IMMIGRATION BILL WINS

Senate Concur With House In Overriding Wilson's Veto.
Congress has overridden a veto by President Wilson for the first time and enacted into law the immigration bill with its long-fought literacy test provision.
The senate voted, 62 to 19, to pass the measure notwithstanding the veto and in spite of eleventh hour information that Japan again had protested against the language of the Asiatic exclusion section. The house overturned the veto last week by a vote of 287 to 106, so the senate's action ends the contest of twenty years' standing in which three presidents have repudiated similar bills passed by congress.

TWENTY-EIGHT DEAD

Chicago Tenement Building Horror; Debris Covers Victims.
After an explosion and fire which wrecked a Chicago tenement building, the police announced that twenty-six persons were missing and probably dead. Ninety-one people lived in the building, according to the agent. The janitor accounted for nineteen, who were at work, leaving seventy-two whom he assumed were in the building. These police accounted for as follows:
Known dead, 2; injured, 21; missing, probably dead, 26; known rescued or accounted for, 23.

AN ANCIENT CLIFF CITY.

The Ruins of Its Primitive Dwellings in Walnut Canyon.

Walnut canyon, near Flagstaff, Ariz., contains some of the most interesting ruins on the continent. The canyon itself is remarkable, being a thousand feet deep, a quarter mile in width at the top and a few hundred feet at the bottom. The sides do not rise up in gentle slopes, but leap upward, tier upon tier, a giant limestone stairway. Here were conditions that appealed to primitive man. The smooth shelf or ledge formed a floor, the projecting rock a ceiling, the sloping strata rear walls. He had but to throw up front and side walls and a home was completed, with a floor that would never wear out and a roof that would never leak.

It is estimated that there are at least a thousand of these primitive dwellings in the Walnut canyon. There is but a single entrance to this cliff city. The trail leads over the face and down the sides of the cliff and on through the ruins of one of these houses. When the walls of this building were standing it completely filled the width of the ledge. As no one could enter without passing through this house or gateway, one man, armed with a primitive stone ax, might well have stood off an army.

All articles of furniture have been carried away, but there are still traces of a fireplace, and the blackened ceiling tells of its long occupancy. In the ashes and litter have been found broken pieces of pottery—red, black and gray decorated in colors and with patterns displaying their artistic tastes. In small pockets, dug out in the rear walls and carefully sealed up, are still occasionally found pieces of corn, of hemp and other of yucca, cucurbits, squash shells, beans, etc. Exchange.

Cause of the Trouble.
Specialist—Your heart is acting rather irregularly. Is there anything worrying you? Patient—Not particularly. Only just now when you put your hand in your pocket I thought for a moment you were going to give me your bill.—Puck.

When He Remembers.
"Willie, don't you know that it is wrong to fight?"
"Yes, ma. I know it's wrong, but I never think of it that way unless the fellow who tackles me is one I'm sure I can't lick."—Detroit Free Press.

Following Their Example.
"Why don't you go to your friends when you want to borrow money?"
"I have been to them, but just at present they are all hard pressed, they say."
"Then count me among your friends. Their judgment on you is good enough for me."—Detroit Free Press.

reporters source or Leak.
Two Washington newspaper men, J. Fred Essary, head of the Baltimore Sun bureau, and W. W. Price, White House correspondent of the Washington Star, admitted at the "leak" inquiry that on Dec. 20 last they supplied advance forecasts of President Wilson's peace note of Dec. 21 which eventually found their way to the office of E. F. Hunter & Co., New York brokers.
