He was not Guilty.

On June 19, 1915, Chas. Morris made information against Wm. Branch and Wm. Thomas, charging forcible entry and attempted criminal assault upon the person of his wife. Branch fled the country and Thomas was pinched and was allowed to go his own recognition at the hearing until Branch could be apprehended. He also fled the coop. A few days since both parties returned and Constable Cramer rounded up Thomas and found Branch at Highlands store, who at once fled and evade the officer took to the creek. The Constable followed around by the bridge. His tracks led to the mountain but unlike a rabbit he did not run in a circle, but like a fox he doubled on his tracks. He was finally secured at the residence of Lewis Knepp. Mr. Knepp's son had found him near the house in a freezing condition, and persuaded him to come to the house and warm. The constable got him after a ten mile chase, and the two were given a hearing before Esq. Hays and were discharged for want of evidence of guilt and the colored gentlemen are now at large.

Mrs. Julia Ellis, a colored woman made information against Rev. Harrison Martin, charging him with criminal assault. The preacher was arrested and held before Esquire Hays for a hearing, and the evidence was not conclusive of his guilt and a number of persons testified to his good moral character, the justice released him with an admission to "go and sin no more."

WHY CLOTHES WEAR OUT.

Little Balls of Fluff Found Around the House Give the Answer.

The microscope has answered that long puzzling question of why clothes wear out. By the aid of this instrument that uncovers mysteries of the world hidden to the unaided human eye, it is revealed that when cloth is handled some fibers are rubbed off, which in time become visible and objectionable. The formation of this fluff is not unlike the growth of snowballs that boys roll. Under the microscope, especially with reflected light, these balls of fluff are wonderfully beautiful, gleaming with a brilliancy that cannot be captured by a photograph.

"We speak, and speak correctly, of 'wearing a suit of clothes' when we have in mind only the use of the clothes," a scientific writer explains, "but the garments are literally worn away. We might also speak of 'wearing' bedclothes, because the fibers of the bed linen are worn away in much the same manner as a carpenter wears away the surface of wood when he sandpapers it.

"Drafts and other air currents waft these fibers to and fro until they collect in small clusters of fluff. The 'bits and caudles' that have begun to attract others to them gather more and more until a large proportion of the aerial floatam has been transformed into what the housekeeper calls 'little rolls of dust' that she finds under the bed and in the corners. These are fibers that friction has removed from the bed linen and from one's clothing."
