Careless Speech.

"I hear the Grabcoins have hired a tutor for young Reginald Grabcoi."

"Yes; but whenever Mr. Grabcoi mentions the new member of the household Mrs. Grabcoi is greatly humiliated."

"Why so?"

"Mr. Grabcoi has a way of pronouncing 'tutor' as if the person referred to did exercises on the trombone, cornet or some other kind of horn."—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Limited.

"Do you remember, Tommy," asked the friend of the family, "to love your neighbor as yourself?"

"Always," replied young Thomas, "but then dad is always telling me not to have too good an opinion of myself."—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

How Women Judge.

Mrs. Flatbush—Does she judge people by their clothes? Mrs. Bensonhurst—She does if they're hanging out on the line with the wash in the backyard.—Yonkers

A Sepulcher of Broken Hearts.

In the old Franciscan church of the Holy Cross rises one of the two monuments disdaining Florence condescended to give her greatest poet, whose greatest honor lies in his gift to the world at one splendid sweep of a pure and recreated Italian language—until his time halting and feeble—in that immortal masterpiece of literature, the "Divina Commedia."

This church might well be known as the Broken Hearts instead of Santa Croce, for near Dante's cenotaph—his exiled ashes still rest in Ravenna—lies the body of that other terrific genius, Michelangelo, who, broken in spirit, fled gladly when the city so dear to his heart fell once more upon dark and tyrannous days. And Gallei is here, too, and Alfieri, and Machiavelli, and many another, a brilliant train.

Michelangelo's last work is in the nearby church of San Lorenzo, in the mortuary chapel of the Medici, the great house which designed to favor him with its patronage or its enmity throughout his life.—National Geographic Magazine.

His Epitaph.

A recent automobile accident in an up state county resulted in the death of the driver and the injury of two passengers.

The coroner summoned several witnesses, among them a farmer living near the scene of the accident. There was voluminous testimony regarding the high speed at which the car traveled. Witnesses said, too, that the road was in bad repair. The coroner finally reached the farmer who lived near the scene.

"What would you say about this accident, Mr. Swiggert?" the coroner asked.

"Well, if I was writin' that young man's epitaph," the witness drawled. "I'd say he died tryin' to fit sixty miles a hour out of a ten mile road."—Indianapolis News.

A Famous Dresser.

Joachim Murat was in his day the best dressed man in the world. Born in 1757 in a village near Cahors the son of a day laborer, he was sent to a Jesuit school to be educated for the priesthood. He ran away, joined the army, and sixteen years after he had become a lieutenant he was a field marshal, duke of Cleves and Berg, with Napoleon's sister, Caroline, as his wife, and finally, by the grace of his brother-in-law, was created king of Naples. In all stations he paid the closest attention to his attire and wore in battle gold embroidered and jeweled uniforms which would have made him conspicuous at a court function, and dressed himself as for a review when he was led forth to be shot.—New York Tribune.

He Was Just Thinking.

"Marry," said a man to his spouse, who was gifted with a rapidly moving tongue, "did you ever hear the story of the precious gems?"

"No," she replied. "What is it?"

"It's a fairy legend that my grandmother told me when I was a boy," the husband continued. "It was about a woman from whose lips fell a diamond or a ruby at every word she spoke."

"Well?" said his wife as he paused.

"That's all there is of it, my dear," he replied. "But I was just thinking if such things happened nowadays I could make my fortune as a jeweler."

Skibbereen.

An Englishman was once traveling in the south of Ireland when he came to a village called Skibbereen. The name struck him as very peculiar and odd, and he asked a villager why the town was so called. "Sure," the villager replied, "I thought even an Englishman could have seen the reason for that. It's called Skibbereen to distinguish it from other places of the same name."—Christian Register.

Mars and Its Moons.

One of its moons circles Mars every seven hours. In consequence of this rapid revolution it appears to the inhabitants of Mars (if there be any) to rise in the west and set in the east.

Well Guarded.

Electric burglar alarms surround Uncle Sam's treasury at Washington and are tested every fifteen minutes, day and night.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Morning Headache. Early morning headaches may be due to many causes—eye strain, kidney trouble, dissipation, too much smoking, over-eating of proteins, excessive mental labor or too high blood pressure. The Medical Record quotes some observations by the French doctor, Renon, which extended over fifteen years and in which he found in many cases excessively high blood tension.

When the persistent headaches are so severe that they unfit the sufferer for work it is generally found that his heart is enlarged and his kidneys are affected. Such cases often speedily terminate fatally, but intensive treatment will alleviate the symptoms. The Medical Record says coal tar derivatives and tobacco must be shut off. The patient must have mental rest. He must go on a purely milk diet for at least a week, after which he may eat fruits and vegetables on certain days for two weeks more.

A light, low protein regimen follows for several weeks.
