These Cotton Blankets Have the Warmth of Wool—at 1/3 the Price

You would think they were wool if we didn't tell you differently. They have a deep, curly nap that lasts through wear and washing, and they're remarkably strong—won't tear out easily as do most inexpensive blankets. Nashua Woolnap Blanket is one of the very best values we have to offer our customers.

USES FOR HONEY

CAKES MADE WITH IT KEEP LONGER—BOILING AND SKIMMING UNNECESSARY.

Various ways in which the housewife can use honey to advantage are suggested in a new publication of the department—Farmers' Bulletin 653, 'Honey and its uses in the home.' In this country honey has hitherto not been in common use as in Europe, especially in cookery. It is, however, a comparatively simple matter to substitute it in many receipts for common sugar or for molasses, and when this is done the resulting flavor is often both novel and agreeable.

One of the great advantages in the use of honey is that cakes made with it will keep much longer than those made with sugar. A honey cake made with butter, for instance, will keep its quality until the butter grows rancid, and one made without butter will keep fresh for months. For this reason useful receipts that call for no butter. Icing made with honey has the same advantage, and some icing made in the experimental laboratory of the Department of Agriculture was found at the end of 10 months to be as soft and in as good condition as when it was first made.

Honey is marketed in two forms, known respectively as comb honey and extracted honey, the former being used much like jam or marmalade and the latter either in that way or for cooking. In the past there has been some prejudice against extracted honey—or honey removed from the comb—because it was believed that this was frequently adulterated. However prevalent this practice may have been in the past, recent legislation and the efforts of honey producers themselves have made it dangerous and unprofitable. There is now, it is believed, little adulterated extracted honey on the market. Comb honey is practically certain to be the pure product of the hive, because it can only be adulterated by processes which cost more than they save. When sold at retail there is now comparatively little difference in the cost of comb and extracted honey, but the latter can be purchased at wholesale very much cheaper. The reason for this is that the producer of comb honey makes a product which is practically ready to be delivered to the consumer. Moreover, it costs the beekeeper less to produce extracted honey, while the wholesaler who purchases extracted honey has several processes to go through with before he can sell it at retail. If the housewife is willing to do these herself, she can effect a considerable saving.

Honey and Nut Bran Muffins.

1-1/2 cup honey, 1 cup flour, from 1-4 to 1-2 teaspoon soda, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 3 cups bran, 1 tablespoon melted butter, 1-1/2 cups milk, 3-4 finely chopped English walnuts.

Sift together the flour, soda, and salt, and mix them with the bran. Add the other ingredients and bake for 25 or 30 minutes in a hot oven in gem tins. This will make about 20 muffins.

Nut Honey Cakes.

Two cups brown sugar, 2 cups honey, 6 egg yolks, 3 cups flour, speck of salt, 1-2 teaspoons soda, 3 teaspoons ground cinnamon, 1-2 teaspoon ground nutmeg, 1-2 teaspoon allspice, 1 cup chopped raisins, 1-2 ounce citron cut in small pieces, 1-2 ounce candied orange peel cut in small pieces, 1-2 pound almonds coarsely chopped, whites of 3 eggs.

Mix the sugar, honey and the yolks of the eggs and beat thoroughly. Sift together the flour, salt, spices and soda. Combine all ingredients but the whites of the eggs. Beat the whites of the eggs till they are stiff and add them last. Pour the dough to the depth of about half an inch into well-buttered tins, and bake in a slow oven for one-half hour.

Hard Honey Cake.

3-4 cup honey, 1-2 cup sugar, 2-1/2 cups flour, 1 egg, 1-2 teaspoon ginger, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1-2 teaspoon ground cardamom seed, 1-2 teaspoon cloves, speck white pepper, speck salt, 1-2 teaspoon soda, 1 tablespoon water, 2 ounces blanched almonds cut into small pieces or chopped.

Sift together the flour and spices, dissolve the soda in the water, beat the egg, and combine all the ingredients. Beat or knead the mixture thoroughly. Cook a small sample. If it does not rise sufficiently, add a little more soda and honey; if it falls, add a little more flour. Roll out the dough to the thickness of about three-fourths of an inch and bake in a hot oven. When the cake is done, glaze it with a thick syrup of sugar and water, and allow it to dry in a slow oven or in some other warm place. While it is still warm cut it into long strips, or it may be left in one large cake to be cut into thin slices when served. This cake will become very hard on cooling and will not be soft enough to eat for several weeks, but will keep in good condition for an indefinite length of time.

Honey Charlotte Russe.

One quart cream, 6 lady fingers, 1-2 cup delicate flavored honey. Chill the honey by placing the dish containing it in a pan of ice water. Whip the cream and add it to the honey, mixing the two well. Line a dish with lady fingers and fill it with the honey and cream. Serve very cold.

The Doughnut.

"Oh, Mr. Brytogle, you are a pessimist!" "True," answered Brytogle. "And I am proud of it! Don't be shocked. I haven't started yet. I wouldn't be one of your grinning, senseless optimists for all the—"

"But!" quoted Miss Minkin, "The optimist sees the doughnut and the pessimist sees the hole!"

"True," agreed Brytogle, a second time. "That's an optimist's definition. Leave it to the optimist to take the doughnut and pass the pessimist the hole every time!"

"But I think it is about right at that! The pessimist sees only the hole in the doughnut. Oh, wise and learned optimist, how much better off you would be if you, too, could see only the hole! But the optimist, having eyes that see not wisely but too well, sees the doughnut and eats it."

"It is like this: The optimist and the pessimist stand before the bakery of human experience. Then the optimist, whistling blithely, his shoulders thrown back, his head held high, enters the shop and buys the doughnut. The pessimist stands outside, his hands in his pockets, his head bent in thought. He sees the optimist enter the store. He sees the store man put the doughnut into a bag and hand it to the optimist. Then he sees the optimist go merrily on his way. "Presently the pessimist sees the optimist begin to eat the doughnut! Thereupon the pessimist phones to the police to have the ambulance in readiness—that something is about to take place."

"That's pessimism, Miss Minkin. But how are you going to get along without it?"

"Oh, I don't know," Miss Minkin made answer. "People who are always looking for ambulances are usually the first ones to need them. The pessimist might have got run over by a steam roller while he was dreaming the man eating the doughnut. I am going to have some of this cake—will you try some?"

"Not until I ask my wife if she is going to eat any of it."

"Why should you ask her?"

"Because, if we both ate it who would send for the ambulance?"
