

Worth Careful Thought

Do you read the label to know whether your baking powder is made from cream of tartar or, on the other hand, from alum or phosphate?

Royal Baking Powder is made from cream of tartar, derived from grapes, and adds to the food only wholesome qualities.

Other baking powders contain alum or phosphate, both of mineral origin, and used as substitutes for cream of tartar because of their cheapness.

Never sacrifice quality and healthfulness for low price.

That Camera Finder.
A number of interesting letters have come to hand discussing this problem in optics, and several amateur photographers confess they never knew before that the image in a brilliant finder was not a correct representation of the picture in front of the lens.
The rays of light pass from an object to a mirror in straight lines. Therefore when you look at the reflection it is precisely as if you stood behind the object and saw the straight lines running from the one to the other. If the word "hat" was written on a transparent card this is what you would see:

But if you hold an ordinary hand mirror upside down and below the level of the eyes, looking into it as you look into the finder of a camera, you will discover that the image is no longer reversed from left to right, but is upside down. You would see it in this way in the finder, but for the small lens in front of the mirror, which turns the image both upside down and reversed from left to right. By this means it sets it straight one way and reverses it again the other, and this is thought to be the better way, as one can judge a group better when simply reversed from right to left than when it is upside down, as one sees it on the ground glass of a view camera.

E. Beebe mentions the fact that some years ago a photographer patented the use of a mirror in the rear of the ground glass, so that in focusing the operator had to look down into the mirror instead of through the ground glass, and this gave him an upright although reversed picture. The same idea is carried out in the modern reflex cameras, but the mirror is inside the camera between the lens and the plate and the ground glass is on the top of the box instead of at the back.

They stopped while here at the home of Mrs. Mosholder's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Glessner. In speaking of the Spring-Cushion Rubber Tire Company of this place, Mr. Mosholder said that he thought it was a very good proposition as there was a company in Akron who were making a similar tire ad were doing remarkably well. Mr. Mosholder, who is a foreman in one of the rubber tire factories, said that anything with the word "Rubber" in it seems to spell good. It is a great pity our prospective local industry can't have a little more of local boost.

The pleasures of the Fourth for Mr. W. S. Livengood, wife and daughter Miss Frances, and Mr. Emerson Gagey were perverted from their original plans. They had purposed accompanying Mr. Strickland Gillilan, the humorist lecturer of Chautauqua, his wife and daughter to Bedford in two autos. Ware Deister manned the first and John Weimer the second. The former in the lead with the ladies in his car rounding a turn near the F. B. Black home this side of Garrett sideswiped a coming auto disabling his machine, making it risky to continue the trip. The Livengoods all came home in the battered car and the Gillilans continued the journey in the other car.
