

Worth Careful Thought

Do you read the label to know whether your baking powder is made from cream of tartar or, on the other hand, from alum or phosphate?

Royal Baking Powder is made from cream of tartar, derived from grapes, and adds to the food only wholesome qualities.

Other baking powders contain alum or phosphate, both of mineral origin, and used as substitutes for cream of tartar because of their cheapness.

Never sacrifice quality and healthfulness for low price.

The Doubtful Charm of the Scourer Walking in the outer suburbs is a fascinating exercise because of the real estate operator who has filled the landscape with surprises. You have reached the outskirts of the city. Before you lies a primitive vista, fields so far as the eye can reach, a good deal of marsh, some old trees in the foreground, and perhaps a bit of water large enough for skating in winter. Or there may be a tangle of dwarf timber and scrub running clear to the horizon, unbroken by those deadly enemies of rural beauty, the factory chimney and the gas tank. Looking across the waste of brush and fallow, one might imagine it melting into the West, and so on to the Pacific. You scent the genuine primitive, the real thing, at the farthest pole from this suburban. To your right, a path, a real country path, leads through a grove. So you follow it, prepared for adventure, for something like Stanley of Captain Scott.

In two minutes you are through the grove and step up against a steam shovel. Across the field runs a gash a quarter of a mile long and it is crossed by five similar scars. They are new streets. The sign posts are up, though the street is only in the making—Jefferson Avenue, Franklin Avenue, Clinton Avenue—our revolutionary period being the most prolific source of nomenclature for suburban builders. The steam shovel strikes the motive in a symphony of raw matter and ugly tools. You turn the corner from the primitive, and land in a litter of clay, pitch, crushed stone, lime, sand, earthen and iron piping of all dimensions, from sewer mains to electric conduits, a desolation of barrels, planking, staves, selves. Here is the primitive sod with the field flowers still clinging close, and close by the mortar troughs are steaming. Behind you is green forest patch, and before you a road machine crunching away at its meal of broken stone. In the short space of a city block there are all the geological strata of the modern street in the making—the original yellow soil, the layer of broken stone, the same stone subdued and powdered, the same stone wearing its black asphalt coat, the black of the asphalt wearing its ceremonial frosting of white sand. At one end of the block Sicilian laborers sweat over their spades; in the middle of the block negro laborers sweat in the fume of the asphalt-kettle; at the other end of the block Sicilians again are thumping out the last roughness in the completed pavement of a model street in a model home development. Walking in the suburbs always has these little surprises in store. They are not what an artist would enjoy emerging suddenly from the dank freshness of marsh and woodland. It is only the rising urban tide lapping up the wilderness.—Happer's Magazine.

Mr. F. A. Bittner of Meyersdale addressed the St. Paul Sunday school at their rally day services on Sunday. The attendance was 140.

No fact is more apparent than this, that all the St. Paulers are not satisfied with the Wilson administration; even those who have worked and received a "living wage." We have not heard of one family which received the average increase per family which the increase in national wealth would mean to each family in the land, namely $2050. President Wilson told us that the national wealth increased 41 billion dollars in the last four years. This would mean a well equipped home for every family in this country.

Do those who produced this wealth have it? If not, why not? Some St. Paulers think it is because too many think with President Wilson that a "living wage" is justice for them. They would advise all, those who are satisfied to vote for Wilson and in 4 years from now have the democratic campaign committee spend thousands of dollars the workers earned but did not get, to get into their mugs what great prosperity they enjoyed.
