To all my friends who had a share in giving me such a complete surprise on my birthday:

Dearly Beloved: You will never know what this has all meant to me. Words fail me when I try to express what my heart feels. You have made me very happy and yet I do feel so unworthy to be the recipient of such wonderful love, such as you have manifested in such a beautiful way.

I take this time and way to say, from my heart of hearts, Thank you and God bless you, every one. May He reward you accordingly for your generous gift of love. Your loving kindness and thoughtfulness, and for your loving remembrance of one who has come again into your midst, for a reason, after an absence of nearly seven years.

I commend you all to our dear Heavenly Father. More stars shall be added to your crown. Remember that, "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these—ye have done it unto me."

These tokens of your love and appreciation have always been and are still an inspiration to me. They are appreciated more than you will ever know. Eternity alone will reveal the great amount of good you have done in this way. It moves me to do "more and better work" for Jesus, you have a share in this. You make it possible, and your gift of love shall be used as you requested. Again I thank you most sincerely,
Thankfully yours,
Ida C. Shumaker

SALISBURY SEARCHLIGHT

Another real estate deal was consummated last week when one of the handsomest residence properties of Salisbury changed owners. The property is the C. T. Hay property on Ord street and the new owner is Frank Romesburg, of Garrett, who is a partner in the Romesburg and Weinstein Coal operations. The reporter has not learned the exact figures of the price paid in the deal but we understand it is near the $5,000 mark. Mr. Romesburg gets possession in a week or ten days.

The Hay family have not decided as yet where they will take up their future abode.

Cards are out announcing an informal Farewell Reception to be held in St. Johns Evangelical Lutheran Church on Thursday evening, November 1st, in honor of Rev. and Mrs. E. E. Oney. Rev. Oney preached his farewell sermon last Sunday.

Frank Mark, late superintendent of Merchants Mine No. 3, went to Patterson where he has secured employment. His place here will be filled by Frank Snyder, of Jerome, who took up his duties at the mines last week.

Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Maust, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Livengood spent from Saturday until Tuesday at Mercersburg where they visited the former's son, Bayard Maust, who is attending school at Mercersburg Academy.

There will be held a Red Cross Social in the Red Cross rooms on Tuesday evening, October 30th. The menu will consist of: oysters, slaw, bread and butter, sandwiches, pickles, ice cream, cake and coffee.

John W. Ringler and daughter, Mrs. Herman Gartner, of Fairhaven, Pa., arrived last week for a week's visit with relatives and friends.

Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Maust spent last Thursday in Pittsburgh.

Mrs. C. S. Lichter spent last week with her daughter, Mrs. Karl G. Miller, at Kittanning, Pa.

Joseph Kimmel, who is employed at Blackfield spent Sunday with his family.

Peter Livengood, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. P. L. Livengood, was taken to a Johnstown Hospital one day last week to be operated upon for appendicitis.

Mrs. Ira Heinbaugh, whose husband is in the army, on Monday moved her household goods from Coal Run to Salisbury where she will occupy several rooms in the house of her uncle, Wm. Cochrane.

Mrs. Lester Deal is ill at their home on Gravel Hill.

Miss Martha White, of Gay street, had the misfortune one day last week of losing her purse containing seven dollars. The finder should promptly return it to the loser as she is a poor working girl.

Norman Bolden, of Garrett, was a business visitor to Salisbury on Monday.

A lively contest is on in the Basket Ball Hall between the boys who are contesting for the two vacancies to be filled in the team of the Varsity Five. There are about nine contestants for the two places on the team.

Quite a number of our Salisbury sportsmen have made hunting trips "across the mountain" since the season came in and all returned with a nice bunch of gray squirrel, some of them having succeeded in getting the limit.

Mrs. Oberlin Engle and her sister-in-law, Miss Engle were guests at the home of Mr. and Mr. Howard Yaist on Monday.

Many of the striking miners of this region would be very much in favor of repealing the law that makes it an offense to call a man a "scab."

NOT A CANDIDATE

To the Voters of Meyersdale: Having been nominated for the office of Burgess by the Socialist party of Meyersdale, this is to notify my friends that I have withdrawn from the contest and positively decline to be considered a candidate for said office.

Thanking all for their support at the Primary Election, I remain
Very truly,
Wm. J. James.

MAY HAVE BEEN INDIGESTION

Indianapolis Man Is Puzzled Over Peculiar Action of Hitherto Well-Behaved Automobile.

The accustomed peace and quiet in the village of Woodruff Place was harshly broken late the other evening by a disturbance that caused A. L. Smith, living in the East drive, to wonder what particular brand of spooks finds lodgment in the innards of motor cars, says the Indianapolis News. Smith put his car in the garage at a decent and respectable hour, turned off the lights, locked the door, hung the key on the nail in the kitchen and went to bed. But that motor car did not seem to be fully satisfied. Perhaps the heat and the stuffy garage had something to do with it.

Whatever the nature of the bug under its bonnet, the troubled soul of the automobile found voice along about midnight. From the dark recesses of the garage rose a quivering howl that put to shame all roosters within half a mile. Slumbering neighbors turned over, muttered "What the deuce?" or other synonymous classical references, and peered out of the bathroom windows, while Smith, trusty revolver in one hand and flashlight in the other, padded cautiously garageward. Peering within, nothing appeared, but the car still yelled its head off. Advancing boldly, he commanded, "See here, now, that's enough of this nonsense," and stepped on the running board, at which the car gave a final yelp and subsided. "Now somebody tell me what started it," said Smith next morning, at the caucus of neighbors in the alley. "Sounded mighty spooky, anyway."

IDEAL METAL FOR MOTORS

Secret of Material Which Has Made German Airplanes Superior to Others Has Been Discovered.

The United States government has learned that the success of the German airplanes is largely attributable to what is known as Kaiser zinn metal, which is used for the motors. A piece of this metal was picked up by a British soldier who brought down a German taube. It interested him so much that he subjected it to a scientific test and discovered that it consisted of the following: Copper, 1.53 parts; tin, 92.98 parts, and antimony, 5.44 parts.

This alloy, which is somewhat akin to Britannia metal, was discovered by the Germans about 50 years ago. They first used it as a substitute for silver in the making of all kinds of articles for the dining table, never dreaming that some day it would prove so serviceable in military affairs. It is as light as aluminum, has great tensile strength and unusual resisting power. A prominent American manufacturer of motors has succeeded in duplicating this alloy perfectly, and in a short time several thousand motors made of it will be ready for use. It is claimed that it can be turned out at small expense.

Shall It Be "Langleys?"

As a tribute to the memory of the man who was first to discover, and partly to apply, the rule in aerostatics, to which the world is indebted for the modern advance in aviation, it is proposed that the United States government shall designate the airplanes which it is to send to European battlefields "Langleys." Greater recognition than his work has received should certainly be given to the modest professor, who, theoretically, at least, proved it possible to navigate the air with heavier-than-air machines. But, then, there are the Wrights. No injustice should be done the men who put Professor Langley's theory into practice. Would not "Langwrights" be a better name?—Christian Science Monitor.

May Have Solved Old Problem.

A German scientist claims to have solved the problem of transmitting photographs under the ocean by cable. His process, if successful, represents the solution of an old problem. Photographs have long been transmissible by telegraph by the use of selenium, a metal whose electrical resistance varies with the intensity of the light striking it. But a similar process for cable work has never been perfected hitherto, because of the extreme feebleness of the electric current that must pass through thousands of miles of wire without a relay. The new process is said to make use of the selenium principle and an elaborate system of relays at each end.

Quota, Quote and Unquote.

"Why did it take so long to fill the quotas?" said William Hennessey of the fifth division, repeating a question. "There's a lot of reasons," he answered. "You've got to pay proper respect to Washington by reading all of their orders. Listen to this one about the examination of teeth: "Repeat following telegram to local boards at once: Period quote physical regulations comma line seven from the bottom substitute quote or unquote for quote and unquote between quote side unquote and unquote two above unquote period, in other words comma man must have two teeth in opposition on one side or the other."—Chicago Herald.

Tenants Wanted.

"I thought that apartment house I put up last winter would prove a sure winner," said the owner. "Doesn't it pay?" asked his friend. "No," replied the disgusted owner, "it's a flat failure."—New Haven Register.
