HAPPENINGS THROUGHOUT
SOMERSET COUNTY

On Tuesday, September 7th, 1915, on what is known as the old Johnathan Dumbauld farm, two miles south of Kingwood, Pa., there will be an old fashioned family reunion.

Four judges, one of whom will be Judge W. H. Ruppel of Somerset, will sit in the Westmoreland county courts next Monday when the August criminal term opens. An immense number of cases is scheduled for trial.

C. E. Thomas, manager of the Thomas-Ream Prop Company of Forwardville, has been awarded the contract for cutting timber from the right of way for the new Western Maryland railroad. The new road will necessitate a change in the Johnstown turnpike at that place.

Judge William H. Ruppel has refused the appeal of the Brotherlyvalley Coal company for a new trial in the action brought against the concern by Andy Protosenia, an employe, for injuries he sustained in the Brothersvalley operations at McDonaldton. Protosenia recently secured a verdict for $8,850 against the coal company in a suit for damages.

Jedi Show, of near Confluence recently celebrated his eightieth birthday anniversary with a family gathering. A day or two before the event he went to the First National Bank of Confluence where he placed on deposit in the name of his son and three daughters $1,000 to each of their accounts, presenting them with a bank book.

Boswell's public library is to be dedicated in the near future. The institution was established by the Public Welfare Association of Boswell has grown in popularity, and the association is desirous of making it an up-to-date library. In order to do this funds must be secured and more books will have to be obtained to fill the shelves of the library. A festival will be held in the town park within a few weeks for the benefit of the Association, and the proceeds will be used in completing the establishment of the library.

The St. Paul children are getting anxious to enter school which will open for the term on Sept. 13.

Do our schools fit our boys and girls for life? Should the laboring man's child have more knowledge than is necessary to produce the means of life. Will bread alone meet his needs? If he is taught trades or gets vocational training at public expense should he not also be employed by the same public? Should private interests gain by his training; that is should some one make a profit out of it.
