nervously.
nma's sore		the thing, then."	He was plainly embarrassed and	"He's a nut today," I exclaimed to	A moment later he seized the man	prisoner.	Just then the door opened.
meness-Dr		"Oh, all right, Walter," he replied	tratened to make his adjeur	myself.	and shook him roughly.	But Dan had seen his chance	I shall never forget the look on the e household		indulgently. "I'll meet you as soon as	* * * * * * * *	Though I did not know yet of the	"Whore is she toll mo?" he de-	Noiselessly he picked up the old chain	young ambulance surgeon's face as he
		I can and help you out."	How little impression the thing	quarrel, Kennedy had really struggled		in the room and with it raised was ap	murmured under his breath, "Come
, B		We waited patiently.	made on Kennedy can be easily seen	with himself until he was willing to	The man snarled some kind of a re-	proaching Kennedy to knock him out	here—the age of miracles is not
		The bell rang and the woman	from the fact that on the way down-	put his pride in his pocket and had	ala notucing to corr a mond about her	Before I knew it myself Kennedj hastened to the door, admitting Ken-		made up his mind to call on Elaine	"Tell me," repeated Kennedy.	had heard him. With a half instino
RIA		nedy. "Hello, Walter," he greeted.	Martin's, on Fifth avenue, and bought	again.	"Humph!" snorted the prisoner, more	tive motion he drew the revolver from	1
MIA			a ring-a very handsome solitaire, the	As he entered he saw that it was	close-mouthed than ever.	his pocket and, almost before I could see it, had shot the man. Without a	Into the other room ildren		"This is certainly most remark able case, Craig," I said, introducing	- Innest Martin nau in the shop.	really of no use, for only Aunt Jo-	Kennedy was furious. As he sent	word he returned the gun to his pock	I man would be would him, and telling briefly what I had		sephine was in the library. "Oh, Mr. Kennedy," she said inno-	the man reeling away from him he	et and again bent over Elaine, without	oodon
0 Years		learned.	that he decided to stop at man		seized the oxygen helmet and began	so much as a look at the crook, who
		"And you actually mean to say that	t that the Dodge butler, Jennings, ad-		putting it on. There was only one	sank to the floor, dropping the chail	The up up no min, the to note barro stores
Elitchere.		a kiss had the effect—"	Imitted a young lady who probotion		thing to do-to follow the clue of the	from his nerveless hands.	over her beautiful face.
ancant		Just then the telephone interrupted	card on which was engraved the	it is. But she's gone to call on a	golden strands of hair.	Already the policeman had got an	Kennedy had taken her hand, and
		"Yes," she reasserted quickly. "Ex	- I name	young woman, a Florence Leigh, I	Down muo the pest hole he went, his	ambulance, which was now tearing	as he heard us enter, turned half way to us, while we stared in blank woncuse me a second."	Wilss Florence Leigh,	think."	head protected by the oxygen helmet.	along to us	der from Elaine to the weird and a farmer		She answered the call. "Oh-why	20 Prospect Avenue.		As he cautiously took one step after	Frantically Kennedy was working.	complicated electrical apparatus.
on in Black		-yes, he's here. Do you want to speal	As he nanged Elame the card, but		another down a series of iron rungs	A moment he paused and looked a	"It's the life current," he said simand will		to him? Mr. Jameson, it's the Star.	" looked up from the book she was road	use your telephone."	Inside the noie, he found that the wa	me-hopeless.	ply, patting the Leduc apparatus with Washington,		"Confound it!" exclaimed, "isn"	t ing and took it. "All right, show her in, Jennings.		ter was up to his chest. At the bot-	Just then, outside, we could heat	his other hand.
arm. Anoth-		that like the old man-dragging me of	"All right, show her in, seminings.	laboratory to a story I was writing,	tom of the perpendicular pit was a narrow, low passageway leading off.	the ambulance, and a doctor and two	(TO BE CONTINUED.)
A CONTRACTOR OF		this story before it's half finished is	n I'll see her.		marrow, low passageway leading on.
bought full	Service and the service of the servi							