Driving It Home!

Let us drive home to you the fact that no wash-man can wash clothes in as sanitary a manner as that in which the work is done at our laundry.
We use much more water, change the water many more times, use purer and more costly soap, and keep all the clothes in constant motion during the entire process.

It is simply a matter of having proper facilities.

NO MEDICAL NEED FOR ALCOHOL.

The American Journal of Clinical Medicine has long since taken the stand that there is no true indication for alcohol as a medicine, and that its use as such is a mere excuse for indolence or laziness. They assert that there is not a solitary application to which alcoholic preparations can be put for which there are not better remedies at our hand. The one reason for the use of alcohol as a remedy is that it does so many things fairly well, and the lazy doctor contents himself with this, instead of finding the one remedy that is better in each case.

QUOTATIONS FROM CURRENT POETRY.

Noon in the park. . . . A tropic sun.
Dazzles with light and chokes with heat.
Sleepers about you. . . . Notice one Stretching his length on a wooden seat.
His face is blotched and puffy and seared,
Sweat drips from the clammy skin;
Flies romp on a stubble of beard—
A bundle of dirt with a soul therein.

Noon at the club. . . . A welcome shade
Dulls the light and cools the heat.
Gentlemen seated. . . . Lemonade
Dashed with cognac and something sweet.
Arms dangling limply down,
Feet tapping the polished floor. . . .
Yawning and stretching. . . . No one in town.
Not a soul. . . . What a beastly bore!

Also—
"Watcher in the trenches, How wears the night?"
"Dawn flares up the bloody east,
The vultures swoop to a carrion feast:
So wears the night."

—Elias Lieberman, in "Paved Streets."

Once was the need of you
A pain too great to bear,
And all my heart went calling you
In work and song and prayer.

But now dull time has brought
A sadder, stranger lot,
That I should look upon the day
And find I need you not.

Also—
Be free of me as any bird
That circles in the air,
Be free of me as any cloud
That mountain summits wear. . . .

For freest things must tire of flight,
And restless things must rest,
And all the lonesome winds will drive
You to my breast.

—Jessie B. Rittenhouse, in "The Door of Dreams."
