ELECTRICITY IN SOMERSET COUNTY.

The Somerset Herald says: Poles have been placed and wires are being strung by the T. W. Gallagher Electrical company, between the Penn Service company's station at Harrison and Crist's Lutheran church, township, and in the course of a few days that pretty house of worship will be illuminated by electricity. It is reported that the line will be extended to Sipesville in a short time in order that the residents of that place may secure current for power and illuminating purposes.

The electric line has been extended from the county home to Pleasant Hill, a mile or more distant, and a dozen or so of families at that place are now enjoying electric light in their farm residences and buildings.

A few months ago the lines of the Stoyestown Heat and Power Company were extended along the Lincoln Highway to Jennertown and farm residences and building all along the road are now furnished with current for illuminating and power purposes. The Stoyestown concern buys its current from the Penn Service company and resells it to patrons. Tourists passing over the Lincoln Highway at night are amazed to find farm homes alight with electric light, and to inquire if their eyes have deceived them.

In the course of time it is probable that a service line will be erected between Somerset and McDonaldton in order to supply farmers living along the road with current for domestic purposes. A high tension line has been in use between Somerset and McDonaldton for more than a year. It furnishes power to the Brothersvalley Coal company and other concerns requiring a high voltage.

There is a demand in Berlin for electrical power, which will be available at all hours of the day and night for both illuminating and power purposes, and it is rumored that the Penn Service company will be invited to establish a station in or near that place in order to meet the demand.

In the course of time the Penn Service company will have all of the active coal field of the country connected up with its Johnstown, Stoyestown and Somerset stations, and it looks as if it would be only a short time before farmers living north and east of Somerset will be able to purchase power for operating many of their farm and dairy machinery.

The courses of the many being developed more rapidly than Somerset, and none can look into the future with greater satisfaction and confidence. The many mining industries have created a market for farmers for almost everything they produce right at their doors, and our enterprising farmers are quick to provide themselves with all modern conveniences and labor saving devices.

AUTO LICENSE TAGS FOR THE YEAR 1916.

More than 1,000 applicants for automobile licenses for 1916 are already on file at the State Highway Department at Harrisburg, although the officials have just begun to issue the blanks for the new registration and are now ready to receive the formal papers. Notice has been given by the department that every car operated in Pennsylvania on New Year's must display a 1916 license.

The rush of applications the last few years had led to the adoption of some new regulations one of which is that corporations, firms, stores and others having many automobiles and desiring consecutive numbers are to file applications as soon as possible, so that serial numbers can be arranged.

So many requests have been received for special numbers that no applications for any particular number will be received after November 20. Most of the requests are for numbers under 100. A number has also been assigned to the Governor, while low numbers are given to the State Department cars. A statement made at the department says that, while the officials are anxious to give numbers requested, it is impossible to grant many requests. Where a certain number has been held by one person or firm for several years this fact will weigh in distribution of the numbers for 1916.

The Highway Department has also given notice that no municipality has a right to permit anyone to operate a car after January 1 with a 1915 license. This was done last year and the Highway Department has declared it unauthorized.

The department has also given notice that it will require affidavits on all applications for license.

The shipment of license plates will be started December 1.

Lard and Kerosene

WHEN making pies you know that the flakiness of the crust depends to a large extent upon the quality of the shortening. Unless the lard is right, your skill, your eggs, your flour and your milk all go for nothing.

You're particular about your shortening, but are you equally careful of the kerosene you put into your lamps, heaters and stoves. Ask for by name and you buy a kerosene that's refined from the best petroleum, by methods which get the utmost possible out of the finest raw material this old earth provides.

Used in a lamp it gives a soft yet brilliant light. It will neither smell nor smoke. In stove or heater it furnishes an intense heat, but always at the lowest possible cost.

And because it's a highly refined kerosene, it adds to the life of the device in which it is used.

Include Atlantic Rayolight Oil in your market list just as you do any other household utility of known reputation. Call for it by name and you get a superior kerosene that costs no more than the nameless kind.

How'd you get about getting rid of a dab of paint on the window pane? The easiest thing in the world—rub it off with Atlantic Rayolight Oil. Never thought of that, eh? But do you know another use? If you do think one up, hold it for a few days and maybe you can exchange it for something your heart desires.

From what a man thinks he knows subtract what his neighbors think he knows, and the remainder will probably be about what he really does know.

A few weeks later, many a young wife wishes she could dispose of her stock in a matrimonial combine and set her old job back in the laundry.

"Keep a thing for seven years and you'll find some use for it," says an old proverb. That is one reason why we are still keeping our appendix.

It isn't always safe to judge newspapers, cigars and women by their wrappers.

It is easy for a man to behave after he breaks into the has-been class.

Animals That Work.

Some of the wasps are papermakers; the spiders are spinners, and the worms are weavers.

The ants are indefatigable workers and have a well organized system of labor.

Certain species of East Indian ants are horticulturists; they raise mushrooms, upon which they feed their young.

The bees are expert builders; their cells are so constructed as, with the least quantity of material, to have the largest sized rooms and the least possible loss of wall space.

So also are the ant-lions, whose funnel-shaped traps are exactly correct in conformation, as if they had been made by the most skilled architects of our species with the aid of the best instruments.

The beaver is an architect, engineer and woodcutter; he builds houses and dams water-courses with the ingenuity and dispatch that would do credit to human hands and brains. We all know what it means to "work like a beaver."

Stilt Walkers.

The first travelers to the Marquesas Islands, in the southern Pacific ocean, found them peopled with a race of athletes, whose clothes lasted till they had no more need of clothes, for their costume was the skin with which the Creator had covered their bodies. The islanders had improved upon it, moreover, for they were tattooed from the crown of the head to the sole of the foot. As they are an enormous race this was no small undertaking. Their chiefs, chosen on account of their size, have sometimes measured 6 feet 10 inches.

One would think that tall enough, yet these people are the greatest stilt walkers in the world. They execute performances, too, that would drive a stilt-walker down with envy. They run races on stilts and dance and jump, and it is considered a mark of politeness for one-stilt-walker to trip up another. One might say "trip down," for the tripped person generally comes down with a vengeance.

The stilts the Marquesas use are a little different from those of our boys. In place of straps the Marquesas stilt has a curved block that holds the foot more securely.
