Owing to the war in Europe it was decided by the barbers here to increase the price of shaving from ten cents to 15 cents and the price of being shorn now is thirty-five cents. And thus the price of living is increased and where is a poor printer to get the fifteen cents once a week to meet an increase like this. And it was so sudden, to. We could manage to rub along without potatoes, and subsist on soup bones and liver, but this one is a staggering blow. But then these are only the prices the barbers get in other places, and the barbers here are just as good as others and should have the same prices.

Why a Horse Rolls. Horses are fond of rolling on the ground, and no animal more thoroughly shakes itself than they do. After a roll they give themselves a shake or two to remove anything adhering to the coat. The habit is of much service to horses living in open plains. On being turned loose at the end of a journey an Arab horse rolls in the sand, which acts as blotting paper, absorbing exudations from the body. A shake removes the sand, and the coat soon dries. Cavalrymen in hot climates sometimes put sand on their horses as the simplest and quickest way of drying them. No Longer a Child. "Is mamma's sweet little boy ready to have his bath now?" "Oh, ma, put the soft pedal on that stuff, will you? When a fellow's six years old it's time to take him out of the kindergarten class. I'll take my splash when I've had my smoke."—Pittsburgh Times. Necessary Things. One of our rear admirals is quoted as saying, "The battleship can go to any part of the world if coal is provided." "This does away with the old supposition that water was also necessary," interposed a bystander. Silence Is Safety. After forty years of married life I've made up my mind it don't matter how often a man an' his wife disagrees as long as he don't let her know it.—Harper's Bazar. Golf Versus Motoring. The difference between learning golf and motoring is that in golf at first you hit nothing, but in motoring everything.—Exchange. One of Jerrold's Retorts. Very tart was Douglas Jerrold's retort to a would be wit who, having fired off all his stale jokes with no effect, exclaimed: "Why, you never laugh when I say a good thing!" "Don't!" said Jerrold. "Only try me with one!" You cannot dream yourself into a character; you must hammer and force yourself one.—James Anthony Froude.

One good thing economically to the School Board is erasers being elastic. Claude Deal would certainly need many of them, in his desire to make perfect copies in typewriting. What did James Swank mean to insinuate when he said his hands became soiled from Grace's. The Commercial Seniors have just finished making graphical representations of statistics of different states. This is one of the finishing touches of Economic history, 1,000 word theses is another and will, contracts and perhaps licenses are examples of what is coming in Commercial Law. Marked originality is shown in the Junior Freehand-drawing class line of Valentines. Some even show little tots in hearts. Recently two hearts were shown, in one with a boy the other with a girl. Howard Gress says he likes Elizabeth's heart best—he likes "That little girl." George Griffin (in Virgil Class) "The text says Venus in the vocabulary and I don't see her." Myrtle Miller has been dreaming of diamonds. We wonder what will happen. One day last week Clara Bittner was labeled "Crabapple" by the "Crab" Guy Photo. Later he transformed her into a plum. Guy is sure some magician. Greg Darrow announced that she would never consent to be any man's better half, but if any man was ever unkindly enough to get her she would be his "bitter half."

Any person wishing for a more improved way to study Geometry, apply to Henrietta Horning. Private lessons preferred. Mr. Arnold. "Oscar, decline possessum in the perfect tense, subjunctive mood." Oscar Swank. "I don't understand how you form it." Mr. Arnold. "You take the stem of the perfect tense, indicative mood and add a rim (rim) to it." Who said Henrietta was not contemplating matrimony? Why she has commenced working on her hope chest. On Wednesday in Junior English class one of our members was promoted to another seat. We wish you success in your new "habitat" Mary. Nell Boucher. "It seems to me these new yard sticks are not as long as the ones we had before." Harvey Meyers. "They aren't. We used to have yard sticks forty two inches long." Miss Beck. "Who was the first man to write something on the border of a novel?" Mary Siehl. "Adam." Sad would have been the fate of Irwin Gress, if Orpha Meyers and Helen Baer would have fallen on him, while they were doing some fantastic stunts on the ice last week. Wm. McMillian, the Juniors L. Peersoso certainly surprised his classmates when he was told by Miss Beck to remove his chewing gum. Oscar Swank wants to know why all the girls come to the rear of the room when they change their seats. Will some one please tell him. Perhaps its because Oscar sits in the room. A bunch of Juniors attended a school entertainment at Glade City Friday night, greatly enjoyed the program and later entertainment at the home of Olive Lindeman. The entertainments are to be bi-monthly and all have resolved to go again. "Mike" Hady says "Somebody lied." "Was that somebody you?" George May is collecting pencils from the girls' desks for souvenirs. Beware! Jacob Poorbaugh uses a mirror to see in the back of the room. Wonder what can be drawing his attention. Mary Griffith insists on getting lost in the hall and talking to the Junior boys. Something must be done. Mr. Weaver. "Could a patrician marry a plebian girl?" Herbert Ringler. "That depends on what the girl might say." Frank Rowe told us the spring tide was in the spring and tide in Autham. Miss Beck. "Who was a gladiator?" Florence Heffley. "A son of his father." Herbert Ringler told us Brian, the Hermit, was a nun. Mr. Weaver. "What is the other name for mounted soldiers?" John Booser. "Calvary."

William Irwin says the sea furnishes food and people. He must have been reading about mermaids. Miss Broadhead says that we should follow our maps. We are very thankful we have only to go to Room 17. Beware Olen Wiland. He was seen in school last Friday with a razor. Mary Bolden is going to resign as post-master for Frank Rowe and receive money as two cents a month is not sufficient pay. D. A. McKinley of New Orleans, arrived at the of his parents, Dr. and Mrs. H. C. McKinley last Friday, called by the serious illness of his mother. Mrs. J. W. Walsh, of Cumberland, Md., was the guest of her sisters, the Misses Coulehan, of North street. Mrs. W. May, of Salisbury spent Wednesday here with friends.

Here and There. Mr. James Poorbaugh, a prominent farmer of York county is, visiting friends and relatives in Meyersdale for a few days. Mr. P. brother of butcher Poorbaugh. Mr. Norman Kinsinger of Bertha, was transacting business in Meyersdale on Saturday. The Dumbold sale was well attended and everything brought good prices. Sol. Sunny reports that thieves entered his house in broad daylight and stole all his butter, bread and all other useful articles. "Mont" Snyder, a retired farmer of the Summit was transacting business in Bertha one day last week. W. H. Shultz of Greenville, had one of his horses hurt, while working in the woods one day last week. One of Noah Kinsinger's horses has a bad case of pneumonia. Mr. John Kretschman purchased two valuable horses one day last week. Mr. Spangler of Meyersdale, will move on one of D. B. Zimmermann's farms adjoining Somerset in the near future. Yes, Yes, Go On! What Happened? Henry Weaver of Grand Junction, was trimming a tree over a pigeon; he fell off a branch on a pig and killed it, breaking both legs. This pig owned a coat which jumped a fence, running into a clothesline fastened to a post which was buried through the air, striking a cow and killed her. The cow ran into a barbed wire fence and was so badly cut it will die. When the veterinarian arrived to attend the cow he ran over Mr. Weaver's dog and killed it.—Lawrence (Mich.) Times.

JUDGEMENT SECURED AGAINST RAILROAD ON COMPENSATION CLAIM Somerset, Jan. 26.—On the decision of Referee Jacob Snyder under the workmen's compensation law that William H. Ankeny and Elizabeth Ankeny of Westmoreland county are entitled to compensation because of the death of their son, who was employed as a brakeman on the P. W. & S. Railroad, and who was killed while performing his duties, the Ankenys have taken judgement against the railroad company, which has not been operated for several months. On March 24 of last year, young Ankeny, a brakeman was thrown from a box car and the car fell on him, crushing out his life. The referee allowed his parents $900 compensation, being 20 per cent of the decedent's wages for a period of 300 weeks.

Where Eating Is a Trade. "Maccheroni" eating is a trade with the street beggar of Italy and apparently a satisfying one to men and boys gifted with copper interiors immune to heat. One of the most familiar cries of the beggar is, "Signore, dame cinque soldi, mangia maccheroni!" ("Mister gimme a nickel for macaroni"). An usually the plea ends with a lugubrious whine, "Oh, muori di fame!" ("Oh, I am dying of hunger!")—National Geographic Magazine.

Names in Japan. The Only Lasting Title a Man Gets Comes When He Dies. The Japanese have many quaint customs handed down from generation to generation. One of the strangest is that of their naming ceremony. When one month old a Japanese child gets its first name with ceremonial. Trumpets are blown, and the child is borne in great state to the family temple, and behind the procession march the household servants carrying the infant's wurdobe. The servant in the rear of the procession bears a huge box, in which is the priest's fee, together with three slips of paper, on which three names are written. On reaching the temple the names are thrown into the air, and the first that touches the ground is the one which the child receives. When three years old the child is again named, accompanied by elaborate religious rites. At the age of fifteen his education is supposed to be finished, and as he then enters manhood (according to Japanese law) he is again named.

Let us drive home to you the fact that no washwoman can wash clothes in as sanitary a manner as that in which the work is done at our laundry. We use much more water, change the water many more times, use purer and more costly soap, and keep all the clothes in constant motion during the entire process. It's simply a matter of having proper facilities. Meyersdale Steam Laundry

HE LET THE BULLET STAY. How Garibaldi's Leg Was Saved and His Health Restored. Half a century ago it was the belief of most surgeons that bullets lodged in any part of the body should be probed for and "extracted" at all hazards. The modern surgeon, who is able to locate bullets with mathematical accuracy with the X-ray, often allows the bullet to remain where it has lodged unless there is some very special reason for digging it out. And results prove the wisdom of the modern surgeon's attitude. It is an interesting bit of history that a famous Russian surgeon advocated and practiced the conservative method of letting impacted bullets alone more than fifty years ago and by this method undoubtedly saved the life of the Italian patriot Garibaldi. The great soldier, wounded in the right leg and captured at the battle of Aspromonte, was placed under the care of several European surgeons, who tried unsuccessfully to remove the bullet. At that time the Russian surgeon Pirogov was stopping in Heidelberg, and the Russian students at that university raised the sum of 1,000 francs to induce the surgeon to examine Garibaldi. Pirogov refused the fee, but he visited the patriot, examined his wound and, contrary to the opinions of all the other surgeons, advised letting the bullet alone. He suggested removal to a dry climate with plenty of fresh air and sunshine. The soldier took his advice, moved into a dry climate and recovered.—Exchange.
