To save him from bankruptcy, advertise in his paper liberally. To save him from despair send him every item of news of which you can get hold. To save him from profanity write on one side of the sheet and send it in as soon as possible. To save him from mistakes, bury him. Dead people are the only ones that never make mistakes."

SALISBURY

Christmas Festivities

A number of the churches in town held very interesting and inspiring Christmas services. Each was attended by large and appreciative audiences. The Church of the Brethren held theirs on Sunday at 10:00 a. m., the Lutheran church on Sunday evening, St. John's Reformed on Sunday evening and the Methodist Episcopal on Monday evening. Probably the most inspiring service held was that in the St. John's Reformed church on Christmas morning at 8:00. There was a large union choir, all of male voices, who sang the carols. A large mixed audience was present. Because of the inclemency of the weather no music was rendered on the streets very early in the morning as had been the custom.

A large number of the town folks attended the exercises held in the Boynton school. The program was rendered by the Grammar and Intermediate schools. The pupils showed careful and skillful training. A Christmas Jake, a little play in which the actors were Mother Goose Characters, and were costumed as such, was very pretty indeed. Not perhaps the most pathetic scene of the whole evening was the little bare Christmas tree, belonging to "Finnegon Flat." The decorations were really beautiful. The whole evening's entertainment reflected great credit on the teachers, Miss Florence Yoder and Mr. Guy Wahl, and was greatly enjoyed by the large audience present.

WHY not give your lad the same training?

"When I was a growing lad, and came upon many words in my reading that I did not understand, my mother, instead of giving me the definition when I applied to her, uniformly sent me to the dictionary to learn it, and in this way I gradually learned many things besides the meaning of the individual word in question—among other things, how to use a dictionary, and the great pleasure and advantage there might be in the use of the dictionary. Afterwards, when I went to the village school, my chief diversion, after lessons were learned and before they were recited, was in turning over the pages of the 'Unabridged' of those days. Now the most modern Unabridged—the NEW INTERNATIONAL—gives me a pleasure of the same sort. So far as my knowledge extends, it is at present the best of the one-volume dictionaries, and quite sufficient for all ordinary uses. Even those who possess the splendid dictionaries in several volumes will yet find it a great convenience to have this, which is so compact, so full, and so trustworthy as to have, in most cases, little to be desired." Robert D. Cook, Ph.D., LL.D., Professor of the English Language and Literature, Yale Univ. April 23, 1911.
