

Carnival at Cambria County Fair

burg, May 1—Only dog fanciers have exhibited at the bench show, as part of the great Cambria Industrial Exposition at Ebensburg, Pa., realize the ideal conditions here for the care of their pets. The fifth annual Cambria County Canine Carnival is to be held on May 3 and 4 under the license of the American Kennel Club and some of the best experienced and authoritative judges in the country have been appointed to the bench show.

ville attractions, horse show, conventions, First Aid contests for the championship of Pennsylvania, demonstrations, horse-shoe pitching contest; dancing, and fireworks every evening; boxing bout Monday night, special exhibits of the state department of Agriculture, highways, State college and also exhibits by the U. S. Department of Mines, U. S. Department of Agriculture, and the United States Naval Department; Exhibits by the largest firms and corporations in the United States, as well as local exhibits will be among the many things planned. The attractions will take place in front of the grandstand which is far removed from the Arena building in which the dog show is held, so that the display of fireworks will not in any way annoy the dogs which are disturbed by unusual noises.

More Than Half Million New Chevrolets Place on Road Since January 1st

Detroit, May 4—Evidence of the widespread popularity of the new six cylinder Chevrolet was revealed here today in an announcement by R. H. Grant, vice president of the Chevrolet Motor Company in charge of sales, that more than a half million of the new cars have been placed on the road since the first of the year.

A significant feature of this achievement, it was noted, is the fact that Chevrolet in four months time built a greater number of six cylinder cars than any other automobile manufacturer has ever produced in an entire year. This figure would have been even greater, Mr. Grant pointed out, if Chevrolet had been able to take immediate care of the tremendous volume of orders, with which the factory has been flooded since the introduction of the new car. "Nearly every month this year has seen a new monthly production record. In order to satisfy the demand for cars pouring in from nearly every section of the country, output has been steadily increased as fast as consistent with the precision manufacturing methods which Chevrolet employs," says Mr. Grant.

To signalize the achievement of placing on the road more than 500,000 cars in less than four months time, Chevrolet has secured John Philip Sousa and his world famous band for an hour's broadcast over a nation wide hook-up Monday night. It will be the first time that the celebrated March King has been heard over the radio. The radio debut of the famous band master will come over the air during the regular General Motors "Family Hour," starting at 8:30 p. m., Eastern Standard time.

Although Mr. Sousa has played to more people than any other director in the history of band music, appearing once before a single audience of 153,000 people at the International Exposition in Glasgow, America's grand old March King on Monday night will have one of the largest audiences that ever listened to one musical offering.

Thirty-nine stations extending from coast to coast and from the Great Lakes to the Gulf will be linked together for Sousa's radio debut. Because of Sousa's fame as a band master and composer and because of the universal affection in which he is held, it is expected that a record breaking radio audience will tune in.

Chevrolet officials expressed themselves as highly gratified that Sousa chose the Chevrolet hour to make his bow to the radio audience, after refraining for more than seven years from appearing before the microphone.

Beware of Danger

Blasting caps are useful articles when used in their proper places but they are very bad things for children to play with. Strangely enough several hundred children are injured and some of them are killed each year from playing with blasting caps which are left lying carelessly about by workmen. As a result the Institute of Makers of Explosives, an organization composed of nearly all of the explosive manufacturers of the United States, is making its annual appeal to parents, teachers, children, workmen and all others to use every safeguard to protect children whose safety might be endangered should they pick up a blasting cap. Of course there would be no danger except for carelessness resulting from leaving these little trouble-makers lying around. But when children come upon bright shiny blasting caps there is something that fascinates them, and results show that their curiosity is aroused so that they pick them, hammer them, throw them into bonfires, and if they know what the caps are, they make every human effort to explode them. The results have been disastrous, causing some children to lose their eyes, their fingers, or otherwise mutilate them. The accidents decrease in the Fall and Winter months.

Count VonLuckner Lecture Well Attended

A large crowd attended the lecture given by Count Felix Von Luckner at the Somerset High School last Wednesday evening, April 24.

Known to the public as the "Sea Devil" Count Von Luckner told about his experiences in a varied career starting when he was thirteen years of age. The Count spoke with German accent, and with appropriate gestures told a thrilling story in a humorous way. His references to his "examinations" and his "clear conscious" convulsed the audience who were spell-bound for over two hours.

He told why he ran off at the age of thirteen, his desire to see "Buffalo Bill," his disappointment on reaching Colonel Cody's Denver residence and finding that Buffalo Bill was in Germany with his circus. After "walking the ties" to New York, the Count got a job washing dishes and polishing knobs at a hotel. Saving over a thousand dollars he sailed back to Germany, studied navigation, took an examination and was commissioned a lieutenant in the German Navy, thus fulfilling a promise made to his father when a boy. His reconciliation to his family, their admiration of him being a self made man and his meeting with his "uncle Fritz" was related in a manner which could not be imitated by any one.

When the war broke out, Count Von Luckner was stationed on a warship, but at his own request fitted a schooner to pose as a Norwegian Lumber Craft and ran the British blockade during a hurricane. Getting a serious message over the wireless that a traitor had revealed his plans, the Count renounced his vessel, broke portholes and flooded his cabin to destroy his papers. He was stopped by a British destroyer and boarded, but had a Norwegian speaking crew, a boy disguised as his wife, and to make sure that "she" would not be questioned, he put cotton in "her" mouth to simulate tooth ache. The Count figured that in order to run a blockade he must have a "clear conscience."

Seeing the big guns trained on his vessel, thinking about the forty men in German naval uniform in the hold, and his 100 horse power motor concealed by lumber, he began to lose his "clear conscience." He remembered a package handed to him by a friend when he embarked and went down to get it. Unwrapping it he found a quart of brandy, labelled for Napoleon 100 years before.

"I thought—that was good for Napoleon then was good for me now," he told the audience, "I pulled the cork, and after 18 or 20 swallows, I regained my 'clear conscience'."

At this point the Count stopped, looked at his watch and said "I have talked for two hours." The audience urged him to finish, so he continued this lecture.

The British got his story and knowing about the hurricane, gave him the signal for "Pleasant Voyage" and he continued his voyage. He sank 500,000 tons of Allied shipping but never took a human life. Getting captured, he was imprisoned in Australia, but with a few comrades he escaped with a small boat and travelled 2000 miles in the life boat.

At the conclusion of the lecture the audience left regretfully, some however, waited and got autographed copies of his book "The Sea Devil."

Count Felix Von Luckner was received with honor in many cities and belongs to twenty-two Civic Organizations in America. Truly he is a "Friendly Enemy."

my." His tour of America is second in importance only to Linbergh's trip over the Atlantic.

In a subsequent meeting between Arthur Vollmer and Count Von Luckner, it was found that they were both reared in the same city (Dresden) and the two had quite a conversation. Mr. Vollmer took the Count's photograph and has some on sale at $1.00 each. You can get one by calling at his studio over Beachey's.
