First, the price of meat went sky high, then the price of flour went higher than Gilroy's saw mill, then the price of sugar went higher than ever Wright's aeroplane ascended, and we survived all this, but to add to our troubles this week, the price of booze went up 33 per cent. Well there is more trouble in this world than I ever saw in any other world. Now, if you owe anything on subscription account for the land's sake send it in at once, as it was all we could do to raise the price before this increase. Think about it, you wouldn't see a poor man with a healthy thirst suffering for a drink and not in position to get it, because he lacked the 20c. Please hurry.
