CLEAN FOOD ESSENTIAL

By Samuel G. Dixon, M. D.
Wild animals eat their food raw, either while fresh or after it has become tender with age. This latter habit is one of the weasel's. They kill quite liberally of their prey when the opportunity offers and then allow it almost to decay before they feed upon it. Primitive man hunted and devoured his food much like the lower animals.

Later in the history of man he learned to make fire and cook his food, and it is now quite evident from what we find in the Indian mounds that it became the custom, for instance, of the American Indians to have great clam bakes on the Atlantic Coast. Sometimes in these mounds we find bones of deer, showing that they had more than one kind of foodstuff.

As relics of a still later age, we find in the mounds various little implements that were evidently used for handling and serving the food.

This begins to approach conditions in the present state of civilization that we now find in the large centers of population. Thousands of people make their sole livelihood preparing food for the table and taking care of the dishes and the serving of the food from the small boarding houses to the enormous hotels.

In these places the health of these thus employed has not had any police supervision and yet we have known that communicable diseases have been on the rapid increase and horrible diseases have been passed from one person to another until they have become a great menace to the health, happiness and efficiency of our people.

The State of Pennsylvania, fortunately, in 1915 succeeded in passing a law that requires those in charge of restaurants, boarding houses, hotels, etc., to look after the health of their people. The law handles it in this way, that it holds the proprietor of those places responsible for employing people who have these dangerous diseases that can be communicated to their customers through the foodstuff itself, or through the dishes, forks, knives, spoons, etc. Cooks and waiters cannot, under our new law, pursue their occupations without satisfying those they propose to serve that they are clean from these diseases the law is trying to prevent being thus spread. The moment this new law was signed by the Governor, a large number of waiters left their places in the Pullman coaches on the railroads and from the railroad restaurants, as well as from the large and active hotels.

This became well known and the newspapers and journals endeavored to spread this news that the people might wake up to what had existed and what the new law proposed to protect them from. When the bill asking for this law was introduced in the General assembly some of the great railroad companies that have large restaurants at their terminals appreciated that it was a great sanitary measure and before the bill became a law they adopted its goods points in the management of their great eating centers throughout the United States.

This law, like all other new laws that mean to bring about a great change in public policies, has to be sanely enforced, and the old system of preparing food and washing of dishes in hotels and restaurants must not be too suddenly destroyed. The time, fortunately, is here when the public has become educated and the people are demanding that the spirit of this good law be carried out. Some hotels advertise on their letterhead paper that the law is enforced in their establishments.

As the great critics grow the ways of living change. There become fewer private homes and more places where people live collectively and depend upon central places for eating. Therefore this law is becoming more and more important in regard to these centers, that they may not spread dangerous, yes, deadly, disease through a community.

SAFE FOR THE DEMOCRATS

Mr. Wilson's refusal to stand for a committee which shall audit the expenditures of the war indicates that this war of his is not alone to make the war safe for the Democracy

CHAUTAQUA BOOSTERS
On Tuesday evening, judging from the number, everybody in Berlin, Pa., (not Germany) drove over here to "Boost the Chautauqua" to be held at Berlin next week and that they desired the people to know and be present and enjoy the good things, literary and musical, that they would have on tap at that time.

Just received a Carload or Fertilizer at P. J. Cover & Son. NO MIRROR THERE

"A good many persons," we read in Mr. Bryan's paper, The Commoner, "seem to have the idea that they are doing full duty as patriotic citizens by devoting their time to telling other people what their duties are." We wonder if a mirror is part of the furniture in Mr. Bryan's editorial sanctum.
