There are St. Paulers who can't see why men should use their muscles and brains for the benefit of a class who act in the capacity of blood suckers, or milkers of society. They think people are very easy and foolish to consent to such a process and give their vote to political parties controlled by such parasites, such blood-suckers, such workers of the workers, such farmers of the farmers. They would end these conditions by using their political power through the only political organization that stands for ending them, the Socialist party.
