Making Floors Decorative

Old floors need not look old. They may be made to look new. When enamel is used, two undercoats should be used either of flat paint or enamel undercoating with the finish of enamel.

Where lacquer is to be used for the finish, the floor must be hard, dry and in good condition to secure satisfactory results and two coats of lacquer are usually enough.

Lacquer may be applied over any finish except a mahogany stain, which is very apt to bleed through.

Stain, with a varnish finish, makes another excellent coverall for a discolored floor. The surface is first bleached, and after the stain is brushed on at least three coats of varnish should be applied to secure a durable finish. Either a flat or a glossy finish may be obtained, as there are special flat-drying varnishes as well as the usual high-gloss products.

The colored floor not only contributes its own charm to the room but often takes the place of expensive rugs and carpets.

Spring Shopping

"When Spring unlocks the flowers to paint the laughing soil" there is a general feeling of relief in the thought of straw hats and cool-cloth for men, and soft fluffy things for women folks to wear.

Spring shopping has begun and transparent rayon velvet and costumes featuring this fabric are shown in the best window displays of the Nation's shops.

All of the latest spring and summer colors in solid shades and in the new ombre effects are shown. These include green, citron, purple, aster, clovis, Rio, champagne, tiger lily and Lucerne blue in plain colors and ombre effects in red, blue, violet and orange combinations.

Some of the most fetching costumes show the effective use of transparent velvet in the ensemble.
